Suffered From Kidney Troubles For Years

Nova Scotia Man Affirms Dodd's Kidney Pills a Truly Wonderful Medicine

Mr. Wm. L. Whitman Suffered From Rheumatism—Found Relief After Months of Trouble in Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Deaver Harbour, N.S.—(Special)—"My trouble started from a cold and strain. My kidneys got out of order, my kidney trouble, Rheumatism, Bright's Disease and Lumbago being some of my chief troubles. My head used to ache and my appetite was fitful. I have taken Dodd's Kidney Pills and found them very satisfactory. I think they are truly a wonderful medicine. Really they are not used half enough in this part of the country."

This statement comes from Mr. W. L. Whitman, a well known resident of this place.

Bright's Disease is one of the most serious forms of kidney disease. It can be successfully treated with Dodd's Kidney Pills. But the better way is to guard against such diseases as rheumatism, dropsy, diabetes and Bright's Disease by using Dodd's Kidney Pills when the kidneys first get out of order.

Proposal Is Made To Send A Canadian Exhibition Train To Advertise Canada In Britain

Senator Charles Philippe Beaubien, one of the late Sir Lomer Gouin's colleagues of Ottawa's upper house, who wears in his buttonhole the red rosette of the French Legion of Honour, is a flying visit to Toronto but no time is passing his case before the board of trade "I have come," said he, "to ask you to help me to send this year's Canadian exhibition train to Great Britain. Nothing, as we proved in France is better calculated to make an enthusiastic the most powerful of human suggestion. The man who knows how to harness human interest is master of the world."

That train, or rather motor caravan would harness human interest to the tune of the electric harnesses Niagara, and would flash the magic word "Canada" unforgettably on all England as on a gigantic billboard.

I am confident," said he, "that the new year will increase our sales of Canadian goods to Great Britain by 100 million dollars."

To make the Pluchesian visitation Canada and its varied products would put in some central spot in England an immense diorama of Canada and its best known scenery.

I would show," said he, "the Atlantic and Pacific coasts, with the characteristic scenery of each, and with each province, and commercial centre, the St. Lawrence and great lakes, the gold-gold-of-ontario and Quebec, the wild prairies full of golden waving grain, the mountains, the forests, orchards and fisheries of B.C. We would even put in the Canadian Rockies, with so-called barren lands covered with herds of reindeer or caribou.

Then I would have a special to flash on golden lights to show the location of every gold mine in Canada, and also the location of every coal mine, and so on with our pulp mills and great industrial areas. Words are soon forgotten, but pictures remain in the memory. Once an Emperor Napoleon saw such a map he could never forget Canada for he would have seen it. Such a large-scale appeal to human curiosity would be worth 1,000 emigration speeches."

Helps To Increase Income

Farmers Are Realizing Value of Keeping Accurate Accounts

The problem of increasing his income is one which every man counts daily from the time of the sowing of seed of each and all payments commence the cycle of the year it would be the task of the Creator. Taxation, the cost of living, the price of wheat, the cost of labor, the cost of machinery, the cost of fuel, the cost of seed, the cost of fertilizer, the cost of threshing, the cost of marketing, the cost of everything that goes to make up the cost of production, and the price of the finished product, are all factors which enter into the problem of the farmer's income.

That farmers are keeping farm accounts, he said, "and of course, know their value. A much larger number than ever before are keeping such accounts or any systematic record of their farm business and no one can appreciate the value of accounting records.

"Every progressive farmer who is trying to improve his income will welcome any method which will show him briefly and with little trouble his actual net income for his own time, after deducting all expenses including family labor. If he feels that a farm account will tell him too much bitter truth and would rather not know how much he is losing, he may be making a mistake. Many farmers have been persuaded to find that they were making something when they thought they were losing."

Sheep Industry Promising

A Keen Demand Exists For Breeding Stock

Sheep and lamb were among branch of livestock in 1925, said the market intelligence officer for Dominion branch at Ottawa in its sixth all year overview. The lamb and mutton crop was quite up to the demand and the demand is likely to be active for some time to come. The packing plant industry in Canada is in a very satisfactory condition. Canadian packers have been able to secure a fair share of the export trade in bacon and hams, which may be the fact remains that the marketings of sheep and lambs were the smallest in volume last year of any since 1920.

Leading agriculturists in Canada are known to be keenly interested in the sheep industry. Those who recently returned from a trip to that country, in which the encouraging features of the possibilities of trade from this source were pointed out. Imports of sheep and lambs into Canada in 1925 consisted of 7,000 head, valued at $37,000, and hams and bacon were returned in the country either for breeding or fattening purposes. Indications that point to better competition on the short supply agrees is the fact that numbers of lambs available for breeding were kept back from slaughter and shipped to feed on the farms where raised or sold direct to prospective producers. The number of sheep in Canada at present undoubtedly there is a healthy growth now taking place."

South Alberta Sheep Breeders

Annual Sale Attracts Wide Interest

The annual meeting of the Southern Alberta Sheep Breeders which was held recently in Lethbridge attracted a very cordial invitation to the Canadian co-operative Wool Growers Limited to hold their annual convention at that body for 1927 at Lethbridge. The Southern Alberta Sheep Breeders have found the co-operative a profitable medium for the selling of their wools and sold so in no uncertain terms. C. Jensen, of Magrath, was again elected president. If the Canadian Lethbridge first, and A. Green, Taber, second vice-presidents.

British Statesmen Are Wise

Lord Beaverbrook thinks if British statesmen would devote less time to settling European problems and more to settling the Canadian prairies it would be of greater benefit to the empire. He is also disappointed that are anxious to see Europe in a condition where it can pay for the products of the prairies.—Toronto Globe.

The answer is that, while a man's broad mare is to be largely raised by motive now many farmers are find that what will be the demand and the demand is likely to be active for some time to come. Something To Memorize

Figures Showing Canada's Area Should Be Clear in Mind of Americans

The Christian Science Monitor's All-Canada number contained many fine articles and a great deal of information about Canada, but the one line that should be read and memorized by several million Americans, is the bald statement that Canada is about the size of the Islands of Montreal, appeared on the front page, under the heading "Fallout Finds Abnormal Winds," and was as follows:

Area, 3,729,665 square miles, slight ly larger than the United States.

Annual Flowers For All Sections

The Twelve Best Annuals For Outdoor Sowing

If everybody were a bird how many beautiful flowers would go unsung! How many people would be delighted—and yet be a bulletin on "Annual Flowers," prepared by Miss Isabella Preston, specialist in ornamental horticulture for the Dominion experimental farms! The names alone sound as if birds were singing them! It all is all of more than two thousand varieties of flowers that have been tested at the Ottawa farm to be suited and rewarding with everybody interested and requiring further information is invited to apply to the horticultural division, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa.

It is doubtful which can be best recommended for the publications branch as the capital is one that can't be beaten. Of all the annuals, the dependable gardener, the flower grower on a large or a small scale besides giving valuable hints on cultivation it supplies an extra-full list with description of the best species and varieties to grow, names the twelve annuals best suited to each and practically every section of Canada, the twelve best annuals for outside sowing in the open and the twelve best for pot previously referred to of annuals treated at the Ottawa farm.

An Agricultural Family

Six Sons of Saskatchewan Are Engaged in Farming

William Muller, who has died in Stirling at the age of 78, was a member of an agricultural family identified for many years with the Stirling and Lake districts, and was among the first of the band of Scottish farmers to take up holdings in England. All his six sons are engaged in farming there in Canada, two in England, and the other in the family holding. The daughters are deceased. Three daughters are married to farmers.

Easy Way To Raise Strawberries

Experiment of Canadian Man Was Highly Successful

Strawberries enough to supply a family for a season can be grown in a barrel. This has been demonstrated by a Californian, Delavan D. Johnson, says Popular Science Monthly.

A barrel in which holes have been bored is filled with dirt. In each of the holes a vine is set, and under each vine is built a secure platform to support it as it grows and bears fruit. As many as sixty vines can be grown in one barrel.

Shipping Trees For Prairies

Busy Season At Dominion Forestry Farm Has Started

The staff of the Dominion forestry farm at Indian Head are busy as bees in the proverbial hive, shipping baby trees destined to be home shade trees on prairie farms in many 2,000 places—so far omit as Portage in Prairie and as far south-west as Swift Current and as far north as Shellbrook.

This is the start of the busy season for James McLean, superintendent of the Dominion forestry farm at Indian Head, and from now on what with shipping and planning all hands will have their time fully occupied.

Maple and ash trees are grown in good number, while pines, like cousin Willie, are conspicuous by their absence. Of the 1,000,000 trees in the nursery, 1,000,000 are maple and ash. Of the latter there are

ABRAM AND THE STRANGERS

Golden Text: All the nations of the earth shall be blessed in Him (Gene sis 18:18

Lesson: Genesis 18:1-8 16-19

Devotional Reading: Psalm 133

Explanations and Comments

Abraham Entertains Angels 1 In answer to verses 1-3 "And Jehovah appeared unto Abraham" so he sat at the tent entrance at noon in Hebron; a first verse says, and the second speaks of "three men" appearing suddenly on the scene. Because of verses twenty-two and thirty three, we must understand that the story includes among the three men, Jehovah himself. "There are passages in the Bible in which manifestations of God are described, which seem to imply that the writer confused which the limitations of space or that the human form really was possible to him. He is said to have walked in the garden in the cool of the day, to have been shown to see the town with his face and back to have been one of three men who appeared to Abraham and to have eaten that which was set before him. Under these facts, the three lies not only a truth every man of his personality, but a vivid conception of a profound and most serious redemptive truth, namely, that he reveals himself and enters into the closest friendship with men" (I'll A Hastings).

Moses Mother Is Your Closest Friend

Jersey City, Mr. J. Pauli writes: "I announced such a thing could as unbelievable was true. I was reminded by my Mother that my breast was disagreeable. I tried portions of tablets, mouth washes and other concoctions which gave temporary relief. After consulting my dentist and finding my teeth in good condition, I advised suggested as trouble was confined to digestion. After taking a few doses of Mi-o-na tablets I noticed a decided benefit were perfected, but and thicker. Sam Mother, was a Master Mason for 49 years.

COMFORT DEPENDS ON GOOD DIGESTION

Weak Stomachs Can be Made Strong Through the Use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills

The sufferer from indigestion is seldom to be pitied. Indigestion assumes various forms such as pain after eating, flatulence, distress of stomach and often vomiting after meals. The misery of indigestion is relieved by cutting down his food to a minimum in bulk. That only still further weakens him, but in spite of his better digestion, not a penny diet. And like way to get it is a wise direction is to so enrich the blood that the stomach will do the work naturally again. As a tonic for building up the blood nothing else can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. As this new blood comes through the veins strength and tone is given the stomach and the pangs of indigestion disappear. Mrs. Gallais, Ont., gives a strong testimony and new life and vim comes to the former invalid. The way to get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in case of this kind is proved by the experience of Mr. E. A. Malcolm, Port Malcolm, N.S., who says: "For several years I was a constant sufferer from indigestion. I could not eat meat or potatoes, and often could get nothing to food I did eat. Only those who have been afflicted with this trouble can realize the suffering I endured. I took a lot of doctor's medicine, but it did not give me more than temporary relief. I also took other remedies recommended, with better results. Then I read in a newspaper the case of a woman whose symptoms were like my own, who found new health through Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I at once got a supply of these pills and had not taken them very long when I began to find relief. This encouraged me to continue the use of the pills, and I can say that they did

THE LAWN .

The growing of lawns on the prairies is particularly difficult because of the lack of sufficient moisture in most seasons. Several grasses and mixtures have been tried out at the Dominion Experimental Station at Southern and the most satisfactory is a mixture of fifteen pounds of Kentucky Blue grass seed and one pound of White Dutch clover seed sown at the rate of one pound to five hundred square feet. Preparation for the lawn must begin the year before and perhaps the most satisfactory method is to give it a heavy coating of manure and plant potatoes. This enriches the soil, cleans it of weeds and leaves the soil in splendid perpetual condition. After such preparation the soil should be raked level and firmed. If this is done in the fall of an opportunity is afforded to see any depressions that may develop during the winter. In the spring as early as the ground can be worked rake and level again and sow the seed and rake it in and roll

In the low-price field where is the car that equals it?

Before buying a car—open or closed—in the low-priced field, ask yourself these questions:

1. Is it as comfortable and smart in appearance as the New Chevrolet?
2. Does it boast of such advanced features as dry disc clutch, genuine Duco finish, vacuum gasoline system with tank in rear?
3. Has it an overhead-valve engine?

VOL. 3, NO. 7 — FORT SASKATCHEWAN, ALBERTA, WEDNESDAY, MAY 19, 1926

ANNUAL RALLY IN THE FORT VICTORIA BAY

Attention is directed to the advertisement in this issue of the G.W.V. A. Re-union to be held in the Agricultural grounds at Fort Saskatchewan on Victoria Day, Monday next. An attractive and varied programme has been arranged and it is the hope of the G.W.V.A. that everyone in the district will make a point of attending this re-union. In this connection it might be proper to point out that this is the only annual affair on a large scale undertaken by the G.W.V.A., and the reason that it is held from year to year is to provide funds for the maintenance of the Memorial hall. Repairs and improvements to the hall are undertaken every year with the desire to make the hall attractive and a credit to the town. Few people realize the expense to which the G.W.V.A. is put to maintain and operate the hall, and it is essential, if some urgent repairs are to be undertaken at this time, that the celebration on Victoria Day be a financial success. The funds realized at this event are used almost entirely for the maintenance of the hall and it is the hope of the executive that everyone will make a point of attending the re-union and thereby assist in the good work.

Good Hope

A community picnic will be held at the Good Hope school grounds on Thursday, June 3. The sports will begin at 2 p.m. and will consist of baseball matches, races, etc. Other attractions will be guessing contests, baby dolls, and fancy work for sale. Supper will be served on the grounds. Everybody come and have a good time

When a man asks a girl for her hand he is liable to want to put it in some dish water.

Some of the hall, and if it were not for the necessity for the G.W.V.A. would not require to stage an event of this nature. The co-operation of all living in the district and the active help of the residents of the town are essential to make this affair a success. The hall is undoubtedly an asset to the community and it is to the interests of the community that it should be maintained and operated. For these reasons the G.W.V.A. ask for the whole-hearted support of the district on Victoria Day. Everyone is welcome and everyone will undoubtedly enjoy the outing, the first open air event of the season.

U.F.A. PLANS FOR CAMPAIGN

The United Farmers of Alberta have circularized all their locals announcing a membership drive, to commence May 25, and to be completed at the earliest possible date. Their object is to have every farmer in Alberta a member of the organization. Objection is said to be made by some farmers to the U.F.A. taking part in politics, but those who feel that way shed dimly embrace abundant miseries the way should join, as the policy of the U.F.A. has always been determined by the majority of its members

The U.F.A. has decided as an organization to take direct political action. They are convinced that the results attained by the present U.F.A. government during its five years of office show a great improvement over previous systems of government.

U.F.A. secretaries are asked to get busy at once and call meetings of their locals to organize the membership drive. Women are welcome as members of the U.F.A. as well as of the U.F.W.A. Those in sympathy with the U.F.A. though not actually farming, are eligible for membership. All applications for membership are voted on by the locals.

Josephburg

A local branch of the Junior Red Cross Society was formed at Josephburg school last Thursday by Mr. Irwin, travelling organizer of the society. Helen Hennig, president; Leona Hennig, vice-president; Emma Mohr, secretary, and Rudolph Rippel, treasurer, were the chief officers appointed. As we now have a Junior Red Cross hospital in Edmonton, it is up to us as good citizens and good fellows to work and help it along.

The boys didn't get over to Partridge Hill last Friday, but expect to play the game at home today (Wednesday). They played a 5-inning game at Pleasant View on Monday, and came home satisfied.

Doesn't it beat all what a person will do to hear good music? One of our usually sane citizens journeyed to Edmonton Friday last in the' baggage compartment of a Ford coupe, for the pleasure of hearing the Festival concert at McDougall church.

Here's a puzzle for Mr. Dons. A rope is supposed to be hung over a wheel fixed to the roof of a building; at one end of the rope a weight is fixed, which exactly counterbalances a monkey which is hanging on to the other end. Suppose that monkey begins to climb the rope, what will be the result?

Mrs. McCutcheon and son Billy visited friends in Edmonton Friday and Saturday last.

Mr. A. Rippel is visiting his daughter and son-in-law at Edmonton.

FORT HORTICULTURISTS HEAR TALK ON FLOWERS

A meeting of the Fort Saskatchewan Horticultural and Forestry association was addressed on Monday evening by Mr. Robinson, of Edmonton. Mr. Robinson possesses an unusual knowledge of flowers and his talk was listened to with interest. Another meeting is to be held on Monday, June 14, at which Mr. Robinson has promised to be present and answer any question concerning flowers and their growth. Questions should be forwarded in writing to the secretary, Mrs. Lord, not later than June 8.

Britain Not Bolshevistic

One of the most remarkable and at the same time most satisfactory, features in the great strike in Great Britain is the way in which the people kept their tempers and passions under control. With millions at men on strike, and many millions more dependent on them for support, and all feeling more or less bitter against the Government and those responsible for the country opposed to the strike, it is little short of the marvelous that the meeting and indeed strike in existence of all kinds was not general.

Were not the strike supposed discomforts, incidentally inconvenience, and in some cases even hardship on every other citizen. Had short tempers and the violating of bitter complaints and the development of bitterness of all kinds been the rule it would have been surprising. It would have been expected in almost any country. But despite any and all provocation the people of Britain kept their heads, remaining, with few exceptions, calm and unruffled.

It speaks volumes for the steady character of the British people, and their inherent loyalty that they have thus "played the game." Strong and determined as both sides to the dispute proved themselves to be they urge battle for a principle, and the strikers in more ways than one proved the truth of their assertion that they were not fighting Britain, but for what they considered to be the highest and truest interests of the country. British labor in this struggle—the greatest in the history of the country—demonstrated that it is not "unmanageable nor Bolshevistic.

The "Reds" in Russia welcomed the British strike with unconcealed joy. For years they have been striving to convert the British worker to communism. They have desired the overthrow of the present form of government and has encouraged and intrigued to bring about a revolution. The Russian Reds thought success was in sight and promptly offered all kinds of rubbish to assist the British strikers. The money was just as promptly declined by the British labor leaders. British labor is not to be bought out with the Government, but they had no desire nor intention of destroying the Government. The strike will have served at least one valuable purpose in thus proving to the world the inherent loyalty and sanepess of the rank and file of British people.

I undoubtedly the British Government and the overwhelming majority of the people are in full sympathy with the desire of the strikers for the creation of the best possible working conditions, hours of labor and pay. There is no difference of opinion as to the desirability and necessity of solving the coal mining problem in the British Isles. Where the Government and the man-by took issue with the strikers was in the method adopted by the latter to force their own views and opinions upon the country, namely, through a general strike to deprive all people of the convenience and necessities of life and thus force Britain into submission.

If there is one national characteristic of the British race it is their love of freedom and fair play. They will not be forced, nor bow to dictation, and the strikers made an irreparable blunder when they sought by force to compel all the people of means of transportation and other essential services to force compliance with their own wishes. It is not "fair play" to impose discomfort, loss and suffering upon innocent millions of people in order to force a change in authority with whom the strikers had a quarrel. This smacked too much of German military methods inflicted upon innocent Belgium in order to strike a blow at France.

Furthermore, while people generally are anxious that all necessary reforms in the coal industry shall be effected as quickly as possible, they resent and reject the assumption upon which the strike was based that it was necessary to take them by the throat and force them into subjection.

Methods which may appeal in Soviet Russia are not acceptable to this British-Canadian Saxon. This was well established in the One Big Union strike in Winnipeg a few years ago. It has again been proven on a much larger scale in the British general strike. The British workers proved their loyalty to Britain by refusing Soviet money, and by their declaration that they were engaged in a purely domestic struggle which in no way involved their national honor. But they made a mistake in adopting Soviet strong arm methods in waging their domestic battle.

The result of the struggle is to establish that the British people, including the great mass of British Union labor, are in no danger of accepting the ill-digested theories and quack remedies of Bolshevistic Russia and communistic demagogues throughout the world.

Concealed Behind Paton Wall Escaped Food Search By Dublin Police

A munition dump, one of the largest ever found, was recently discovered by Dublin detectives behind a false wall in a stable in King Street, Dublin. It contained nearly 300 live bombs, 5,000 rounds of rifle ammunition, 10,000 detonators, a number of high explosives, including cordite and a-gelatite Mann spare parts for rifles and a quantity of machinery were also found. Some of the boards of the wall were removed, revealing a cavity, which had been carefully stocked with war material. The stable, which belongs to one of the nineteen prisoners who escaped from Mountjoy Prison about four months ago, had been searched recently by the police, who found nothing.

Town In Iceland Uses Water To Heat Its Houses

The wonder of geysers of Ic-ysers. In one district in Iceland are now being used to heat houses. Reykjavik, the capital of the town and its warm and many houses are heated and supplied with hot water from the geysers. Hot water from the geysers is forced through underground pipes, laid at a depth sufficient to prevent the water from freezing. Warm water also circulates in the radiators, which are placed in each room. The cost of heating a house in this manner is very little. Reykjavik is the largest geyser area in Iceland. Other geyser areas are found in the Hveragerdi district, where hundreds of flowers and vegetables are being cultivated with water directly from the geysers. Reykjavik is also connected with the Atlantic cable by means of a land cable. Iceland is also famous for its purveyor of early potatoes and flowers.

Poison Becoming Cheaper

Calcium Arsenate Or Arsenate Of Lime Is An Economical Insecticide

The old buzzy served its day and served it well, but times have changed. The car is now the popular means of conveyance. Paris green has likewise old-fashioned poison for potato beetles and sundry other leaf-eating insects, but its day of economical service is also passing. According to Professor A. .V. Mitchener, entomology experimentalist, Manitoba Agricultural College, a newer and much cheaper poison for insects has made its appearance upon our markets and should be much more widely known that it at the present time. This newer insecticide is calcium arsenate or arsenate of lime. It is much cheaper than paris green, shows up on the foliage better since it is white, and will not burn the foliage when applied either dry or in water.

The price of calcium arsenate or arsenate of lime has dropped to half and this fact should make this insecticide more popular with both growers and dealers. Wholesale houses carry it and will be pleased to quote prices to local dealers. Unless the local dealer orders now he is not likely to have any upon his shelves when it is wanted. A word in time to the local dealer may save the grower dollars.

Says Nothing To Impede Navigation Through Hudson Straits Even In Winter Time

Are ice conditions in Hudson's Straits such as to impede navigation in the summer and fall?

"No," is the unqualified assertion of Rt. Rev. A. R. Dowdney, Bishop of Keewatin, whose diocese dallies have taken him to the strait as recently as last summer. Bishop Dowdney goes further than this. He says he will not impede navigation in the winter.

Opponents of the Hudson's Bay route for decades have argued that even if it were admitted that Hudson's Bay might be navigated for a reasonable period of the year, Hudson's Straits was an unknown quantity and would almost certainly be very dangerous to navigation at practically all times of the year.

There are no ice conditions in Hudson's Straits after the middle of July to impede navigation, he declared in an interview in the course of supervising the work in his diocese which extends almost to the North Pole. Mr. Dowdney has to patrol the land adjacent to Hudson's Bay.

On his trip to the northern part of his diocese last year, he went through the Straits, and was told that ice conditions in it were a like to the south of the strait and deep water. The exact were the worst in years, yet there was no ice in the strait to affect navigation in the least, he said.

Mr Dowdney asserted that Hudson Straits is never frozen even in winter, nor is there any float ice in it to impede navigation. Many of the northern trappers of Fur Lands is tightening up at that time.

There might be discomfort from sailing in the northern waters of Hudson's Bay and Straits during the winter months, but as far as the ice in the strait was concerned, or in the open waters of the bay, there was nothing to fear, he emphasized.

Dr. Dowdney tells of great changes in the great northland of Canada. Within the past year or so the Hudson's Bay Company and Revillon Freres have opened for trading posts in the north. Within the past year Revillon Freres have built three posts. The country will be dotted with these posts, experts say, before it is known to the world by water transport. By that time the Eskimo will have largely discontinued his whaling and fishing and will have become, like the Indian of the north, a trapper.

Prairie Provinces Secure Large Revenue From Commercial

Inland fisheries in the Canadian west the three prairie provinces and the Yukon had a commercial value of $3,340,536 last year. These are the returns to the bureau of statistics and represented an increase of $397,381 over the previous year. About 44 per cent. of the marketed catch was whitefish. Manitoba leads with 21,671,000 pounds marketed $419,845 of the harvest of her lakes and rivers. Alberta made $154,501; and the Yukon $15,270

Livestock Prospects Encouraging

Cycle of Prosperity For Industry Now Entered Upon

There is much that is encouraging in the sixth annual Livestock Market and Meat Trade Review for 1925, just issued by the live-stock branch of the department of agriculture at Ottawa. It was the best year for the feeder of good livestock in this country it would appear, says the Review, that after a long period of depression in the industry it has again prosperity has been restored upon a sound and stable basis. The general prosperity of the country has also contributed to the improvement in the livestock industry. Higher prices for meat animals and a better quality of stock have been the result.

In the fall of 1924 ten colonies of bees were set up at the Nappan demonstration farm, Nova Scotia, to ascertain the profit there is in bee keeping. The bees went into winter quarters well in the fall of 1924 and came out in the spring for their years work. The ten colonies produced 6,790 pounds of honey, being at the rate of 679 pounds per colony. The expenditure was 40 per cent on $300 invested—$10, honey and sugar consumed $13 and 12½ hours labor at 40 cents per hour—a total $41.50; leaving a profit balance of $61.03, or $6.10 per colony.

Western Canada Wheat Is Best

Prof. Harrison Says Alberta Is Ideal Country For Wheat Growing

"The best wheat in the world is grown in Western Canada," declared Professor A. H. Harrison, of the Ontario Agricultural College, who has been visiting the Canadian West. "Alberta is an ideal country for wheat growing, and I am convinced that the province will be a big factor in the wheat production of the world in the future."

Professor Harrison has been visiting the Canadian West for the past month, and has been impressed with the possibilities of the country. He has been visiting the Dominion Experimental Farms at Lethbridge and Scott, and has been interested in the work being done there.

"Alberta is ideal for wheat growing," he said. "The soil is rich, the climate is suitable, and the farmers are progressive. I am convinced that the province will be a big factor in the wheat production of the world in the future."

"One hundred hens on every farm in Saskatchewan, and 900 eggs from every hen." That is the slogan announced by Mr. John Holmes, president of the Saskatchewan Egg and Poultry Pool.

In one week alone, the past pool handled 91,000 dozen eggs. This was considered a stunning record for a good just three months old, with lots of the hens in the back districts not yet having heard of it.

It won't be long, however till every one of the 5 million boys in the province will know it as well as the 1925 performance for Jack Kyle, the recently appointed production manager, is to visit the 600 calf club members next week in Ontario. He should be down with a bang, as there are big at least one egg every three days. Incidentally, the appointment of Mr. Sloots, Mr. Kyle will help work out enough systems of handling the eggs so as to be in the south of the province for a while.

Profit From Bees

679 Pounds Of Honey Produced By Ten Colonies

In the fall of 1924 ten colonies of bees were set up at the Nappan demonstration farm, Nova Scotia, to ascertain the profit there is in bee keeping. The bees went into winter quarters well in the fall of 1924 and came out in the spring for their years work. The ten colonies produced 6,790 pounds of honey, being at the rate of 679 pounds per colony. The expenditure was 40 per cent on $300 invested—$10, honey and sugar consumed $13 and 12½ hours labor at 40 cents per hour—a total $41.50; leaving a profit balance of $61.03, or $6.10 per colony.

No. 1 Hard in Austria

"This product, which represents a very high quality, is highly appreciated by our millers, who are willing to procure the world standard seed, in very valuable to us. We immediately sent it to the Austrian Federal Institute for Cereals for analysis with a view to further cultivation. The federal department of agriculture will provide for propagation of this sort of grain in order to advance Austrian agriculture."

No News To Her

A pretty girl, presiding over a booth at a fair, was approached one day by a wealthy man that had the reputation of being niggardly. "How much are those chocolates?" he asked, picking up a box. "Two dollars," she told. "Phut," he exclaimed, looking first at the chocolates, and then at the girl, "that's a little dear." "No I've been told" was the demure reply.

Interesting To Speculate On The Future Development Of Agriculture In Western Canada

A new homestead area in Western Canada is inevitable, in authoritative opinion, as a result of the discovery of the rapidly maturing wheat which has pushed back the northern limit of agriculture far from between sixty and seventy five miles and added millions of acres to the productive area of Western Canada. The chairman of the board of railway commissioners has given it as his opinion that it will be necessary to push railway lines north to enter this vast new empire which Canada has so unexpectedly added to her economic possession. It undoubtedly becomes a new factor in future Canadian land development, and adds substantially to Canadian farming opportunity as it will enlarge for the benefit of such farming communities as have completed a most remarkable quarter century of agricultural development, and it is interesting to speculate on what the quarter century in the next starting upon may bring to the people of Canada.

Twenty-five years ago Western Canadian farming opportunity was being extensively advertised and sidelong a most limited market. In 1901 from a new province of 91,279 square miles, 1,628,474 acres were garnered. Mr Albright points out that, assuming this variety developed from a width of half a rod the yield would figure out 2,621 quarts estimated at 2,946 pounds per acre.

The first ripe strawberry was picked on June 26; on July 11 there was good picking, followed by continued picking up to August 16. From three rows 220 feet long and spaced four feet, planted in 1922, 157 quarts were picked in 1924, being at the rate of 1,719 quarts per acre, and five rows planted in 1923 yielded 43 quarts or 1,067 quarts per acre. Early Ontario is the variety cultivated. The 1923 plantings, Mr. Albright says, bid fair strong early attack plants.

Dairy Cattle For Russia

Pure-bred Cattle and Sheep May Go Shipped From Vancouver Island

Vancouver Island pure-bred dairy cattle and sheep may be shipped to Soviet Russia in considerable numbers soon to replace herds there slaughtered during the Russian revolution and the subsequent years of chaos. This was indicated in the sale of sheep from the farm of G. H. Hadwen, near Chemainus, to a cattle breeder from Moscow, recently. In a letter to the department of agriculture, Victoria, Mr. Hadwen says this breeder is now planning to come back to this province again in the fall to purchase more stock.

Since the first London Paris newspapers began flying in August, 1919, British civil aircraft have carried more than 60,000 pass engers between London and the continent.

Small Fruits in Peace River Country

Strawberries, Raspberries and Currants Grown At Beaverlodge Experimental Station

Small fruits do well in the Upper Peace River country. The superintendent (Mr. W. D. Albright) at Beaverlodge, Alberta, experimental substation, reports that 1924 was a bad year for red and white currants, particularly for the former; that raspberries were abundant, and that strawberries should hold a substantial place in any farm garden. The New Red Cross Victoria Red and Cumberland Red varieties of red currants were particularly successful last year, six bushes of each yielding respectively 92½ lbs., 93.6 lbs. and 76.7 lbs. Large White (strawberries 551 and White Cherry 1023 lbs. Varieties of white currants yielded 66.2 lbs. and 73.12 lbs. Black currants have not done well the last two years. It is thought they have been pruned too liberally to obtain cuttings for distribution.

The Herbert variety of raspberry is the best yielder. In 1924 from a row not over eighteen rods long 146 quarts were gathered. Mr Albright points out that, assuming this variety developed from a width of half a rod the yield would figure out 2,621 quarts estimated at 2,946 pounds per acre.

Warm Welcome Given Famous Stanley Cup

On behalf of the Dominion Express Company which had carried the trophy across Canada, the Stanley Cup, timeworn emblem of the world's hockey championships, was handed by Angus Sharp, depot agent of the company, to T. Arnold, Vice-President of the Montreal Hocky Club, at the C.P.R. Wind sor Station, Montreal, recently. In acknowledging the receipt, Mr. Arnold expressed the gratification of his club at the service which had been given it by the Canadian Pacific Railway in the frequent trips made by the rink over the company's lines to meet their engagements.

"The comfort and even luxury of the club's travelling arrangements," Mr. Arnold declared, "went a long way towards keeping the players in good condition for their games."

The cup bears evidences of the passing of the years. There is room on the square face of its surface, interior or exterior, as it is popularly, that is not inscribed with the name of some club, player or official, who at the time or another had it in their possession. To celebrate the occasion of the return of the cup after an absence of three years, it was filled with champagne and passed around until everyone present had drunk the health of the trophy or the club.

Those present to receive the cup at Windsor Station included the following, left to right: W. Downey, depot agent, Place Viger Station, Dominion Express Company; Angus Sharp, depot agent, Windsor Station, Dominion Express Company, who handed the cup over officially to the club; Elmer Y. Ferguson, sporting editor, Montreal Herald, "who welcomed the cup on behalf of the hunt press; W. O'Brien, trainer; Boy Nobis, French Broad hold; T. Arnold, Vice-President Montreal Hockey Club; C. Dinsmore; A. Cupford, Secretary-Treasurer. E. Gibson and C. Keenan.

SQUARE DEAL TO ALL PROMISED BY BRITISH PREMIER

London.—It was made clear by Premier Baldwin during the conference with the Trades Union Congress leaders in Downing Street that it was his purpose to stand by the terms of his statement in which he promised a square deal for all.

The prime minister was questioned by Ernest Bevin the dockers' leader as to whether he was prepared, as head of the government, to make a general request that ready facilities for the reinstatement of the strikers would be given and whether all negotiations were to be carried on while the miners were still out.

"You know my record," Premier Baldwin replied. "You know the object of my policy, and I think you can trust me to consider what has been said with a view of seeing how best we can get the country quickly back into the condition in which we all want to see it.

"You will want me to say more, and I shall say more in order to make good the damage done to trade, and try and make this country a little better and a little happier place than it has been in recent years. That will be my steady endeavor and I look to all of you, when we are through with this fight, to co-operation in that. I shall do my part and I have a double row with me to-day."

In regard to the second point, I cannot say at this moment what will happen, because I shall have to see the parties. My object, of course, is to get the mines started at the first moment possible and get an agreement reached. I cannot say until I have seen them exactly what the lines will be upon which my object can best be obtained. But you may rely on me and rely on my cabinet that they will see no stone left unturned to accomplish that end."

Ship Grain To Vancouver

Will Be No Difficulty In Handling Crops This Year

Vancouver.—The amount of grain moving to the Pacific Coast this coming season will of course depend on the outcome of the crop in Alberta, of which indications are very favorable, but, whether crop is a very heavy one or only one of average size, there will be no difficulty at all in handling it on the railway from the start, said E. D. Cotterell, superintendent of transportation, western lines, Canadian Pacific Railway.

"Last season" said Mr. Cotterell, "there was some difficulty in handling the crop until we put the permit system in force. After our experience of last year, we shall operate under this plan right from the beginning."

Many British Pensioners Here

Britain Spends $6,000,000 a Year On Pensioners in Canada

London.—During the course of a discussion in the House of Commons on the estimates of £7,250,000 (about $191,970,000) for the ministry of pensions, Rt. Hon. G. C. Tyron, minister, said that there were about 15,000 pensioners in Canada and that the government was spending altogether in Canada about £1,000,000 sterling.

Expenditure on the office in Canada was $32,000, a saving of £15,000 being been effected. The minister thanked the Canadian Government for its assistance in the past in carrying out the work in Canada.

Recovery From Strike

Britain Preparing to Pick Up the Pieces and Count the Cost

London.—Now, the nation that has borne with good humor and sparing fortitude the inconvenience and abnormalcies inevitable to any general stoppage of industry is preparing to gather up the pieces and count the cost. Work is being slowly resumed throughout the country. There are still many differences to be adjusted before industry can be in full swing again.

First, there is the question of the re-engagement of the men who have been notified that their places were filled. Then, too, groups in various sections have announced their unwillingness to resume work until the government emergency control is entirely removed.

But, on the whole, the nation has joyfully accepted the end of what the Trades Union Congress—which ended the strike—has characterized as "the most colossal, stupendous and foolish of industrial disputes."

Decorated North Pole

Amundsen Drops Flags of Three Nations on Top of the World

Rome.—Judging by Commander Nobile's radiograms to Rome, the North Pole, after the Norgma's passage, must have had something of the appearance of a birthday cake except that flags instead of candles, decorated it.

When Elmer Lavoe's observations indicated that they were directly above the top of the world the great dirigible ascended up and descended close to the ice fields. A brilliant ray of sunlight cutting through the misty mantle of clouds to glisten like a mass of gems.

Amundsen dropped the Norwegian flag, Ellsworth the United States and Nobile the Italian, and two other Italian flags, one for the Italian Aero Club and another for the city of Rome.

SAYS EUROPE IS ON THE VERGE OF ANOTHER WAR

Berlin is launching a campaign for the establishment of a pan European federation, the American Count von Coudenhove-Kalergi announces in the Vossische Veitung, that "Europe is on the verge of another war." The new movement, he declares, is greater than in 1914, the present European developments are to be viewed from historical standpoints as the prelude to a new outbreak.

One day Europe will have placed before her the alternative of war or of a general revolution as counter measures to a new outbreak and this means definitely the smashing of the present European system," says the Count, who long has been a leader in the movement in favor of the organization of a United States of Europe.

The Count declares the Western Alsace-Lorraine problems has been permanently solved by the Locarno agreements, but says it is time at least a dozen new Alsace Lorraines have stepped up in Eastern Europe, which are located in the economic zone responsible for all European wars since 1871."

He contended that at present the main safeguard against war is general poverty, which, however, is not favorable for intellectual.

The writer asserts that Bessarabia represents the principal fuse to the European powder barrel," involving conflicting policies of Russia, Rumania, France, Great Britain, Germany and Italy.

Still another menace, he says, threatens from Italy. "The objective of whose avowed imperialism and militarism will be universal, whether directed toward Africa, Asia, or Europe."

Today," says Count von Coudenhove-Kalergi "any lunatic is capable of involving Europe in another war."

It imposes a tax of three halfpence a pound on all butter produced in that country, and out of the funds thus provided a bonus of three pence a pound was paid on butter exported from the Commonwealth.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

MAY 23

ISAAC AND HIS WELLS

Golden Text A soft answer turneth away wrath. But a grevious word stirreth up anger.—Proverbs 15:1

Lesson: Genesis 26:14-25

Devotional Reading: Matthew 5:1-12.

Explanations and Comments

Isaac's Prosperity and Its Result, Verses 13-17.—A famine was the yield which Isaac obtained from his sowing, and no great were his possessions in flocks and herds, and so great was his household, that the Philistines envied him.

"There is envy in the hearts of us all. Yes, professional envy. I don't know anybody that other professional man who has a greater reputation than you have". Yes, preacher, have you never envied your brother preacher who has larger congregations and is more often noticed in the Press than you are". You musician, have you never been enviously of your sister woman who happens to be younger and fairer and more admired than yourself?" (By J. D. Jones)

The envy of the Philistines led them to fill up the wells which Abraham had dug, and Abimelech, their king commanded Isaac to leave. Although Isaac was no fighter, he admitted, stronger than they, he would not strive with them. Without wells Isaac could not support his cattle and herds and he moved on and erected his camp in the Valley of Gerar.

It used to be a mark of a gentleman that he would instantly resent an encroachment on his rights, and plot a quarrel at a moment's notice. Today, that would be a mark of ill breeding. Where education and Christian culture have done their fullest work, there is most patience and gentleness."

MUST PAY FOR PAPER

In giving judgment against a delinquent subscriber recently, Judge O'Reilly, of Cornwall, Ont., made the statement that newspaper publishers had a hard enough time in conducting the business without being done out of their subscriptions. If a person desires to stop a newspaper, the proper way is for him to pay all arrears and get a receipt, or if he is paid, refuse to take the paper at the post office and have a record made of his refusal. A man who owed for a newspaper could not stop taking it and expect the publisher to go without his pay. It may be added that no Canadian Judge wishes to force his newspaper on anyone and any subscriber desiring to discontinue his paper will not have the slightest trouble if he does so in an honest and businesslike way. Hundreds of dollars are lost every year to publishers by those, who after a subscription has expired for three or six months, discontinue the paper and send it back as "refused." The amount is too small for the publisher to make a fuss over, but all the same, it amounts to a neat sum in a year.

* * * * * * *

The ghost has walked for the last time at another Alberta weekly newspaper plant and we take the liberty of quoting our friend the editor of the Vegreville Observer on the subject:

"The Red Deer News, established in 1906, has joined the ever-increasing list of defunct weekly newspapers, the business having been taken over by the Red Deer Advocate, which hereafter will be the sole newspaper serving that community. Mr. J. A. Carwell, in former years a frequent Vegreville visitor, was editor of the News for a long time, but last year disposed of it to a new company, headed by Mr. Scott.

In referring to the purchase the Advocate points out that economic conditions have forced the consolidation of daily and weekly newspapers all over the [illegible] - Publication costs have been more than doubled over pre-war and the expense of running even a weekly newspaper is far from being negligible.

Mr. Galbraith, the editor of the Advocate, pleasantly says that he himself is rated as being 'a Red.' Tut, tut, Mr. Galbraith, you are only kidding yourself. You are no more a Red than we are a Fascist.

A good, honest, fair-minded, capable man is Mr. Galbraith and Red Deer is fortunate in having a man of his type on the job. What odds does it make if he does not publish salty notes in a while; we all do."

Here and There

Immigration to Canada in 1925 totalled 84,907, of which 35,382 was contributed by the British Isles, 17,117 by the United States, and 31,239 by other countries. In addition 20,960 Canadians who had established homes in the United States and resided there for a period longer than six months returned to live in their native land.

A new cash-on-delivery parcels system has been inaugurated at Post Offices all over Great Britain. Parcels up to the value of £50 (about $196) may now be posted at any post office to any address in Great Britain, the value being collected by the Post Office authorities and remitted to the sender. The system seems to be meeting with success.

Business conditions on the Pacific Coast continue on the upward trend with great activity in construction work. The lumber industry outlook is brighter and there have been important developments in new sawmill construction. The fishing industry is on a better footing, pulp and paper mills are active and additional power programmes are being worked out.

A. M. Johnson, President of the Canadian Club of Boston, visited Montreal for the first time on the new "Redwing" train now running between the two cities on Canadian Pacific lines. In telling of the charitable and naturalization aid given Canadians by the Canadian Club of Boston, Mr. Johnson said there were some 900,000 Canadians in the State of Massachusetts. Of this number 90,000 are in Boston.

Sir Esme Howard, British Ambassador to the United States, arrived on his arrival in Toronto on a C.P.R. train that the question of European peace was the most urgent and immediate problem of the day. It was necessary for Great Britain to assist in maintaining peace and the League of Nations offered a suitable vehicle. Sir Esme claimed that if the League disappeared England would be compelled to join some European combination against any country which threatened to dominate the continent.

Net earnings of the Canadian Pacific Railway for March were $2,234,177, an increase of $760,968 over the same period last year, and the net from March 1st to March 31st, three months ending March 31 "net earnings were $6,581,087, an increase of $2,175,295 over the corresponding period of last year and also showing for the three months since 1917. Gross earnings for March were up $2,230,271, while expenses increased only $623,306.

The development of tourist traffic to the Dominion has been one of the most noteworthy events of the Canadian economic situation in the past year or two. Holiday makers of the United States apparently find Canada's western charm irresistible as the number of visitors shows large increases every year. In 1925 $29,144,000 was spent by automobile entered Canada for touring purposes, as compared with 1,500,510 in 1924. A new record is expected this season.

Speaking at the Canadian Daily Newspaper Association meeting at Toronto recently, E W Beatty, President of the C.P.R. told them that the commercial life of Canada depended to a great extent on the press, and that the future prosperity of the country depended largely on the co-operation of the press and the business men. Mr. Beatty was impressed by the universal willingness of the Canadian press to put behind appeals that would be made by the public on behalf of works of charity, civic benefit and education.

THE STORY THUS FAR

Joanna, Sappenfah, pretty, shop girl in fictitious Bay Neighborly, Kansas, that an unknown Bogdetzar has given her a million dollars to spend as she wishes. There are no conditions which she must meet to obtain the money. Immediately she attempts to discover the name of the unknown benefactor, but he remains, as will see, in the dark. At the bank she meets the banker, Eppleton, who adds nothing to her mystery, and his man about town, gardner Brandon. The latter helps her write her first check. Armed with ten thousand dollars and the brave Brandon's statement that he intends to make love to her she goes to the theatre. [illegible] [illegible] The [illegible] Joanna starts home

What else was there to say? What else to think about? Ready any time he was. But John asked her, then:

"What sort of a wife will you be to me, Joanna? And do you think you'll be the kind of husband you really want?"

And that was John's old-fashioned way. Meeting things up. As to what sort of a wife she'd be, how could she explain? She knew, deep down inside her, that she'd be a darned good one to him, but she hadn't been spending her time thinking up ways to explain why. Small chance! When she looked over the list of all the men who weren't their husbands these always hailing red roses for the [illegible] had tried to wonder, once, why [illegible] bought red roses for other women, wives, but she had given it up. She knew why those other men's wives [illegible] out of other men's hip flasks, [illegible] how they did out of their husbands', but she couldn't have put that into words, either. And she didn't know, too, that these wives, whom she met at dancing places at the [illegible] and [illegible] were [illegible] and gamesome subjects which her boys could afford to take her, and an occasional bauble parties in the summer time, were not the kind she'd be [illegible] [illegible] get all that into concrete words. So all she could say to John that time was

"Aw, you give me a pain! You take what you get, and I'll take what I get, and whoever kicks first can take the [illegible]"

Which made John say a thing or two that didn't fill him and a quarrel was the outcome, and so that was that. She knew perfectly well what she'd do with fifty dollars. All at one thing. To ten thousand dollars she was like a schoonmer at sea with the masts broken down. With one million dollars—she'd never liked geraniums. But her mother did. So, she couldn't take roses nor lilies to Mrs. Adams, but geraniums. Mrs Adams was not a bad sort. If she didn't kick about her money maybe she wouldn't get it!

The florist explained that geraniums didn't come in bunches, but in plants only. "People don't buy them as cut flowers, you know," he explained "They take them in pots."

"Well, how's where you learn some thing you didn't know," Joanna informed him. "Just cut me up ten dollars worth of plants, will you?" When I want geraniums I want geraniums I'm a different class from stair people you know'" Funny that she should think of geraniums, and her mother and the druggist's son, because she had a lot of money in her bag and wanted to do something for Miz Adams' [illegible] and forgotten what per[illegible] [illegible]

Poor Mrs Adams hadn't When Joanna overdue in her room rent as usual stepped out of the automobile in front of the rooming house something hectic brought Mrs Adams hurriedly landlady to the window When she'd rubbed her eyes and recognized her distinguished caller she estimated the arrival of flowers Joanna and geraniums And a Rin tin[illegible] What's wrong?

To the chauffeur who helped her to [illegible] and who took her bundle the wrapping she had put aside for the benefit of Mrs Joanna said

"You may go back now to your boss Tell the asker about me tell him I'll send him a report, eh? you?"

From such [illegible] Mrs Adams [illegible] from the window, saw it [illegible] which was apart again

I suffered from stomach trouble for several years," says Mrs Mary Cronse, Norwich, N.S. "I would have severe pains after eating and as a result I ate sparingly, and so ran down in general health. I grew pale and weak, was really tired and would wake up in the morning as tired as when I went to bed Then my nerves began to give out, and my sleep really disturbed Naturally I was being concerned at the trouble but it did not help me, indeed I was growing worse and could not walk to the nearest neighbors' without stopping to rest [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

SPORTS AND PASTIMES AT 24TH MAY CELEBRATION

A large and good-natured crowd assembled from all parts of the compass on Monday to spend the day in the Fort and take in the sports and amusements provided by the local branch of the G.W.V.A., under whose auspices they were arranged. The weather was cloudy and threatening, but no rain fell until evening. There was a large attendance, there being in addition to local people a great number from Edmonton, Lamont, Bruderheim and other neighboring points, also contributed the quota. Lunch from 1 p.m. to 1:30 p.m. when a football game was played, baseball continued practically without intermission from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. and followers of the game certainly received their money's worth witnessing the high quality of ball produced by the contesting teams.

The football game was an unusual spectacle for Fort citizens to witness and it received its share of interest. The opposing teams were Edmonton Vets, champions of Alberta, and Edmonton Post Office. The Postmen were no match for the champions and the game was rather one-sided, but enjoyable nevertheless. The final score was 8—4.

Another novelty introduced was a horseshoe pitching tournament. This proved to be a popular event, there being forty entrants, and many more desiring to be but too late in making their applications. Some excellent playing was witnessed in this contest and in many instances results were very close. Those reaching semi-finals were: MacManus—Turner, W. Thomas—G. Thomas, Ellis Graham—Moody, Gibson—Mahlen, Graham—Moody defeated MacManus—Turner in the final.

Baseball games were held in the afternoon for ladies, girls and boys, prizes being given to first, second and third in each event.

The pipe band of the 49th battalion Highlanders, Edmonton, added color and music to the occasion and the war Highland dancers were a popular attraction.

The midway was full of barkers for various games of skill offering opportunities for competent persons to obtain prizes worth many times more than the two bits necessary to compete, and it was remarkable to note the number who were successful. One felt sorry for the proprietors at times.

The lemer man was well catered to, the Red Cross Society provided lunch in one of the buildings, the hot dog men cried their wares in refined accents, and a large booth with a capable staff dispensed ice cream, confectionery, and everything of that description.

Dance in Memorial Hall

The day's celebration closed with a dance in the Memorial hall. The hall was packed with devotees of the dance and each person brought as much real estate as possible on their shoes, with the result the floor was coated with sand. Feet suffered in the melee and clothes suffered with the dust, but nevertheless and notwithstanding, a gay time was enjoyed by all present. An Edmonton orchestra supplied the music.

CONTRACT AWARDED FOR ROAD GRAVELLING WORK

She—Don't talk foolish; wait until we get off this main road.

Josephburg

Services have been resumed in the Reformed church, which is now solid on its new foundation. Bricklaying has been in progress for some days.

The junior ball players had two games last week at the home pitch. Partridge Hill beat them by 6—1, while the Good Hope boys, true to their optimistic name, went home promising revenge next time. Bag'em fellers, those boys, we like 'em.

Rev. J. Salter conducted the service at Beaver Hills last Sunday morning

Regular meeting of the Josephburg local U.F.A. on Friday evening. Mr. Lunan is expected to be present to address the meeting. Come out and talk things over.

Partridge Hill

Last week Partridge Hill boys went to Josephburg for a five innings game winning 6—1. At 7 p.m., May 28, Josephburg returns the visit and we expect a more even game on this occasion.

This Wonderful Age

Recently, within the short space of one week, two exploration parties, those of the North Pole, without mishap and in comparative comfort, thus realizing what had been the ambition of daring and adventurous men, for centuries. Their achievements were rendered possible by the use of the air routes 18 strand of by ship through the ice-bound waters of the Arctic seas.

Daily communication is maintained between London and Paris by air ships carrying passengers and freight, the time schedules being as regular as those of the best managed railways, and a few weeks ago the trip from London to Paris was made in ninety minutes by an airplane carrying a score of passengers and several tons of express freight.

Throughout large sections of the United States mail is now transported by aeroplanes with the result that important letters are delivered thousands of miles away within a few hours of mailing a service formerly days were necessary for their despatch. Regular mail services by air are now established and maintained right across the continent, and the number of such routes is increasing every year.

Within the short span of one generation the horse and buggy has been superseded by the automobile with its small, compact internal combustion gasoline engine, as a means of conveyance on our highways, and a day's journey of a few years ago is now only a matter of hours, or even minutes, and hundreds of thousands of people who use or dream of keeping a horse and buggy now have their horseless carriages.

When the electric telegraph, the telephone, and finally the trans-Atlantic cable came into operation most people felt that the last word in rapid communication had been written, and now almost overnight has come the marvelous invention of radio whereby the most remote and inaccessible places in the world can be kept in constant touch with centres of population and activity. The successful flights over the North Pole were known to the world within a few hours. No longer are ships at sea hundreds of miles away, and one in distress can call others to its assistance just as a sick person in a city can summon his doctor by telephone.

Photographs of scenes in connection with the great British strike were printed in New York papers the following day, transmitted across the Atlantic by radio, and even on these Western prairies these pictures were reproduced within three or four days whereas but a year ago such pictures would not have been available here for two weeks or more.

In another way time and distance and cost of operation are being reduced in the West through the introduction of oil-electric power units. Gasoline, distillate, the smoke and other disturbances of travel.

For countries the enormous power in our great rivers, cataracts and falls have been pure waste because unutilized. Now this cheapest of all known sources of power is being harnessed the world over and placed at man's disposal, with the result that not in cities alone but in the rural home the benefits of electric light, power and heat are available, while all industry has entered upon a new era of expansion.

Within the memory of people still living the hollow candle has given way before the kerosene lamp, and the lamp had been replaced by the gas or the electric light and now by the cheaper, more efficient tungsten lamp. The finest lectures, the best music, the current news of the day is carried by radio into the humblest and most isolated home, and it does not require much imagination to foresee that at no distant date people everywhere will be able to witness as well as hear those far distant occurrences.

Jules Verne's flights of fancy in "Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea," and "Around the World in Eighty Days" are today accepted facts and almost every day happening.

Pessimists there still are who insist that the world is becoming worse and not better, that mankind is bended for destruction, but with increase of population he world will not be capable of producing enough food to sustain life, that with our prodigal use of fuel these resources will become exhausted and the race will freeze to death, and so on and on such, but optimists there always have been, and probably always will be, but their dire predictions always fail to be realized. Man has ever been able to solve the problems confronting him. Necessity has ever been the mother of invention, and at no time in the history of the race has inventive genius been more fertile in practical ideas, nor has science been so consistently employed to achieve important and lasting results.

Predicts Bumper Crop

May Surpass Bumper Years in West Says Lumber Man

Returning from a tour of the western provinces Thomas Bradshaw, vice-president and general manager of the Massey-Harris Company, predicted that 1926 would see a western crop which would rival, if not surpass, the bumper years of the past. Not since 1915, he declared, had he seen the wheat crops so well advanced, the farmers in such a flourishing condition and the general tone of the west so optimistic.

A Canadian Ambassador

American Paper Thinks We Should Have a Representative in U. S.

It is years since it was arranged that Canada should have an ambassador to the United States. The Canadian government has announced at different times that the appointment was upon the point of making. It has been asserted by friends of that government that the ambassadorship would be established as soon as the right Canadian could be had. Either the right Canadian is a white blackbird or "a shrinking violet," for there are nearly 600 Canadians and among them there must be some man capable enough and not too modest to serve Canada at Washington

As a matter of business alone the Dominion needs an American ambassador. Canada is too old and fixed in its interests to be unmanageable, but the British ambassador to represent it indirectly, who Albania, Egypt and Haiti have representatives of their own in the United States. No British ambassador can handle Canada's business at Washington as advantageously as Canada could a representative of the Ottawa government.—Ottawa Journal.

JACOB AT BETHEL

Golden Text—I am with thee and will keep thee wherever thou goest. Gen. Genesis 28:15.

Lesson—Genesis Chapters 27, 28. Devotional Reading—Psalm 121.

Explanations and Comments

Jacob's Dream at Bethel, verses 10-15.—Jacob was fleeing from Esau's wrath. The latter had vowed to slay him if his brother had not visited Isaac's favors (gifts by subterfuge, as it would seem from the expression "He lighted upon a certain place," he came to the hillside near Bethel, where he had vision of God.

"God put by the way when leaving home and does not carry with him some kind of protecting power that would be able to steal, some necessaries, some imagination and lead him to the places where God may be seen" (Kitpi Conner)

Jacob needed something for a pillow and there was nothing better at hand then the stones about him. He took one of these and put it under his head as he lay down to sleep. Such a pillow is common in Africa at the present time. When Bishop Taylor Smith, the noted Bible scholar and traveler, means also slightest.

"The Spirit of God always covered his teaching in the old days as it does now. Sorrow borrowed from their surroundings. John's revelation was full of rainbows even of the kind which sometimes gathered around the cliffs of his prison isle as a sea mist. Jacob's ladder is not the only time a stone broke on them in search. Even David's Psalms make constant reference to the wild hill country of Judea, in which so many of them were composed" (Dr. R. F. Horton).

Handshaking Is Hard Work

Prince of Wales Not Only One to be Inconvenienced by Custom

The decision to abandon the White House custom of indiscriminate handshaking was bound to be made sooner or later, for it had become a nuisance to the health of both the president and his wife. At the first reception after the war President Harding shook 6,500 hands at the rate of 30 per minute. President Wilson wished he could get a glove with steel fingers. The wife of President Cleveland found her right hand getting larger than her left. As the result of much demand for assistance, and took violin lessons, to restore the disparity. Mrs. Harrison after the first experience, ended the ordeal by holding a fan in one hand and a bouquet in the other. We remember how the Prince of Wales was similarly incapacitated during his visit to Canada by the too hearty grip of welcome. London Daily Chronicle

MAJORITY OF 13 FOR GOVERNMENT ON BUDGET VOTE

Ottawa—After over a month of debate ending in an all night sitting, the house defeated the Conservative amendment to the budget by a majority of 13. The vote stood Against 101, for 101.

An unusual feature of the division was that neither Premier King nor Right Hon. Arthur Meighen, Opposition leader, cast a vote.

Mr. Meighen was absent through illness. Mr. King was paired with Mr. Meighen.

There were no party switches. Liberals present went solidly against the amendment. Conservatives went solidly for it. Progressives, Independents and Labor voted with the government.

Announcement of the result was greeted with loud Liberal cheers.

The house then again divided on the main budget motion.

One of these meetings is to be held in the Memorial hall, Edmonton, on Monday, June 7.

An Enviable Position

"In estimated national wealth in millions of dollars, Canada stands seventh on the list, higher than Australia, Brazil, Argentina and in fact higher than any of the newer countries into which surplus population can freely flow," Dr. D. A. MacGibbon, professor of economics, University of Alberta, stated recently. In wealth per capita Canada is only surpassed by the United States and Great Britain, continuing "Canada is among the only five nations showing a surplus on current account, and is also among these countries having a food surplus. She ranks fifth among the nations as an exporter and seventh as an importer."

PLANNING FOR BETTER BLOOM IN THE BORDER

(Experimental Farms Note)

Spring is the time of the year when the amateur border is most enjoyed and, after raking the border in autumn it will planned for coming into bloom given the most satisfactory results. It is difficult to have flowers during the summer months there being many fine varieties available which bloom there. When the roots have gone in the spring the flower of flowers eagerly examines the border to learn what is coming and if anything promises to be of some note. A few bulbs or plants, such as Snowdrops, Glory of the Snow (Chionodoxa), Squills (Scilla), Grape Hyacinth and Freesia give early bloom and these with some early-flowering annuals will be much appreciated. Bulbs are obtained in the autumn. Plants, other than bulbs, which are among the best for spring bloom are Primroses and Polyanthus where they will succeed, Iceland Poppies, Rock Cress (Arabis), Columbine, Daisy, Flower, Bleeding Heart, Perennial candytuft, Barrenwort (Epimedium), Trillium and early varieties of Iris.

There is liable to be quite a dearth of blooms in the border in autumn unless a few bulbs have been planted in the which bloom at that time. The perennial phloxes often continue to bloom until late and, as they are very valuable for cutting, one should have some of the best varieties of these. Other plants which will ensure a good display of blooms until killed by frost in October are the Michaelmas Daisies or Asters, Aconitum Fischeri, Helenium autumnale and varieties, Lilium speciosum, Japanese Anemones in several varieties, will help to keep the garden gay well into October.

Joanna's eyes danced. She loved to talk about the same as a boy to her own pals of whom she had numerous rambling the winter was over. Where were they going to go this time? Joanna was all for the mountains but if they decided to go to the lakes she was willing to do that, too.

Mr. Adams was a dear and not a bad one, either, as fathers go, as Joanna admitted to herself, but once confronted with a girl friend he was apt to be a bit overbearing. Not that he was in the least different, under the latter circumstances but the general aspects of her account of his behavior were the same. In fact, she was good for four weeks or oversee for any girl and after that, why as long as it was necessary. Indeed, she was in full sympathy with Joanna's desire to get out of it. Joanna herself had once confided a girl friend to her mother's care for a month rent for two weeks about on a desert couldn't afford with "Next mind dealer." The first week she was horrified. After that she'll pray for you, and I guess that won't do you any harm, either."

Mrs. Adams was breathless with curiosity when Joanna acted her in the drab room she'd gained for herself by distinction from the iron cot rule which the landlady laid down no rules beside the cot. "My young lady's visiting another company at the other sex in the drawing room only!" Her young lady unfortunately referred to the big front room downstairs with the two spindle-legged gilt chairs and the three overstuffed things in faded rose, as "the drawing room only." Joanna, speechless for a moment, shooed her flowers into the landlady's room. At the same time she noticed that the old lady had taken off her apron. She'd never seen Mrs. Adams, except on Sundays, with her apron off. It gave her something easy to talk about as a starter.

"I didn't know it was you getting out of the automobile," Mr. Adams explained. "And I wasn't taking chances. That's my rule; when an automobile comes to my house off comes my apron. I was property raised in my young days!"

She allowed a tear or two to escape over the flowers, maintaining the possibility of lonely homesickness, also a beloved human or inanimate object. Love was too much to hope for, but there was still room for pity and Joanna was not above using it.

"Tell me, where'd you get that new car you had when you were here before? You said you'd traded in the old one."

Just then Joanna remembered. It was only real thing Cobden had in his thing. It was his car. He'd bought it with his own money and worked on it himself and that's what I'm coming in. When I got to the bank—"

"You say you had a thousand dollars to pay for that coat Jo?" Mrs. Adams interrupted again.

"You say you had a thousand dollars to pay for that coat, Jo?" Mrs. Adams interrupted again.

"In five hundred dollar bills! Gee, you're almost exploded. And she'll be gone some in my handbag, and one of them's for you, but never mind the rest till I get out of the bank, will you?"

Carefully with constant repetition, and with infinite detail, Joanna completed her story. When she had finished she was blushed, excited, crying again. She'd rubbed her lips with the back of her hand so much, in her nervousness, that the scarlet was blotchy, and the tears had played havoc with her eye lashes. She sank down in a chair and finished with a pose that she instantly recognized as a good one, and one she'd remember for some future occasion—arms stretched down beside her and palms turned out with fingers spread.

"Now that's my story for you in a nick to—and what do you know about it?"

Mrs. Adams didn't know what to know about it. When Joanna came to the million dollars the landlady patted her hair and tooted in a grey slop that hung down behind; but when the girl came to the end she was very silent, motionless, and she kept her hands folded in her lap.

Joanna went over and kissed her on the top of her head, lightly She didn't respond to that, which Joanna misinterpreted. It was a lot of news that had been thrown at her.

"Now I'm going upstairs and try to cry," said Joanna, gathering her

"You say you had a thousand dollars to pay for that coat Jo?" Mrs. Adams interrupted again.

Little Helps For This Week

Verily I say unto you, whosoever shall not receive the kingdom of God as a little child, he shall not enter therein.—Mark x, 15

Be like a child, and lean and rest

And thou shalt know no harm
Then shalt thou by His hand be brought

Up through a well lit night.

Roman Ruins In Sussex Village

Archeologist Assisted in Excavations By College Students

Students from Oxford and Cambridge passed their spring vacation in assisting S. E. Winbolt, the archeologist, in his excavations near Pulborough in Sussex. It has now been definitely established that the site of the explorations saw some 2000 years ago a road connecting the early Roman road of Stane Street with the main road to London. Masses of archaic pottery have been brought to light, probably belonging to the first century A.D., and iron finger rings and (money) arrow have also been discovered. A pre Roman beehive, queen and a number of flint instruments have also been discovered.

LUNAN CONFIDENT OF LOYALTY OF U.F.A. MEMBERS

The provincial election date has been definitely announced for June 22 Mr. Lunan, U.F.A. director for Vegreville has just returned from a conference at Calgary and reports enthusiasm running high with full confidence in the return of the present government by a large majority.

Mr. Lunan states the misrepresentations of Mr. J. T. Shaw, coupled with the past record of the Liberal party are exerting a beneficial influence in favor of the Brownlee administration and he challenges Mr. Shaw or anyone else to name one act of class legislation enacted by the present government.

With regard to local conditions in the Victoria constituency Mr. Lunan says that the slight difficulty arising out of the misunderstanding which arose at the convention at Lamont on April 16th is being gradually smoothed out and the farmers in the eastern part of the constituency are returning to their allegiance to the U.F.A. It is being freely admitted that the dissension was originated by the machinations of the Liberal party machine, and once it was tracked to its source

The monkey problem which has disturbed the night's rest of some of our neighbors is hardly, as obvious, perhaps, as it seems.

We took the view that as long as the unintended weights, including rope, remained equal on both sides, nothing would happen. But the suggestion is also made that as the money climbs upward, farther away from the earthly centre of gravity, its weight decreases.

Perhaps some monkey had better make the experiment. Any volunteers?

Another thrilling problem next week! I don't miss it!

The lectures will cover many branches of agriculture and also domestic science and nursing. The scholarship will consist of one term's instruction free of all charges, with board and room provided, at one of the agricultural schools in the province, for the boy and for the girl obtaining the highest standing during the week at the university.

More About This Wonderful Age

Columns last week attention was directed to the marvellous achievements in recent years in the development of rapid means of transport and communication—developments within a decade far outstripping the work of previous centuries. But it is not alone in the field of mechanical invention that this is truly a wonderful age. The onward march of progress is just as rapid and even more remarkable in scientific research and attendant results.

Take the science of preventive medicine as an example. It is difficult today to realize that only a century ago the average length of life was less than thirty years. It practically doubled during the nineteenth century, and now comes the tidings that the average of life in the United States and Canada has been lengthened by five years since 1906, but so quietly and effectively have the forces of prevention been carrying on their unceasing warfare against disease and death that few realize what has been accomplished, nor how it has been accomplished.

One of the chief causes is the decrease in infant mortality. The spread of sanitation and sharp with sanitapon, sterilization and the use of pasteurized milk have modern surgery possible, pure milk and water supplies have pre vented typhoid. Fresh air has done much to conquer tuberculosis, inside and outdoor sanitoria are eradicating diphtheria, scarlet fever and other diseases, the discovery of insulin has resulted in control of diabetes, while present day knowledge of how the system or lack of secretions of the ductless glands affect the health has opened a new world to the medical profession

With all its horrors, sufferings and losses, the Great War conferred at least one benefit on mankind in that it opened the eyes of all people, and particularly all Governments, to the physical condition of the race and demonstrated the greatest of all national assets, are people, and people at army basis and robust health without which mental equipment must remain hollow pan The Great War also demonstrated on a huge scale beyond all possibility of dispute that disease can be controlled and prevented

In times of peace, people can, if they will, live in clean and hygienic surroundings, obtain pure food and water supplies, eliminate flies and disease breeding germs But this is not always possible in the case of many people. In the South African war the British had 58,000 cases of typhoid fever and 8,000 deaths in an average army strength of 200,000. In the Great War the average strength of the British Army was 1,250,000 men, but only 7,500 cases of typhoid and 266 deaths therefrom. Why? Because at the beginning of the war all British soldiers were inoculated against typhoid French soldiers were not inoculated at first and in the first sixteen months there were 96,000 cases with nearly 12,000 deaths. Then the French were inoculated with the result that the amount of typhoid fever fell to that in the British Army.

A very frank article by Dr C E Fleming appears in the British Medical Journal respecting the disappearance of certain infectious diseases which in the past used to demand high toll in Great Britain. Figures quoted from the British Ministry of Health show that from 1900 to 1921 diseases such as diphtheria, typhoid, scarlet fever and tuberculosis have decreased 50 to 97 per cent in the case of smallpox the decrease is actually 100 per cent, not a single case having been reported in 1920.

Medical science may justly claim a fair share for the result, but better conditions of life, of home, of workshop, the stopping of child labor, shorter hours of work, better food, more sunlight and air, more leisure and more, and more outdoor recreation, all have been instrumental in effecting this glorious change for the better.

Industry and Government and municipal health authorities can do much and are doing it, but unless they are supported by the rank and file of the people their best efforts must fail. An enlightened public can do more to prevent disease than any other agency. It was in full recognition of this fact that in drafting the Covenant of the League of Nations Article XXV was adopted requiring every nation joining the League to encourage, promote and maintain an active Red Cross society to enrol all the people in its membership and in world-wide Crusade for Good Health with the object of promoting health, preventing disease, and mitigating suffering arising out of sickness, accident and disaster. By arousing the interest of all people in health matters, the world-wide organization of the Red Cross is doing much to check disease and eliminate much unnecessary suffering, and is thereby adding to human effort the habit and contributing to the happiness and prosperity of all people every where.

Love Of Clean Sport

Bound to Encourage Spirit of Fairness and Courage

It was Talleyrand, we think, who once said that one of the secrets to England's greatness of the British peoples was their love of sport. It is something which certainly is more characteristic of the English speaking peoples than of any other, and it is considered to say one class among them, except

Likely to Change Fishing Methods

Work On Mystery Traveler At Hull Laboratory Encouraging

A mystery ship, whose operations when completed are likely to revolutionize fishing methods, is nearing completion at Hull, it is learned.

She is much bigger than the ever ing trawler, her tonnage being between 1,000 and 1,200 gross. Instead of trawling in the ordinary way, this vessel will anchor outside the three-mile limit" and send out boats to fish with lines. Fish of a large size, chiefly halibut, will be sought for.

When the vessel is ready aboard they will be laid in specially constructed "rest banks," to prevent the fish losing weight. Ice will be secure when fish are carried in bulk, and also to keep them alive until landed.

Plan Believed To Be Feasible For Tree Lining Of A Highway Stretching From Ocean To Ocean

The campaign being conducted by Dr. F. E. Lindville, president of the Canadian Good Roads Association, in which the provincial motor bodies of the Dominion are federated) for the tree lining of the trans-Canada highway from ocean to ocean, has resulted in bringing out a number of remarkable declarations from many citizens on the most unlikely of which are some that describe the plan as chimerical) because impossible.

These that thus emphatically state it to be impossible base their declaration on the fact that the open prairies are practically treeless.

A summarized compendious statement of their case might be: "If trees could be grown on the prairies they (the prairies) would have been clad with one vast forest."

It is strange indeed how a popular misery persists and is stated as a fact with a fine air of finality long after it has been demonstrated by fact to be a lie. It is the fact that the absence of trees on the prairie long puzzled the settlers, and to this day different reasons are assigned for this natural phenomenon. During many centuries the recession of the great ice cap of the glacial period as we age formed a huge lake that covered the whole of north of the Canadian western plains. This resulted in the formation of an enormously fine loam or clay soil of lacustrine origin. Its heating power is well known in every section of the community. A bottle of Dr Thomas' Eclectric Oil should be in every medicine chest ready for any emergencies that may always be anticipated.

Hogs On Pasture

Experiments Conducted At the Central Farm At Ottawa

The pasturing of hogs on clover, Japanese millet and sweet clover was made the subject of an experiment carried on last year by the Dominion animal husbandman at the central farm at Ottawa. The test covered a period of only nine days from June 6 during forty two, of which the hogs got alsike mix and clover, leaving during the remaining twenty seven days they were fed alsike mix, Japanese millet and sweet clover, besides the regular rations, which consisted of two parts oats, one part corn, one part middlings, one part bran five per cent tankage. The hogs had been shut with one tank terrestrial.

Cows Need Grain Ration

Better Results Obtained Than By Feeding All Grass

While almost in love and made mine for the dairy cow, she will keep in flesh longer and yield a better pay ing flow of milk by being fed a moderate ration of grain. By so doing she will be built up against the day when the grass will be short and the flies will do all they can to rob the cow of her cheese. Along with the extra feeding should go a good deal of attention to the cow's comfort during the very hot hours of the day. The cows will improve immensely by a little attention in the regard. Dewey appreciates attention to her comfort and never a kick and shows her gratitude by purring like a kitten when she is petted. Pull it in close extra pounds made up little pennys at timely attention and the profit flow in the dairy business.

Farmers Warned Not To Increase Potato Acreage

Possibility That Market May Not Be Good Next Season

Mr Dan E Metcalfe, the Dominion fruit commissioner, is urging producers against planning an increased acreage this spring. The present high prices are an incentive to do this, but there is every possibility that market conditions will not be so good next season as in a recently learned case. Mr Metcalfe points out that in 1925 there were unusually small crops both in Canada and the United states. The shortage in the United States made a heavy demand on our supplies and had an important influence in causing the high prices. It would, therefore, be advisable for potato growers to exercise caution in planning this matter carefully and not to plant only their normal acreage of potatoes but a large crop being about a repetition of the unfavorable conditions of the previous few years.

Ontario Hardwood Industry

American Firm Purchases Large Area Of Timber Near Sault Ste. Marie

Premier G. Howard Ferguson of Ontario has announced the report that a large area of hardwood timber between Sault Ste. Marie and Thessalon had been sold by the Provincial Government to the Algoma Steel, which is to build a large plant for the manufacture of hardwood products. The area sold is 1,150 square miles and the sale marks the first attempt on a large scale to establish a hardwood industry in the province.

The price here is believed $2.50 bonus and $15 royalty—distinct dues on every thousand feet of hardwood cut, and the cut will be limited to 200 million feet in the first year to 25,000 acre the second and thereafter.

Opportunities For Poultry Raisers

Industry in British Columbia is In A Prosperous Condition

The poultry raising industry in British Columbia is quite prosperous and there is a good market for eggs and experienced poultry men with a little capital to enter this business and make a success. Climate and other conditions are very favorable for poultry raising. The sends which this industry has produced in British Columbia is indicated by the fact that one concern has recently installed in this province a plant with a capacity of 24,000 eggs and shipments of day-old chicks from a single concern average 8,000 a week

Ambassador Says League of Nations Necessary

"The question of European peace is the most important and immediate problem of all at present, even overshadowing the stupendous Asiatic Pacific problem," stated Sir Esme Howard, British ambassador to Washington, on his arrival at Toronto recently on a Canadian Pacific Railway train from the American capital. "In order to assist in maintaining peace in Europe," Sir Esme continued, "we must continue to be intimately connected with all its affairs. Consequently it would not profess indifference to European politics as the inhabitants of the North American continent can." For this reason Britain is practically compelled in every way to support the League of Nations. If the league should disappear tomorrow we would be compelled once again to join some European combination against any country which threatened to dominate the continent."

Sir Esme was a guest at the Government House in Toronto and addressed a joint function of the Canadian Empire and Rotary Clubs. The later left for Ottawa in the Canadian Pacific private car Montrosa on his way to Montreal. System Of Intelligent Selection Practically Demonstrated And Makes For Successful Farming

The Production Of Wax

Becomes is Worth More Than Twice As Much As Honey

Beeswax being worth more than twice as much per pound as honey, an idea that is produced in the apiary should be raised says Mr C B Good ertham, the Dominion apiarist In an apiary worked for extracted honey the wax will come principally from cappings. A special box should be kept for old combs that have been rejected for pieces of drone comb that have been cut out of worker combs, for trimmings of foundations, etc., as they represent wax The best way to deal with cappings and pieces of clean wax is to use Mr Good erham's solar extractor, which is in principle a simplicity, it is the principle of choosing the lower of two evils and of two good evils of letting the better, at every opportunity.

The sun interior of a single hive year is not sufficiently to melt the constant, wasteful combs The improvement may be small in each case, but will be notable in a season or two. If, Good, erham says, a good ensential farm tells in Scientific Agriculture the results of 25 years' selection may be noticed from such a change.

A quarter of a century ago, a purebred Holstein sire was purchased Nowadays, he is not worth killing for canned stock." The desire of the owner was to increase the amount of milk, and he succeeded.

The milk was weighed daily and the produce of each cow recorded When changes were necessary in the herd, the best probable ones to go.

When a new bull was required one from a dam of a little better record was obtained. The permanent idea of more milk per cow was never neglected

At the beginning of the records the average yield of the young cows was thirty-six hundred pounds of milk for the first eight months of lactation. In twenty-five years the yield had risen to sixty-five hundred pounds for the same period, and is now nearly double. This is an ordinary farm herd, with no official testing association, and no attempt at money breaking The cows are still "grades" But by weeding out the inferior and breeding from the best, the unique of the herd is the result, with the same labor and expense This is "intelligent selection which makes for successful farming Vancouver Province.

Device Makes "Dry Ice"

In Portability Dry, Comfort Shell, and Is Intensely Cold

A device that makes what is called "dry ice," will soon be created from ice in its original state for hours at a time without the use of ice. It is now possible to send a glass of ice cream from New York to Chicago by aeroplane and when the package is opened, the ice cream will be found almost as hard as it came from the freezer many hours before!

"Dry ice" cannot melt and is perfectly dry to the touch, and is so cold that it will make a thermometer drop to 100 degrees below zero.

It has been learned that small bubbles that form and rise to the surface in a soda pop bottle when you pry off the cap. This new ice, Popular Science Monthly explains, is made out of the same gas that forms those bubbles—in other words, it is carbon dioxide gas cooled down and compressed until it finally forms a solid, frozen mass.

Solidified carbon dioxide has been produced in a laboratory crude way many times, but this is the first application of this queer freezing agent to the preservation of ice cream.

Explanations and Comments

Jacob's Feet of Esau at Mahanaim 32, 1-6.—On his return journey to the land of his fathers, over the Hittar land (Bethlehem), Jacob reached the spot he named Mahanaim, in Jesus territory. He deemed it politic to acquaint Esau of his arrival. The messengers soon showed for this purpose, returned with the alarming news that Esau himself was on his way to meet Jacob accompanied by four hundred men. Jacob was panic stricken, and dismayed, as he had to be, naturally he thought that Esau was coming to avenge the wrong he had received at his brother's hand. Jacob was face to face with the consequence of his sin.

You never are done with a sin till it is forgiven. The best and truest Psycho analysts may have what per-version it will, it makes some things certain that a man can sin, that he can have a bad conscience or remember that he can hardened and feel not, that he can thrust his sin down into the hold of his subconsciousness and shut the hatches on it and sail on, but if he thinks he is through with his sin just because he has crushed it out of sight he is making a mistake. He is not through with it at all. It is at work still, terribly at work tearing away at the bases of his personality. We Christian preachers are fond of reminding you that no man ever goes through with a sin until it is forgiven, but there is provide reality given to that fact now that we know. You never are done with a sin until it is out in the light and forgiven" (Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick).

It will Relieve a Cold. Cold, are the commonest ailments of mankind and if neglected may lead to serious conditions. United States Sitting Tight

Debtor Nations Are Having Hard Time to Make Payments

Perhaps some day Uncle Sam may find himself in the position of the policy of Great Britain succeeding the Napoleonic wars, by which enormous sums collected debts were gauged, but in the meantime he is sitting tight and the debtor nations are trying the devious ways of making payments. They cannot pay in goods because of the United States tariff wall. To raise gold they must undersell Uncle Sam in the markets which yield it. And if they sell there they must also buy in other markets, thus shutting out United States exporters. Thus, which would not contribute to honesty on Uncle Sam's part.—Toronto Globe.

Sees Its First Automobile

Donegal Village Flies Flags in Honor Of Occasion

The little old-world hamlet in the county of Donegal is celebrating the appearance of the first automobile in its midst. In honor of the occasion all the residents hoisted flags.

There are numerous villages in the British Islands which are still living peacefully in the days of long ago, unmarked or marred by outward show of modern progress, but comparatively few can boast of avoiding the march of the automobile.

Milburn's Worm Powders are the medicine for children who are found restless during the ravages of worms. They immediately alter the stomachic conditions under which the worms existed and drive them from the system, and, at the same time, they are tonical in their effect upon the digestive organs, restoring them to healthful operation and ensuring immunity from further disorders from such a cause

Some men admit that they are self made, while there are others who blame it on their wives.

Sir Henry Thornton Optimistic

Expects C.N.R. Will Soon Be Placed On Paying Basis

In an address at the annual banquet of Canadian National employees at Toronto recently, Sir Henry Thornton, president of the system, said that before long, sooner than most people think, the National Railways will not only be self-sustaining, but will also return a profit to the public treasury. Banish The Blues

By Observing Nature's Basic Rule

Those who suffer from despondency, listlessness and tiredness can easily trace the cause of these conditions to constipation.

They are frequently brought about by overwork, overstrain, lack of outdoor exercise or sleep, or improper food, but more frequently by the non-observance of nature's basic rule—regular thorough bowel elimination.

Poisons from waste matter left behind are picked up by the blood and absorbed by the system, weakening the nerves and lowering the vitality.

Nujol, the scientific internal lubricant, corrects constipation in nature's own way by augmenting the supply of nature's lubricant.

Nujol by softening the waste matter thus permits thorough and regular elimination without overtaxing the intestinal muscles. It is gentle, safe and natural in its action, and can be taken for any length of time without any ill effect.

Ask your druggist for Nujol today and remember—look for the name "Nujol" in red on each bottle, label and package.

TARIFF BOARD WILL DEAL WITH STEEL INDUSTRY

Ottawa—The tariff advisory board commenced its work by hearing the application of two Canadian steel companies which asked for more tariff protection, as well as on argument in reply made by R. J. Dunchman, who announced that he represented George Spence, a farmer of Maple Creek Bank, and a consumer of steel products. Mr. Spence is the Liberal member of parliament from the constituency of Maple Creek

The sessions was in the nature of a preliminary hearing which is to be followed by an inquiry into the steel industry in Canada which will continue over a period of several months. The tariff board will have the assistance of the technical staffs of several government departments. Shortly a questionnaire will be issued to the various companies which will be a basis of the investigation. Hon. Geo. P. Graham made it clear that the board was to be an open forum before which anyone could be heard on the subjects of tariffs

Outstanding in the hearing was the argument of the Algoma Steel Company that the Canadian steel industry was already adequately protected under the existing tariff, by which was meant the tariff as amended the session of parliament. The Algoma Steel argued consequently that further 7½ per cent was enjoyed by automobile manufacturers on several articles of steel was unjustified. The case was presented by Norman Outhwite.

Lloyd George Sticks To Former Opinion

Blames Government For Breaking Off Negotiations Before General Strike

Llandudno, Wales — Mr. Lloyd George, chairman of the Liberal parliamentary party in the House of Commons, defended his attitude towards the general strike, which has been strongly censured by the Earl of Oxford and Asquith, leader of the Liberal party.

Mr Lloyd George charged that the negotiations between the government and the mines leaders had been broken on off because of the strike in the office of the Daily Mail. He said that the trades unions leaders had expected this strike, but that the government refused to negotiate further, although there was still twenty-four hours before the general strike was timed to commence.

"All this doesn't justify the general strike," Mr. Lloyd George said, "but while we are blaming the trades union leaders for their blunders, let us be impartial in our judgment and make our condemnation of the incredible blunders committed by the government."

However much I disapprove of this weapon, I could not work myself up into a pitch of righteous indignation against men who, however mistakenly, however unwisely, however wrongly, were acting from no selfish or discreditable impulse, but were driven to their own livelihood to help their comrades in a desperate plight."

PROTEST FROM HUNGARY HEARD AT GENEVA MEET

Geneva—Feverish conferring of armaments by most of the European countries which contain the germs of new war was alleged by Hungary in a memorandum presented to the preparatory disarmament commission

Hungary also complained with bitterness that, practically disarmed herself, she is surrounded by a group of allied countries possessing vastly superior military forces

By this memorandum, Hungary has placed herself at the side of Germany, which country, through Count Von Bernstorff, already has protested that the Germans have been disarmed, while their neighbors are permitted powerful military forces

The Hungarian memorandum came at a sensation, chiefly because of its strictures against the Little Entente, which is our judgment, amounted to abrogation of treaty regulations whereby Hungary's army was restricted to 35,000 men, a force that the Hungarians consider insufficient to protect them. Hungary insisted armament reduction must be general to be effective, and declared that a plan of such reduction failed to materialize, Europe and the League of Nations would be gravely endangered.

Would Include Union Jack

General Smuts' Suggestion For New South African Flag Opposed

Herzog declared that if the country rejected the Union Jack, but he thought the majority spirit never could be brought about by put ting it on the national flag.

General Jan Christian Smuts, leader of the South African party, pointed out that the people had voted by referendum for flying the Union Jack would only apply on Empire Day

The premier's proposal had supported a resubmission of the old Republican colors and the Union Jack for the prospective flag and they could see no reason to depart from this stand, he declared General Smuts vehemently declared the assertion that the old Republican flag was dead, because it was the flag of the people, he declared, should be met the conclusion of the old flags, but their inclusion, as Great Britain had done in the case of the crosses embodied in the Union Jack.

If "Subscriber," in sending his letter for publication in The Record did not seek his information in the most direct manner, he is at least a believer in the maxim "Shop in your own home town," and it would be better for this town if there were more like him. If we had been able to get in touch with him before last week's paper was issued we could have told him that we had been given the opportunity to quote a price on the printing of the baseball schedules, in competition with Edmonton printers, but, as it was our original idea in the first place and conducted for two seasons for the mutual benefit of the league and ourselves, we preferred to have nothing more to do with it after it was taken out of our hands, and we have not regretted our decision.

A GOOD TOWN

Going the rounds of the newspapers is advice regarding "Simplicity of a Good Town," credited to "unidentified gentlemen." Simplicity is in the strictest paragraphs and is worthy of reproduction as follows:

Put a premium on prosperity into your community by staying with it.

Always greet your neighbors with a grunt or a smile.

Criticize in the spirit of Godspeed. Say a good word if it hurts. Remember that those who belittle our business themselves will do it if given enough rope.

Give your neighbor a right to an opinion as long as he keeps it to himself.

Discuss questions involving your better welfare instead of arguing with them.

Apply the Golden Rule regardless of consequences.

Back up your churches and relative edifications. You will feel better and besides are setting a good example for the young people.

Give the young people plenty of pleasure, but see that you know what they're doing.

Failures reflect on the entire town. See what you can do to keep your neighbors out of the wrong. Don't let him drown.

Let's have more handshakes and more love-at-home interest with a grin will parting. It adds to that day's events.

Let's break the shell and step out. The world is wondering what we are going to do next. Let's show 'em.

Attract The Tourists

It is an economic truism that the imports and exports of a country must balance. That is to say, if a country imports more than it exports it must pay the difference in gold, which means that it sends money out of the country, that is, exports it. This is the balance maintained. On the other hand if a country exports more than it imports then it has to be paid, which means an import of gold. Thus the country whose exports in raw materials natural or primitive, manufactured goods and general merchandise exceed imports of a like character and to whom the importing countries must therefore remit gold in order to balance accounts, can hardly help but prosper and grow wealthy.

There are however what are termed invisible imports. For example Great Britain is obliged to import food and other necessities of life on a huge scale, and if not foreseen it happens that British exports of coal and many factories do not equal these imports in value. Thus the balance of tangible trade is against Great Britain. But this is more than offset by the fact that the tremendous marine of Great Britain in the carrying trade carrying agency in the world and all countries pay tribute to Britain. The earnings of British shipping constitute a great but invisible import and these imports like exports, add to the national income and wealth.

There is another class of imports which operates in the same advantageous way, and one in regard to which Nature has equipped Canada to reap great benefits if the Canadian people make full use of their opportunities. We refer to tourist traffic. A tourist brings at least one thing with him—money. He spends it in travelling and hotel expenses, in items of recreation and pleasure and in purchases in the country visited. Making Canada attractive from the standpoint of the tourist is, therefore, good national business. It will not only draw countless thousands of visitors from other countries, but it will encourage Canadians to spend their vacations in Canada, thus keeping that money at work for and in Canada, and in making them better acquainted with the Dominion and its enormous possibilities.

As already stated, Nature has done its part in richly endowing Canada with some of the finest scenery in the world and by providing the country as a veritable sportsman's paradise. The Canadian climate, both in summer and winter, makes a strong appeal. But these things are not enough in this age. Tourists not only demand these things, and a marked change from the environment in which they live most of the year, but they insist on all modern comforts and conveniences, and go where they can be obtained.

Canada must, therefore, be made a country noted for its good roads for it is to explore any large share of the automobile tourist traffic that will be reached such large proportions. Canada must cater to the needs and tastes of all tourists by cleaning of good hotels, by bungalow camps, attractive summer and winter resorts.

Tourists will go where the greatest beauty be found, the best roads lead and to a cordial welcome and necessary conveniences can be enjoyed. A motorist travelling along a good road can see a great deal of the country. It presents a well kept and clean appearance, streets well treed, an attractive little town and residential lots, both back and front, tidy and with trees, shrubbery, grassy spaces and flowers, and where the hotel, no matter how small, is spotlessly clean and good meals served, will almost certainly stay awhile. But if the town or village is the opposite of these things, it is even more of a certainty that the tourist will hurry right on.

It costs some money to make our prairie cities, towns and villages pleasant and attractive. But it takes more of time and patience than it does real money to transform them as many have been and are being transformed into places of real beauty and restfulness. It is the development of the right type of community public spirit that really counts in the achievement of results.

The securing of a fair share of the greatest tourist traffic of the continent is something that no Canadian city, town or village can afford to neglect. It is trade business, and frequently leads to larger and other-paying business relationships, because many a tourist while on pleasure bent is also keeping an eye open for investment and business opportunities.

And the making of the basic town bright, clean and attractive is in itself paying dividends to all the townspeople in instilled local pride and pleasure at home throughout the whole year.

They Worked a Miracle for Him

He Says Ontario Man of Dodd's Kidney Pills

Mr. H. Austin suffered with backache, headache, and was gradually losing strength.

Coldwater, Ont.—(Special)—"There is no more enthusiastic believer in Dodd's Kidney Pills anywhere than Mr. H. Austin, a well known resident of this town and formerly of Bigelowtown. He writes: "This is to tell you that Kidney Pills worked what they have done for me. I think it is a miracle. I suffered so much with my kidneys and pains in my legs and back. My head ached and, in fact, I seemed to lose my strength. After using six boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills I am now quite well. Thanks to Dodd's Kidney Pills, which I always keep in the house now. I have gained in weight."

Many men suffer periodically with backache and, in middle age approaches, the pain increases in severity. Rest may give temporary relief, but Dodd's Kidney Pills go more than this. They strengthen weak kidneys, and remove the cause of the pain.

Studying Industrial Conditions

Eight Eastern Workingmen Sent To U. K. By London Paper

A unique delegation arrived in New York recently aboard the Carmania. They were eight British workingmen. One was a paperhanger, one a boilermaker, one a blacksmith, one a toolmaker, one a molder, one an ironworker, one a fitter, one a "machine man." They came to the United States for four weeks on invitation of the London Daily Mail, one of Lord Rothermere's papers. They are eight actual workers, not labor leaders, sent to examine working conditions, wages and industrial methods in the United States. The newspaper is paying all their travelling expenses, paying their wives (who remain at home) the men's usual wages, giving the men one hundred dollars each for extra clothes and fifteen dollars a week spending money, and providing each with a five thousand dollar life and accident insurance policy while on the trip.

A Reciprocal Tariff

Canada Would Reduce Duty On Cattle If United States Takes Final Step

Hon. W. H. Motherwell, minister of agriculture, announced in the House of Commons that the Canadian government was prepared to accept a reciprocal tariff on cattle with the United States in the reductions or duties on cattle. Mr. Motherwell said: In the way of a reduction in duty on Canadian cattle we will be met by a corresponding reduction on the Canadian duty against us. We have a duty for beef cattle. That is to the extent of 1½ cents a pound. The duty against us will be met with the removal of a corresponding duty from our tariff against American cattle.

Mr. Motherwell announced that the government this month had passed an order in council authorizing the importation of bounce to take such action as may be necessary in the direction of reducing the Canadian tariff on cattle in the event of the United States making similar reductions

"I feel it a duty as well as a pleasure to tell you what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for me. They have restored me to health, if, indeed, they did not save my life. I was suffering greatly from anaemia. I lost flesh and always felt tired and nervous. At last I grew so weak I had to remain in bed. The doctor did not seem to help me any and I was growing weaker, and my heart was bothering me. At last a friend who called to see me said she had read of a similar case restored by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and urged me to try them. I took the pills but decided to take her advice, as my mother got me a supply of the pills and I began taking them. It was not long before I began to find benefit from the use of the pills, and in less than two months my health was restored. In fact I was in better health than I had ever enjoyed before. I strongly recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to all who are weak and run down, for I feel sure they will not be disappointed."

Owing To Increase In Population World May Soon Be Facing A Very Serious Food Shortage

Soy beans, peanuts and bananas may rank among the world's most important sources of food and the ever-increasing use of soy bean oil in the manufacture of butter substitutes by the United States, is the forecast of Dr. Hammed C. Pennell, head of the department of biology at Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Speaking on "The World's Food Supply In Sources and Preservation," Dr. Pennell revealed that natural scientists, looking 100 years into the future, are already searching the earth for new sources of food and seeking means of conquering the known sources, to assist a shortage in the next century.

It is estimated he said, that the United States with a population of approximately 120,000,000 now produces enough food to feed a population of about 140,000,000. The fact that the world's population has doubled in the past 100 years, he said is an indication of the importance of having no time in finding new sources of foods and using the present supply more effectively.

The first great retrenchment in the world's food supply will come in Europe, Dr. Pennell said, in fact is causing that the present generation may live to see a great proportion of Europe's population hunting in the Arctic and the countries of the Equator, where the coal and some type of native food is found.

Land in the temperate zone now used for cattle raising will in the future be given over to intensive agriculture, Dr. Pennell predicted, as populations and water supply will permit.

Corn will probably in more years ally feed as human food in the future and additional use will be made of grains now also used, he said. Already a palatable food is being made from bananas, while have practically the same nutritive value as potatoes, and have been found use in connection with cereals in supplying carbohydrates, according to the Provost.

Advantages Of Egg Grading

Results in Stronger Demand and in Better Prices

The advantages of egg grading are becoming more apparent every day and it is resulting in rapidly increased per capita consumption. According to officers of the Lethbridge livestock board this increased consumption has amounted to over ten dozen eggs per person in the last five years, and during that period prices have been more uniform and more profitable to producers than ever before. The great deterrent in the way of increased production in the past has been the fact that too often one can found to be good was no criterion of what the next would be. Grading has resulted in a dependable product, thereby increasing the demand and maintaining the price.

May Benefit Agriculture

Discovery Made By Member of Staff of the University of Alberta Is Announced

A discovery which may be of far reaching consequence to practical agriculture and especially to the cultivation of peas, has been made by Leonard Haskins, member of the staff of the University of Alberta, according to announcement in the London Daily Telegraph Working under Professor Gains, of the department of botany at King's College, Cambridge, on the subject of genetics and cytology, Mr. Haskins is said to have established the fact that "almost or false, other" cases are a special form of mutation brought about by a loss of certain chemical known as vitamine or by an interchange of certain portions of them.

It is considered that as a result of Mr. Haskins' discovery the line of research for the total eradication of farmers should be fairly open.

Mr. Haskins is holder of one of the three scholarships offered annually in Canada by the Permanent Royal Commission for the Exhibition of 1851.

Impressed With Canada's Wealth

Resources Worth Working For Says Duchess of Atholl

The Duchess of Atholl, under secretary of state for education, who has returned to London from a tour of Canada is considerably impressed with the natural wealth of the Dominion.

In an interview the duchess said that while Canada was already a great country, the possibilities yet to be developed were such as to fill all the tall sons and daughters of the British empire with pride. She found Canada's farthest north receiving development.

Saving Nitrogen Fertilizer

How Product May Soon Be Placed On Market

Each year 240,000 tons of nitrogen are lost down the sewers of the United States, says Dr. Charles H. Herty, chemist for the farmer of this essential plant food has been taken through the medium of 20,000,000 sewerage discharges into rivers, oceans and streams annually, according to Dr. Herty.

By using a new method of garbage disposal, Mr. Herty said, it will be possible to make a nearly established ranch.

Alberta Sends For Paving Purposes

Definite arrangements for bituminous paving material for highways purposes have again been entered into between the Dominion government and Trinidad Lake Asphalt Company, according to the announcement made last week. The contract will again be performed.

Profitable Lamb Feeding

Illinois Man's Method For Preparing Stock For Market

"Buying right and willing to advantage are only half the battle in profitable lamb feeding," F. H. Lloyd of Sycamore, Ill., says. He fattens 600 lambs a year on his 240-acre farm.

"For the first sixty days it costs little to put on ten pounds of gain per head. The lambs have the run of a cornfield, meadow, pasture and stubble, picking up feed which otherwise would go to waste. At about 60 days I add a handful of barley and a little choice alfalfa hay. If the rainfall is good the lamb feed is supplemented by other feed.

After sixty days I start them up on full feed barley and hay, finding the last six weeks I feed a little corn. Usually they top the market in their best condition at 120 days. They have had half a start while on range pasture.

As a rule I keep lambs about six months, depending upon the market. At this time a 55 pound feeder will weigh about 90 pound for the lambs I feed to butcher. If the buildings, fences and feed bunks are in good repair, and it will probably be made."

Excellent Ranching District

Shipment of Cattle Sent from Mixed North of Edmonton

A large number of cattle were sent from the Fort Fitzgerald country, now rather famous as a ranching district, to Edmonton and Calgary. The cattle were purchased by Messrs. Mead and Lege, by local ranchers, the Fitzgerald Lumber Company, and a number of settlers in the district. The shipment was made by the Alberta Railway and Irrigation Company, and was the largest single shipment of cattle ever made from the district, the number of individual herds used in the contract, showing pulses of prosperity and development, advanced methods of breeding and improved ranch management. Production records in the district, a show that the average herd totals a net income of $2.00 a head, is a fairly good point.

Fox Farming in Manitoba

Fox farming has been made considerable progress in the Brandon district during the past couple of years. Two fairly large fox farms are now established in Brandon, in which a large sum of money has been invested. As a result there is a ready market for the product of the breed is fully recognized. The huge demand for the south continues to affect a scarcity of supply, the high prices and advantageous returns and no doubt it is inevitable that always will be a scarcity of supply. In the government with an aggressive, enlightened policy could reduce and eliminate the cause of the present situation, bring about a reduction of taxation, and enhance trade, and industry, and encouragement to private enterprise.

The Alberta government has a policy of encouraging fox farming and has made many experiments in the matter. Last year 1,000 young foxes were raised on government ranches and sold to ranchers. The government has also established a fox breeding station at Vermilion, where experiments are made and from which pedigree foxes are sold.

Points The Way To A Stronger National Sentiment And A Stronger Canadianism

Adds To Land Values

Alberta May Tax Farmers Paid Which Telephone Wires Are Strung

The Alberta Government has now had a taken on land, good and bad alike, which is the result of clearing and fencing of the land. Where one man has a good farm, another has a poor one, and therefore a stronger Canadianism. There is no pretext and no excuse that does not require united operation and national co-operation in Canada can be effected only through the different sections and different classes striving to understand one another's conditions of life and work, and trying to realize as far as possible one another's point of view. Sir James Aikins' speech displays a disposition to direct every possible means to this end. He finds in the older provinces of Quebec and Ontario inspirations of spirits, visions of hope that as they are realized will bring about the greatness, progress and prosperity of the Dominion, and kindred sentiments, he tells us, are being felt and acted in the minds of young Canadians in Western Canada. Their efforts naturally belong to one's own province, but there must be a willingness to recognize the needs of other provinces and bring them within the scope of liberal consideration. As Sir James says in this connection, "Canada is a land of opportunity and has come a leader in the council of nations known as the British Empire."

To this end something more than the natural growth of population is needed in a country so large as Canada. The natural law of increase must be aided by immigration from other countries. Sir James Aikins has the reservation the people who are allowed to come into Canada from foreign lands shall be subject to careful examination, so as to deplete Canada's tendency to be made a "population exporting country," and other safeguards. Selected young Canadians as home in order to enable fully the great opportunities of the Dominion. The realization of the need is fully recognized. The huge augment to the south continues to affect a scarcity of supply of high prices and advantageous returns and no doubt it is inevitable that always will be a scarcity of supply. In the government with an aggressive, enlightened policy could reduce and eliminate the cause of the present situation, bring about a reduction of taxation, and enhance trade, and industry, and encouragement to private enterprise.

Sir James Aikins, in regard to the political issues of the day, which he discusses in full detail, points out that the future of the world is with Canada, and that there will be certain political issues to be dealt with on a great scale. Canada is a country of great distances, and the problem of transportation is one of the most important. He contended that the Canadian National Railways should be maintained as a national system. Sir James Aikins is entirely out of sympathy with the Maritime claims for assistance. He contended that all parts of the country should be treated alike. The Softly Flared Silhouette

The matron has her "innings" in this season's fashions, for all clothes are extremely simple, and many of the most important details happen to be those with a slenderizing effect. This is true of the model pictured here, developed in one of the small all-over floral crepes. The bodice has a centre front opening with gathers at the shoulders, and is joined to a circular skirt front having an inverted plait. The back is in one piece, fitting at the sides, and has a narrow belt. The sleeves are long and gathered into wrist-bands. No. 1336 is in sizes 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust. JOSEPH'S FIDELITY

Golden Text: Resist them a man did grant in his business: he shall stand before kings. Proverbs 22:29.

Lesson: Genesis 39:1-23

Devotional Reading: Proverbs 1:10-19

Explanations and Comments

Joseph Becomes Household Steward in Egypt. Verses 1-6. A band of ishmaelites brought Joseph down into Egypt. Here he found favor in Potiphar's household and soon was made steward over all his house. Potiphar, a captain of guard (owing to his personal station in life was respected and well favored, verse 6). Joseph was taken into his master's house as a servant instead of being sent into the fields to labor. What a contrast from his life at home as the favorite son of his father and his life five life in the open as a shepherd must have been in the Egyptian palaces home-bred! But Joseph was adaptable. In a short time his ability and trustworthiness a taken of God's providence with him and Potiphar to make him the superintendent of his household, or house steward. Potiphar's confidence in Joseph was so complete that he put everything into Joseph's hands, of which he found The exception was probably due to the selfish lazy of caste in Egyptian eyes (43:34; 46:34).

Joseph Tempted. Verses 7-12. His religious capacity plus charm always makes Joseph

The Lord made all that he did to prosper in his hand. This is a favorite here. Providence works from with-out. Joseph as we saw within-out inward God before circumstances If you are living right you are in the hands of the God always, and under His guidance you have a quieter eye and a steadier hand for the adjustments of life. Prosperity inevitable follows (B. C. Gibbs).

A Health Item Of Interest

A New and Effective Method of Promoting Health

It will be good news to our readers that they now have available a most effective means of promoting health in this way by eliminating the disease that are transmitted by flies and mosquitoes. Fly, the remarkable insecticide which has been overforced by the Standard Oil Company of N.J. is now obtainable in Canada at almost every store. Hardware store or grocery store.

For years the research laboratories of the Standard Oil Company of N.J. were engaged in the production of a fly insecticide that would be clean, safe and easy to use.

At last their expert entomologists and chemists succeeded in perfecting a thoroughly scientific product superior to the old fashioned stilling insects, in that it kills all of them that come anywhere in the neighborhood of the application of the spray, and that is very quick and sure in its action.

Having found this wonderful answer to the insecticide problems, they called it "Flit," and under this name have attained a huge sale in the United States, and is in fact widely recognized as a name to insure health. Some of these qualities which make it sure death, not only to flies and mosquitoes, but also to roaches, bed bugs and roaches. This wonderful product is now on sale in all parts of Canada.

Sprayed into cracks and crevices where insects hide and breed, Flit destroys both the insects and their eggs. An added advantage is that Flit will not stain the most delicate fabrics. This has been proved by extensive tests.

THERAPIONE

HAS CONFIDENCE THAT MERCHANT MARINE WILL PAY

Ottawa.—"I am very fair from regarding the Canadian Government Merchant Marine, as it is sometimes lightly and ridiculously called 'a white elephant'," Sir Henry Thornton said in reply to a question before the railway committee of the house.

He has hoped that with caution in its management, diligence, economy, and due regard to pushing its business the merchant marine would be able in future years to show a substantial profit on its operation, although it would not, as hoped for many years to come, be able to return interest on the amount of money the ships cost.

For the first five months of this year," Sir Henry said, "the C.N.R. had an operating profit of $42,000. This is the first time of any postwar period that it has been able to show a substantial profit."

He added this was a pleasant indication but only for the government ships, but also showed an improvement in international trade which was beginning to get back into its stride.

With regard to the Canada British West Indies trade," said Sir Henry, "it does offer considerable promise We will be in a better position for getting in early The next ten years will be profitable to whoever goes into it and to Canada.

Says China Resents Foreign Interference

Geneva Representative Becomes Excited At Meeting of Opium Commission

Geneva.—China is sick to death over foreign interference in her domestic affairs.

Mr Chu, the Chinese minister to Italy made this declaration during a tempestuous session of the permanent opium commission. He was in connection with the British delegate, Sir Malcolm Delevigne.

Sir Malcolm had criticized the importation of morphine into China.

He talked of the readiness of the Chinese to make war on Great Britain.

"If you can find a Chinese who is not anti-foreign did not anti-British, I'll say he is not a good Chinese," exclaimed the minister.

The word battle became so heated that M. Bourgeois, president of the commission, was obliged to adjourn the session.

Many Injured In Gas Main Explosion

Week Soon Given As Cause Of Accident in Los Angeles

Los Angeles, Calif.—Nine persons were injured, some seriously, when a sixteen-inch gas main exploded in the crowded east side of the city.

With a roar that shook ripped a gaping hole in the pavement 100 feet long and 15 feet wide, and piled the remains of three buildings into a, dusty, smoldering heap.

Six pleasure cars and three trucks, which were nearby, were lifted high into the air and dropped, demolished and burning, into the great hole.

Damage in excess of $250,000 was estimated by police. It is believed, however, that losses will exceed that figure.

A week soon in the big main was given as the cause of the blast.

Protest From Livestock Board

Open Letter Is Sent To the Minister of Agriculture

Winnipeg.—The Live Stock Board of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange has sent an open letter to Hon. W. R. Motherwell, minister of agriculture in connection to what is termed to the better "propaganda" published to the effect that the livestock exchanges regulations on the market means that "are supposed to the marketing of co-operative shipments of livestock and the pooling of livestock."

The letter points out that the exchange had wired the minister asking if he had been correctly quoted in recent interviews and that the following reply had been received from Mr Motherwell:

"Quite no formal intention or matter referred to, but did desire to attention of press mean that co-operative marketing in west had now become an general and popular that at present stockyards regulations did not permit farmers pooling their interests sales and prevented them from doing so. I thought, and probably would, be desirable to change such regulations.

The letter says the exchange "would be pleased to be advised by you just what regulations oppose the matters the co-operative livestock or the pooling or investors."

The letter points out that practically all exchanges in the world operate under the same regulations, that if there are any regulations prohibiting the provinces named, that the statement would avail to consider such good business reasons." In regard to the latter it is stated that such regulations would affect all the co-operative firms operating on the Winnipeg exchange.

Tidal Wave In Burma

Death Toll Has Reached a Total Of 2,000

Huge property loss has been suffered in the districts visited by the storm, by the gigantic death dealing gale. Residents fled hurriedly from their homes in a desperate but often vain effort to escape the pursuing death, and they left their personal effects behind.

ALBERTA SCHOOL QUESTION GOES TO SUPREME COURT

Ottawa.—Hon. Ernest Lapointe, minister of justice, announced in the house that the department of justice had in hand reference of the Alberta school question to the Supreme Court of Canada.

"I believe," said Mr. Lapointe "that this solution is fair to all parties and I earnestly hope that this delicate question will in this way be settled definitely and removed forever from the field of controversy."

Mr Lapointe said the amendment made by the legislature of Alberta to the school act repealed in the natural resources bill suggested that the laws of the province might differ from, or be in conflict with section 17 of the Alberta Act. Otherwise, the amendment would be useless and futile. The Alberta Act had stated as the condition of the province for 21 years. "We cannot directly or indirectly, even in a tacit manner, acknowledge that the validity might be subject to question," added Mr. Lapointe However, the Dominion Government was prepared to take immediate steps to refer the case to the Supreme Court. "We will cheerfully submit the act and support its validity and are opportunity to those who question it to present their views," Mr Lapointe said.

SERIOUS SPLIT IN LIBERAL PARTY IN GREAT BRITAIN

London.—That the Liberal party of Great Britain has been completely rent asunder and that all political association between the Earl of Oxford and Asquith, leader of the party, and David Lloyd George, its parliamentary chairman has been irrevocably ended is admitted by the Liberals themselves, no matter to which leader they are adhering

Pending further developments following lottery from the Earl of Oxford and his supporters, it is assumed that the Liberals in parliament will form into two groups and act independently of each other

The National Liberal Federation, the main organization of the party, will meet the week after next. The question of party leadership is expected to dominate all other business. It is regarded that the federation will be asked to vote confidence in the Earl of Oxford.

The Daily News says nothing now can save Liberalism but action by the Liberal party. The daily Chronicle confesses more achieve its salvation

No Action On Cattle Tariff

U. S. Legislation Not Possible Before Next Congress Meets

Washington.—Talk here in reference to the cattle tariff growing out of Hon. W. R. Motherwell's statement to the House of Commons at Ottawa, is that there is no likelihood of any change in the present situation in the near future. It is pointed out no legislation is possible before the next extraordinary session will be elected next November, but will not meet in regular session for a year and a half

So far as the feasible tariff is concerned officials of the tariff commission point out there is nothing formal before them on account of which the there has been agitation by some livestock interests on the side to let down the bars to Canadian cattle. It is said that the Canadian livestock interests are fighting the proposition. With a conversional number who do not want the agricultural situation in the middle west, northwest and south manufactury there is little or no prospect, it is felt here, for opening up the cattle tariff question.

The King's birthday not being a general holiday tennis players were unable to turn out in large numbers for the tournament last Thursday. There were outlisted, however, to keep the courts occupied all afternoon and evening, though it was decided to call off the match for points between ladies' chosen by the president and vice-president. Tea was provided by the ladies and served during the afternoon.

Strange things happen in the country at times. A mosquito was captured in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Barney Corcoran, Coppice Hill, last New Year's Day, and from the same farm two monstrous eggs were brought in a couple of days ago for the editor to look at. (Not to eat.) They each weighed 4¼ ounces and measured 6¼x3½ inches and 6¾x3½ inches respectively. They are at present on view in the window of Carmichael's hardware store.

Reasons Why the U.F.A. Government Should be Returned

The main concern of the Province is that of administration. Public Health, Maintenance of Law and Order, Transportation, Education, Industrial and Agricultural Welfare, are among the principle functions of the Government of Alberta.

Administration and legislation can be best handled by a non-party government.

The U.F.A. system of Government is one of co-operation with other representatives in the interests of the Province. The Party system is one of opposition.

The party system is organized from the top down, the U.F.A. system is organized from the bottom up. Under the U.F.A. system the power is with the people. It is not contended that the new system is perfect, but it is a big step in advance.

The political parties in Alberta are subject to dictation from their respective headquarters in Ottawa. The U.F.A. representatives are responsible only to the people of Alberta. Recent events have proved the necessity of having a Government in Alberta not subject to outside dictation.

All over the world the party system is breaking down.

The Alberta Government is not a class Government. It has always been prepared to co-operate with representatives of all interests elected to the Legislature.

Your only choice in this election is between the U. F. A. system of Democratic Government and the party system. There is no alternative.

"In the wake of the party system had followed corruption."
—J. T. Shaw, Nov. 1921.

Capt. J. T. Shaw's MANIFESTO

1. Immediate examination of our provincial taxation system and adjustment on sound principles of taxing powers between the province and the municipalities.

2. Decentralization as far as practicable in the services of the government, so as to secure more efficient service at less cost.

3. An immediate and long overdue reduction in taxation with special tax adjustments for sub-humid areas not suitable to intensive production.

4. A serious and determined effort to make expenditure balance income every year, not every pre-election year only, as at present.

5. The budgeting of an adequate sum every year, on the sinking fund principle to effect the retirement of our public debt within a reasonable time.

6. Realizing the primary importance of the agricultural industry, the Liberal party pledges itself to assist that industry in every reasonable way, by ensuring that co-operative marketing enterprises get a square deal, secure effective distribution and from all pagisan influence and all discrimination; by the provision of adequate facilities for marketing the farmers' produce, by establishing, in close co-operation with the Dominion government, a system of rural credits based on sound economic principles, by vigorous demand before the Railway Commission for needed reductions in railway and express rates and for the elimination of discriminatory freight rates, and by jealously guarding the farmers interests in the western route, not only, by zealous watching but also by proper representation.

7. The Liberal party undertakes to inspire a real leadership in educational affairs and will be prepared to make more liberal financial provision for that essential service. Also will use every endeavour to have the federal government not only continue but increase its grants for technical education. In addition there must be a closer co-ordination of the agricultural work undertaken by the university and agricultural and other schools in the province.

8. The Liberal party pledges itself to encourage an expansion in the hospital and nursing service of the province in order to promote the highest standard of public health.

9. The Liberal party has assisted in every possible way to secure the return to the province of its natural resources. This should soon be realized. If favoured with public confidence the Liberal party proposes to undertake the prompt and efficient development of these resources in the public interest along sound business lines.

10. When entrusted with office the Liberal party will engage a small body of experts to examine the sources of power in the province for the purpose of evolving if possible a practical power scheme to supply cheap power to our communities for industrial and agricultural purposes.

11. The Liberal party offers a redistribution according to a definite plan on the principle of representation by population, paying however, due regard to the more sparsely settled portions, geographical area and community of interest; it being understood that such redistribution will substantially reduce the number of provincial ridings.

12. The Liberal party proposes to encourage a policy of co-operative effort of all classes and their representatives in the interests of democratic legislation.

13. The Liberal party strongly favors and approves of a co-operative effort between the Dominion and Provincial governments for the purpose of securing old age pensions. The plan which has received second reading in the House of Commons is approved.

14. The Liberal party is responsible for every advance made in securing to women a larger measure of equality in political and economic matters. That policy must be continued until in every practicable way, women enjoy the fullest equality with men.

15. The Liberal party offers to the electors a policy of constructive effort and of action, and a government "of all the people, by all the people and for all the people."

Could Not Remember Wife's Christian Name

Elderly Former Had Never Used It in Addressing Her

In a certain part of this district it is uncommon for a man to address his wife by her baptismal name in conversation, or when Thomas Hall the local correspondent told the following story it was considered very odd indeed by a lumber and explained that he used to make his will. The lumber man put his fountain pen, and prepared to execute the instrument. "I leave all my house to my wife," he farmer said. "What is your wife Christian name?" asked the lumber making a note of the bequest. The farmer scratched his head, thought hard for several seconds and then said: "I don't know what it is, but I'll ask her." He went to the door of the house and called out: "Mary, what's your name?" "What's your own Christian name?" asked the lumber. "Why, you old fool," replied the farmer, "you've been living with me for thirty years." "What's your wife Christian name?" asked the lumber making a note of the bequest. The farmer scratched his head, thought hard for several seconds and then said: "I don't know what it is, but I'll ask her." He went to the door of the house and called out: "Mary, what's your name?"

POLITICIANS BUSY IN THIS CONSTITUENCY

(By Special Correspondent)

The political pot is boiling merrily in the Victoria constituency. All five candidates are working overtime and all are concentrating on the eastern division of the constituency, it being generally conceded that the west is solid behind the U.F.A. candidate, Mr. R. Hennig. The Liberal candidate, Mr. F. A. Walker and Mr. Wm. Pytlypow, are not appearing to the electors on the record of the Liberal party, but are using the personal and racial equation.

Mr. Walker says, "Vote for your good old friend, Frank, the only English-speaking candidate," while Mr. Pytlypow says, "Vote for me, I am a Ukrainian." The U.F.A. candidate, Mr. Hennig, is appealing to the electors on his record as a man and on the record of the U.F.A. government. The Independent candidate, Mr. Hosey, is a negligible quantity and is reported to be getting cold feet.

So far the honors appear to be with the U.F.A. candidate Mr Hennig is being enthusiastically received wherever he goes and is making a fine impression on the people.

Up to the fall of 1923 the Sutherland station has shipped, since its inception, over 17,000,000 trees. For 1924 the total was 2,000,500, while in 1925 it was about the same number. This year 3,555,000 trees have been ordered.

Progress Of The C. N. R.

The most entertaining reading matter to be had before the people of Canada for many years was that relating to the complete operating results of the Canadian National Railways for the year 1925, supplemented a few weeks later by the statement made to Parliament by Hon. J. A. Dunning, the new Minister of Railways. The Canadian National Railways, and its predecessors in the various separate lines which now constitute the National system, have for so long been a financial burden on the Canadian taxpayer, that it is a distinct pleasure to note the really splendid showing of the system last year, and the further betterments already reported for 1926.

The net earnings of the Canadian National last year were nearly double those of 1921, being $22,264,411 as compared with $17,214,351. This substantial betterment was brought about in two ways, by an increase of nearly ten millions dollars in operating revenues, and a decrease of over five and one-half millions in operating expenses. Net earnings in 1925 were twelve times what they were in 1922.

Supplementing this annual statement for 1925, Mr. Dunning was able to inform Parliament that for the first four months of 1926, net earnings of the Canadian National amounted to $9,649,317, a record for any similar period in the history of the amalgamated system, and the Minister was therefore in the happy position of being able to say that "given a reasonably good harvest and freedom from traffic losses due to labor difficulties it may be possible for the National Railways to pay this year their entire interest charges due the public."

That is to say, if present conditions are maintained, and the promise of the 1926 crop realized, the Canadian people this year will not be called upon to make good any deficit out of taxes.

For the first time, too, the Canadian Government ships, now operated by the Canadian National management, showed an operating profit during the first four months of 1926. The National Railways are carrying cargoes to the ships, and the ships are bringing traffic to the railway

Sometimes operating betterments are shown by cutting down expenditures in the process of needed equipment and in maintaining a railway fully up to standard in the case of the Canadian National, however, it is satisfactory to learn that this is not the case On the contrary, the physical condition of the system has been steadily improved and better, not less satisfactory, service provided

As pointed out in a recent article, it was this improvement in Canadian National Railways which was an important factor in enabling the Finance Minister in his recent budget to lower the Income Tax, return to two-cent postage, wipe out the receipt tax, and reduce the Customs duties on certain types of Canada enjoy a measure of tax relief because of the success being achieved by Sir Henry Thornton and his co-workers in the management of the Canadian National

If the expectations of Sir Henry and Mr. Dunning are realized this year—and present indications are that they will be—then further taxation relief may be looked for, or, as an alternative, a start made in the direction of reducing the enormous war debt which the Dominion now has to carry. Either step, of course, would mean a further reduction in the financial burden and obligations of the Canadian people

Finally, it is a matter of particular national gratification that this steady and even rapid improvement in the Canadian National has been brought about without doing any injury whatever to Canada's other great national railway, the Canadian Pacific. The C.P.R. also reported a very successful year in 1925, far better than was expected during the earlier months of that year, and this far in 1926 it continues to further improve and strengthen its position. Much as Canadians desire to see the Canadian National prosper and more than pay its way, they are equally desirous of seeing the C.P.R. grow and prosper. There is no wish to advance the welfare of one system at the expense of the other. Both are national systems in the true meaning of the term, and both can and are rendering services of immense value to the Dominion

With increasing immigration, a general renewal in all lines of industry and commerce, and given a good crop throughout the country this year, the future of Canada's railways is encouraging

Edmonton Exhibition to Have a Novel Attraction This Year

Hon. Frank Oliver will open Edmonton's exhibition this year July 12. The board of management felt that it was particularly fitting that this honor should fall to Mr. Oliver in view of the fact that this year marks the 31st anniversary of the creating of the province of Alberta with the early history of which he had so much to do.

The 53rd Timers' Association, 800 strong, is taking particular interest in the historic parade, which is the exhibition's method of marking the anniversary and has named the original building of the Bulletin Edmonton's first paper, to a place beside their club house on the exhibition grounds. The pageant will be officially known as "The Coming of Age," and will have 15 episodes.

University Of Saskatchewan Is Carrying On Valuable Work In Extending Scientific Knowledge

President Walter Murray at the Toronto convocation of the University of Saskatchewan announced that the province had decided to use its share of the surplus of Wheat Pool operations, handled by the Federal Government during the war, to establish an agricultural research foundation. The income from the fund will be some $12,000 a year, which sum will be administered by a board of trustees for special research in plant and animal diseases, dairying, and also for scholarships says the Manitoba Free Press.

This action of the Saskatchewan Legislature is in line with its record as regards research at the University For several years an annual grant of $15,000 has been voted to this end. Acting under this grant investigations have been carried on in animal diseases and in plant breeding in home construction, in seeking out types of corn suitable for Southern Saskatchewan and in chemical and physical researches among these latter was an important study into the cause of down in rust, and the discovery that the Carbon tetrachloride promise that the Canada Linseed Company and the Dominion Research Council have soon requested to grant

So well has the research department developed that it was necessary to add a department of poultry husbandry be established. Professor Dubuy, of the University of Manitoba, has accepted the appointment to this department

Four reports on soil surveys have been issued and two more are in preparation Evidently Provincial reports have not been allowed to waste their information on the desert air of university files, for the farming interests and the live companies have petitioned the university authorities that these surveys be accelerated Perhaps this fact is a coincidence, as the interests of the Provincial Government in university research, in showing the close accord between the province and the university

On the universities side it will be noted that the annual grants chosen by the province have been generously added to Saskatchewan and not concerned with the ravages of the boom By In Alberta Trips, apparently not and cannot know community boundaries, but it may be no true science and yet begin none.

The criticism might be levelled that all of this is applied science and that if it is plain pure science, the university should also devote a portion of its time, talent and income to increase the world store of knowledge for its own science for its own sake. Dr. Murray claims that this phase is not neglected and that moreover the feeling for research has quickened the intellectual life of every department of the university, students and faculty alike. From this quickening can come a ultimate power in human achievements, creative work.

Trees On the Prairies

Nearly Three and a Half Million Trees Dropped in a Week This Year From Sutherland

The staff of the Dominion forestry farm at Indian Head, Sask., have been busy shipping baby trees destined to become pleasant groves of shelter in nearly 2,000 places in the Canadian prairie provinces—Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta

The demand for this free service afforded by the Canadian Government department of agriculture fluctuates with the years, according to farming conditions and settlers' movements Up to the fall of 1923 the Sutherland station had shipped since its inception, over 15,000,000 trees For 1924 the total was over 2,000,000, while in 1925 it was about the same number This year 3,355,000 were shipped.

Marketing Costs

Farmers' Returns From Canadian and New Zealand Cheese

Investigations by the dairy and poultry storage branch of the department of agriculture at Ottawa into the making and marketing costs of Canadian and New Zealand cheese, have brought out the fact that the Canadian dairy farmer fares much better than his antipodean competitors. While the average price received for Canadian cheese was but little more than one-half cent per pound above New Zealand, the Canadian milk producer received about 11¼ per cent more of the selling price on the British market than the New Zealand farmer In other words Canadian farmers who produced milk for export cheese, received 65.22 per cent of every dollar's worth of the cheese sold at the London quotations, while the New Zealand cowman received only 53.73 cents. These facts are set forth in the report brought in from Great Britain by J. F. Singleton in his report of the investigation points out that the Canadian cheese producer has in the composition between buyers in Montreal and at country cheese boards, and in the case of good prices which sometimes caused values justified by the state of the Old Country markets

Seed Testing Laboratories

Over Fifty Thousand Samples Handled During the Past Year

The seed branch of the Dominion department of agriculture renders an important service in the maintenance of seed testing laboratories at Ottawa, Toronto, Winnipeg and Calgary These laboratories are fully equipped for the analysis of unground feeding stuffs The minister of agriculture in his annual report states that in the year ending March 31st, 1925, over forty thousand samples of seed, feeding stuffs and fertilizers were handled by the laboratories. The seed samples are tested for purity and germination The feeding stuffs and fertilizers are analyzed to ascertain the interpenetration of the composition of these commodities and the cleverness of the manufacturers in their use of words Honest and legitimate trade is protected against unwise and interior goods. A study due to this work for the seed branch the quality of commercial feeding stuffs and fertilizers for sale in Canada is steadily improving.

Symbol Of Armed Force

German Military Uniforms Seen At Peace Conference

German military uniforms were the only military uniforms visible at the conference table at Geneva when experts under the auspices of the League of Nations began their official discussions on May 14 at Geneva, Switzerland. The one great nation theoretically already disarmed, Germany was the one nation to appear with the symbol of armed force. That is evident graphically explains the reason why the voluntary disarmament of nations in Europe is extremely difficult. It is not armament that makes a nation dangerous but an armament complex. The fact that Germany has been forced to destroy most of her weapons of war and has been denied the right to manufacture more does not make her neighbors safe if she thinks in terms of arms and armies. Of all the problems before those experts at Geneva the chief is that of finding a way to secure moral

Cancer Without Operation

Cantassium Treatment Recommended By a Leading British Authority On The Disease

"It is a strange thing that concerning almost every "cure" for cancer which has been advanced by either the medical profession, or by the greatest quack or impostor that ever existed, if that so-called "cure" could be shown in any way to benefit a case of cancer, or in any way to modify the course of the disease in any material, or even be suspected of prolonging life, that on examination, it will be found that, if the drug or nostrum which is lauded be carefully examined and looked into, potassium, in varying quantities and proportions, will be found to unwittingly form one of the main ingredients of such drug or nostrum. Take for instance, the so-called "violet-leaf cure," or the "willow infusion cure" of cancer. These two "cures" are made by procuring violet leaves in large quantities and boiling them down and then drinking the water in which they were boiled. Willow bark and willow leaves have been treated in the same manner, and the water in which they were boiled has been duly drunk with the assertion that cases of cancer have been known to benefit. The above claims, put forward for both "cures," have been supported by members of the profession on many occasions."

"Every quack nostrum prepared by the infusion of any herbs can be shown to contain, all of them, one common product of nature present in all vegetable life—potassium salts."

"No method of treatment yet practised by the "skin-orthodox" among the members of the medical profession but can be shown scientifically to owe its method of action to influencing directly or indirectly the potassium economy, and perhaps, also the economy of the earthy salts of the body."

"There are many in the medical profession who will at once refuse to listen to or attempt any form of treatment other than that recognized and smiled on by the "experts" in Harley St. or rather cancer as it has hitherto existed and been treated."

"There are those in the profession who will attempt the treatment at the earnest request and pressure of a dying man or woman, and only half-heartedly carry it out."

"There are those in the profession who are of an introspective and pessimistic turn of mind who will start by saying it is no good, will honestly believe it is no good, and will therefore prepare themselves to be quite right."

"There are those in the profession, very few thankfully, who won't be bothered and who don't care."

"There are those who take a delight in proving cancer cases but them-selves to be quite wrong."

"There are those in the profession who, with the best intentions in the world, will strive honestly and worry, and fret, and eagerly watch, and become over zealous, and succeed by try ing over the method a fair and just application, and trial."

The late Dr. F. W. Forbes Bond, M.D., Edin., F.R.C.S., Eng., D.P.H., Lond., Civil Surgeon His Majesty's Guards' Hospital, London, and for more than 30 years practising in London as a recognized cancer authority, was the discoverer of what is now known as the cantassium treatment of cancer. The above quotations are taken from his book, "Cancer: The Problem of Its Genesis and Treatment," and in view of the fact that, out of all the many Canadian and American sufferers to whom I freely sent home treatment directions before the press advertorials, published them, I have yet to hear from the first who has not been benefited, I suspect that all who are stricken with this terrible disease of the blood will do well if they satisfy themselves as to which of the above classes, ably defined by Dr. Forbes Bond, their own doctor belongs. By so doing, many a sufferer may avert the antipathetic and unsatisfactory methods of treatment in vogue prior to the finder's priceless discovery. Mr. R. Hennig was home again last Sunday after a strenuous but encouraging week in the north east quarter of the constituency.

We omitted to mention in a recent issue the pleasant gathering which took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. G. Deen, when they were presented, by friends of Beaver Hills and Deep Creek, with two handsome easy chairs.

John W. Barnett of the Alberta Teachers' Alliance blew into the school Tuesday afternoon, on his way north and east to use a little "conciliation ointment."

Political dope out our way: "John and Bill and Jim don't stand a chance, anyway. That leaves only Bert and me, and I know you wouldn't vote for Bert anyway, so you see you'd best best vote for me." Why don't you give us some politics, Frank?

Problem (from Lewis Carroll's Picture Book.) A captive queen and her son and daughter were shut up in the top room of a very high tower. Outside their window was a pulley with a rope round it, and a basket fastened to each end of the rope, of equal weight. They managed to escape with the help of this and a weight they found in the room. It would have been too dangerous for any of them to come down if they weighed over 15 pounds more than the ascending load. But they managed not to weigh less.

The descending load would naturally draw up the other basket.

How did they do it?

The queen weighed 126 pounds, (where!) daughter 105, son 90 and weight 75.

It's an easy one!

Men Returning From Journey Only Greet Male Friends

There is not the Canadian thrill of hubby's homecoming for the wife of the unassuming and inscrutable Arab. The meekish woman, from many accounts with subservient mien, and faces like brothers and fathers and male kin, waits on the cheek and with meven a look at their women's solemnly stalk out of the station.

Though it contains a germ of truth, or expression of one at variation, and hence a smile on the face of the visitor, there is one thing along the 50th millennium call "Arab."

Giant Passenger Plane

Now Under Construction and Will Be Used For Transcontinental Service in U. S

A giant aeroplane multi-motored and carrying sleeping accommodations for thirty five to forty passengers, is now under construction from designs of Anthony H. G Fokker, Dutch aeroplane designer and builder. It was learned on the return of Mr Fokker to New York recently.

The machine is to be used for the transcontinental passenger service between New York and San Francisco

The fuselage of the plane, according to the present design, is built in two sections, the upper section being made over into sleeping berths at night, very similar to the berths now used in sleeping cars of the Pullman Company. The lower section will be equipped with seats as in a railroad parlor car. The plane will be completely heated to insure comfortable passenger conditions in any first class sleeping train. No date has been set for its completion, as several alterations in design have interrupted its building schedule.

Strange, Romantic Love Adventures of the Flapper you know!

THE STORY THUS FAR

Joanna a pretty flapper shop girl is given, by a rich uncle, a million dollars to spend as she wishes, provided she receives benefit from no more than the will may tell her. She chooses to know and be helped by his motives. She becomes a mystery to Mr. Parker Lyle, son and his man Brandon, who is to help her write her first check and tells her that he intends to make love to her. Lured by the undisguised admiration of Brandon, her fiancé, and acquaintance will not help us in her endeavor shopping and "running home happy because of the afternoon of buying long wanted things she finds Brandon, whom she has known as John, her old fashioned sweetheart, waiting for her

CHAPTER VII.

A Shattered Dream

For once Joanna's self-possession was at the loss of the visitor. She stood in the drawing room door. The rugged man, the exhilaration which had wrapped her face as in an aura, had gone out of it. She closed her eyes tightly, the gold of their ever pinched hedges thin, straight lines. She steadied herself with her hand against the newel post. All the doubts, the questions, the mysteries and the stupendous wonders of the day crashed down upon her. A little while before she had revelled in her own beauty, and in the glory of John's surprise, his ecstacies, all the questions he would ask her and she couldn't answer. They would plan; she would be glad with him over every thought of the future either of them could conjure up. There would be no more tempers and insipid quarrels; no more fighting at each other. This time, when he put his arms about her, and kissed her, she wouldn't be restless and wish that he'd take her out into the lights, as other boys did and romp with her instead of the ruthless caller of a year.

That had been a mistake. She had confessed too much. Now she faced the door with him on the other side, and her face was ashen. Her eyes, whose color is rare, also matched it in a pronounced manner, became almost black. Her lips, the color of which had been so recently praised by her admirer, were pale. Her hands clenched and unclenched at her sides. Her chin trembled violently as she tried to control it. Her face to face with the reality that had been so unreal. Her love for unknown lands was in the hands of a man she was ashamed of. She was grateful to him for the trust it gave to her. Foolish or not she had loved her friends and brought an arrogant dimple into her chin. Smiling wistfully she kissed in the doorway. She had incurred injustice, a pose something graceful after the fashion of one of the especially kind managers in the Arabian shop where she had found her gowns, but she forgot to use it.

John, and Brandon had been talking. Brandon had been telling John, easily, lightly, that he was very handsome and graceful, in his full evening clothes. He appeared to be as much at home in the humble running horse parlor as he would have been in a ballroom. Joanna sensed this. John, whom she had never seen in evening clothes, appeared to be ill at ease. She sensed this, too.

Both men gazed at her, silent for a moment, fascinated.

The lithe, slim figured and slim breasted girl, with the deep gold bob and full shadowed Cupid lips, who blushed furiously and wondered what the strange sensation was, was very love ly. It was a full-toned loveliness that still was characteristic of Miss Twenty-seven of the silks. But Brandon's appealing sense estimated quickly the effect that restraints would leave—the restraints that would come naturally to the girl—or that wouldn't come, according to the sort of her.

It was Brandon who spoke first. He moved to her and bowed low, with an exaggerated homage. "There is nothing so beautiful," he murmured, "as the bud that is bursting into a blossom!" He lifted her hand and kissed its slender fingers. Joanna could not help laughing. She'd always laughed, at the movies, when men kissed the hands of women. It seemed such a silly thing to do. But it didn't appear to be silly, with this man, who completely dazed her with his always new gallantries. Each move he made seemed to have the thrill of a kiss in it. She laughed because it was so unexpected and so wholly outside the sentimental anecdotes to which "Miss Twenty-seven" had been accustomed.

Her laughing eyes turned to John. They sobered immediately. John was not coming to her; not coming to take her hand exposure it, and say: "Some looks you've got on, Jo!" or something eloquent, like that. She took her hand from Brandon, who had held it as that her senseless fingers rested on his, and went up to John. When she reached him she realized that he kept his hands in his pockets; that he did not even go through the slight formality she might have expected in the presence of another—an arm thrown around her, a hug and a peek at the lips. He only looked at her, brooding in his eyes.

"They have told you, haven't they John?" she breathed, plaintively. "I

Little Helps For This Week

Pray without ceasing—I Thess. v. 17

More things are wrought by prayer Than this world dreams of. Wherefore, let thy voice Rise like a fountain for me night and day.
For what are men better than sheep or goats,
That nourish a blind life within the brain,
If knowing God, they lift not hands in prayer,
Both for themselves and those who call them friend?
For on the whole round world is every way
Bound by gold chains about the feet of God
—Alfred Tennyson

Prayer is the door forever open between earth and heaven. Sooner than sound can reach a human ear through this lower atmosphere, the longing desire of the spirit rises to the heart of the Eternal Friend. Whether we believe it or not, we are living in the invisible world and our wishes are understood before our words are spoken. Lucy Larcom

ELECTION NOTES

We notice that Mr. Lucas is making prognostications regarding the present election contest. He predicts that Mr. Hennig will be elected by a substantial majority.

There is something very peculiar about all the predictions that are going around. Mr. Meisey says he is sure of a good majority. Mr. Pullinh says there is nothing to it—that he will nose under the wire a winner. Mr. Pylypow says that the election is already won and that he will lead all the others to the winning post by at least two lengths. We tried to get some information from the old grizzled veterans of the battle, but as they just grinned and advised us to wait and see. You, verily, my masters, is a peculiar situation. Personally we pin our colors on the old veteran and predict that he will romp home with the bacon.—Lamont Tribune.

TWENTY-FIFTH ANNIVERSARY OF CONFERENCE OF REFORMED CHURCHES IN CANADA AND JOSEPHBURG CHURCH CELEBRATION

Opening its twenty-fifth annual session informally, at 2 o'clock last Wednesday afternoon, with a forty-five minute address by Rev. Mr. Hoffman, local pastor, on the Social Service and Rural task of the Churches, followed by a spiritual discussion, The Conference of the Reformed Churches in Canada opened formally at 8 p.m. with a splendid address by the Rev. C. D. Maurer, of Winnipeg, vice-president of the Conference. After a formal welcome, extended by the Rev. Paul Schumacher, Ed. Station, who stated the early beginnings of the Reformed Church in Canada, although he characterized the Harlem Mission on Ellis Island, New York with which work he was at that time connected.

The business sessions were continued on Friday. The claims of the various Benevolent funds and individual congregations received respectful attention. The Alumni banquet at 5:30 p.m. was thoroughly enjoyed, as were the short addresses in response to the toasts: "Our School," "Our Students," "Our Cooks," and "Our Clergy," delivered by the students. M. Witmer, F. Hennig, Rev. Sommerlatte, and Mr. Powell. The day was brought to a delightful close by the rendition of the cantata "The Nazarene," by Gabriel, and sung by the choir of the Fort United Church. The soloists, Mrs. Glover, soprano; Mrs. Evans, mezzo-soprano; Mrs. Pocock, contralto; Mr. Markle, tenor; and Rev. Hoffman, bass, were ably and enthusiastically supported by the members of the chorus. Rev. Hoffman occupied the conductor's stand, and the prompt response to the baton on the part of the chorus speaks well for its future. Members of the Conference were entertained in the local congregational offices, and expressed their pleasure at the friendly co-operation of the two local churches.

The business session of the Conference came to a close at noon on Saturday. In the afternoon a new Conference came into being, when on the order of the North-West District Synod of the Reformed Church, Rev. Hoffman, as appointed presiding officer, formally opened what has been named The Edmonton Conference of the Reformed Churches, embracing the Territory of Alberta and B.C., with one charge in the extreme south-west of Saskatchewan. After the usual preliminaries had been dispensed with, Rev. Hoffman was the unanimous choice of the Conference as president. Rev. C. H. Reppert, Stony Plain, Stated Clerk, and Rev. C. J. Weidler, Piapot, Sask., Treasurer.

The Conference will meet in first annual sessions on June 18, next year, at Duff, Sask.

Saturday evening marked the beginning of Josephburg's special celebration to commemorate the 25th anniversary of the local congregation. It was Ladies' night, and addresses on "the work of women in the Christian Church" were delivered by the Revs. Peterheensel, of Winnipeg, and Wiegand, of Grenfell, Sask. Mrs. Wiegand, a former missionary in India, contrasted the task and opportunity of America's womanhood to the sad lot of India's women.

Sunday morning's brightness gave promise of a wonderful day that was to be the climax of the celebration. Nor was it a false promise. At nine o'clock automobiles began to arrive, bringing happy guests from Vegreville, Marwin, Stony Plain, Duffield and Edmonton. Other congregations were sending delegations to help the local congregation celebrate its twenty-fifth birthday fittingly. The sumptuous church was filled for the Sunday School hour at 10 o'clock to hear two splendid addresses by students Witmer and Hennig on the subjects "What's wr-ng with the young folks of today?" and "Faith for young people." Chairs and extra benches were placed for the worshipping congregation at 11 o'clock, which heard the inspiring address given by the Rev. J. Krieger of Tenby, Man.

The afternoon service was of a consolatory nature, addresses being given by Revs. Wiesbrauch, reprec-

Learn a Trade

A striking and highly significant chart has just been issued based on returns made to the Dominion Bureau of Statistics at Ottawa, and one which should cause a sharp lesson to all parents and to thousands of youths and young men.

This chart which is easily understood is in two parts. Part one sets forth the average hourly rate paid eight trades in each of thirteen Canadian cities, while the second part shows the average hourly rate of wages paid labor in hunting trades in these thirteen cities.

It does not make interesting and instructive, does not carry the same lesson to every reader, but it does, the second part of the chart shows that the average hourly wage is higher in Winnipeg than elsewhere in Canada, with Regina second fortune Calgary and Edmonton tied for third place Vancouver fourth and with Toronto, Hamilton, Ottawa, Montreal, St. John Halifax and Quebec following in the order named.

In the first part of the chart mentioned the average hourly rate of wage is in excess of ninety cents including bricklayers, while in Quebec the lowest it is sixty cents.

The second part of the chart shows that the average hourly rate of wages paid taking all these thirteen cities together was as follows: Bricklayers $1.10 plasterers $1.06 stonecutters 97 cents plumbers, 88 cents electricians 80 cents carpenters 74 cents painters, 71 cents laborers, 44 cents. Working these rates out on the basis of an eight hour day we get the following results: Bricklayers $8.80 plasterers $8.48 stonecutters, $7.11, plumbers $7.04 electricians $6.40 carpenters $5.92 painters, $5.68 laborers $3.52.

In other words, the young man whose parents took a sufficiently deep interest in his welfare to see to it that he learned a trade or the boy who as a result of his own ambition and initiative mastered a trade, could earn wages up to three times as great as the one who is not so equipped for life's work.

Nor is this all. The trained workman can usually find employment when the common unskilled laborer has to spend half his time looking for work and frequently without being able to get it or anything better than an odd job now and then. At the present time in several Western cities the building trades are very active and the statement has been made that there is no need for any man to lack employment. Nevertheless, scores are out of employment. Why? Because as the very time when bricklayers, carpenters and other artisans were being imported from other cities to meet the demand, there was a surplus of pick and shovel men for whom no work could be provided.

In modern construction on an large scale, excavations are now dug with steam shovels, cement is mixed by machinery, hoisting is done by machinery, with the result that only a minimum number of laborers is employed. The WORK is done more rapidly and much cheaper, and higher wages can be paid the skilled workmen because of the greater and better results achieved. The unskilled laborer stone suffers

A survey of the work of philanthropic organizations and government and municipal relief bureaus reveals that it is largely to laborers and their families that food and clothing relief have to be provided, while the lists of those placed next in the Employment Offices is almost entirely those who have no qualifications or classification except that of "laborer."

True, the country must have those who will do the rough pick and shovel work the simple but heavy work of carrying and lifting, but this need will always be met out of the ranks of those who lack the mental powers, the necessary application, the force of character, to learn and master a trade. Also when their ranks are swollen out of all proportion by thousands of mentally alert, physically fit men whose parents, or themselves, fail to provide equipment for a start in life, a situation is created which is serious not only for the man himself and his dependents and the country at large. And these men, who ought to be making a real contribution to the welfare of the race, are actually standing blocks in the path of, and a menace to, those ambitious, alert, keen fortune seeking men who, because of luck or proper endeavor, are enlisted for any tasks but those of the laborer.

Parents should not, of course, compel their boys to adopt a trade or follow an occupation against a boy's inclination and desires, but it is one of the duties of parenthood to see that the children are properly equipped for life's struggle and that equipment should include knowledge of some useful occupation, handicraft or trade.

No boy in this country and in this age should be sent forth to face the world unable to do anything but the lowest and cheapest form of manual labor

New Market For Canadian Wheat

Mexican Millers Purchase Portion of Their Requirements Here

According to all indications a gratifying success has attended efforts recently made to induce millers to purchase a portion of the wheat they need from Canada. During 1925 shipments were made through New York brokers and later direct from Canadian exporters through New York. Now shipments are being made through Vancouver via Panama Canal to Vera Cruz and Tampico. This is a new market for Canadian wheat and promises to be an increasing one. In the eleven months ended February, 1926, Mexico took 118,062 bushels of Canadian wheat, this being more than double the quantity taken in the same period ending February, 1924.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

REVIEW: WHAT WE HAVE LEARNED FROM THE BOOK OF GENESIS

Golden Text We know not to them that Love God all things work together for good, even to them that are called according to his purpose Romans 8.28.

Devotional Reading: Hebrews 11 8-22.

Rev. W. H. Bennett in his introduction to the Book of Genesis in The New Century Bible, gives the following exegetical survey of the permanent messages of Genesis:

"The Patriarchs appeal to us, interest and help us, because they are types of classes of men, their adventures were not unfamiliar experiences in the ancient east, and they still stand as vivid pictures and symbols of traits in human life today. There have been and are still many Abrahams who have gone out, not knowing whither they went, in obedience to some dictate of conscience, or some prospect of spiritual advantage, that is interpreted as the call of God; many Jacobs, who have, so to speak, stumbled into the divine Presence, when their only thought was of a heedless flight from the consequences of wrongdoing, folly and sin; many Josephs, too, who have found in humiliating ruin the appointed path to way to honorable service. Such characteristics of fortune or of conduct are not far from any of us, and we are all encouraged by the possibilities of grace suggested by these ancient stories. It is the human, the representative character of these narratives which have preserved them, and procured for them a place in Scripture. Many generations felt that they expressed real experience, and therefore handed them on as their own testimony also to the righteous ness of God."

Muskrat Farming A New Western Industry That Has Made Remarkable Strides

From all indications the new industry of muskrat farming establishment in this land of the popular imagination is a manner in which few newly developed Canadian activities have come, and from the way in which new ventures with possibilities to word out of door occupation are coming to engage in its pursuit there seems every likelihood of its spread to many other branches of the domestic fur farming industry March and slough land, formerly regarded as waste territory, in all sections of the country, is being fenced off and transformed into muskrat farms, either by farmer, adding this sideline to their main activities or by newcomers on acquiring a farm probable and interesting publishing as a whole the returns. There seem evidences that some discussion will be quite shortly during with domestic establishments devoted to the intensive raising of muskrats for sale.

Certain sections of Alberta and British Columbia would seem in particular to be receiving marked attention. In the Lake Creek district of Northern Alberta muskrat farming seems to be taken up quite as extensively as ranching, according to reports received in the muskrat farms. The Columbia-Kootenay Valley, with large tracts adapted to the pursuit, is experiencing a sense that similar interest. A Mr. Swallow cattle rancher, establishing in the Lake Manitoba district of Manitoba parts of which are also well suited to swamp land to turn into a muskrat farm to raise these valuable little animals on a large scale is a profitable sideline to cattle raising

As establishment some pessimistically to be anticipated, evidence that the prospects in the activity are most big a powerful appeal to important and expert interests, and that money, not requiring to be an industry proposed on an over increasingly extensive scale. This is evidenced, for instance in the acquisition at Carvel Lake, Alberta, by the Bruce Farming Company, Ltd., of fifteen quarter sections of land, or a total of 2,400 acres, to be turned into a muskrat ranch. The land has already a thriving muskrat, in the owning Lethbridge Fur Farmers' Association to work out a scheme to the end. Hog Trade Improving

Warning Is Given To Raisers Against Over Feeding

The Montreal branch of the department of agriculture at Ottawa is able to report, in its eighth annual review, covering the year 1925, a general improvement in the market situation compared with 1924, and particularly in the refined prospects for the immediate years coming. Particularly is this true as regards the hog trade, in connection with which, however, it gives warning against over feeding when the feed is plentiful and under feeding when feed is scarce. In other words, to retain our regained standing on the bacon market, there must be uniformity and quality in the product. The [illegible] system of delivery that some [illegible] will be quite shortly during with domestic establishments devoted to the intensive raising of muskrats for sale.

The most modern machinery is used and nearly everything is done automatically. The total rayon production for the last year amounted to a hundred and eighty five million dollars

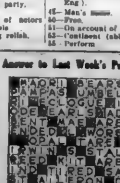
Answer to Last Week's Puzzle



CANADA SHOULD DEVELOP OWN FUEL RESOURCES

Ottawa Recommendations for a national fuel policy of supply Canada's coal consumption from her own mines, was made by Hon H H Harrington, minister of public works and mines in Ottawa, before the special committee of the house investigating the Dominion's anthracite supply.

Chief among the recommendations made by Mr Harrington were

(1) Governmental assistance to secure the erection of coking plants within Canada at points serving large centres of population

(2) The granting of a subvention on maritime coal water borne to Montreal when carried by rail west of Montreal.

(3) Protection to maritime coal from unfair competition by American producers, and (4) Consideration of embodying privileges for Anthracite Fuel for bunker supplies to Canada

"It appears to me essential that in Canada we make use of our coal at the commencement whether or not we can adopt something in the nature of a national fuel policy, the aim and object of which would be to produce within Canada the coal that we consume in the Dominion," he declared. Such a policy should, stated Mr Harrington be adopted

He pointed out that thirty million tons of coal were consumed annually in Canada. Yet, seventeen million tons of this coal were imported

A. J. Creighton and H. H. McWilliams, Owen Sound, recommended a rail and lake haul from the head of the lakes to Alberta coal in preference to an all rail haul in box cars. They suggested the briquetting of screen coal at the mines, and the establishment of melting plants at well populated centres

Canadian Tariff Should Be On Same Basis As U. S.

Ottawa Representatives of the Canadian cattle industry, including members of the Canadian Meat Council, appeared before a subcommittee of the commons House of Commons agriculture committee.

The subcommittee expects to consider the cattle question, reported that a recommendation that the Canadian customs tariff against United States should be placed on the same parallel basis as the United States tariff on Canadian cattle would be given favorable consideration if the United States tariff is removed or reduced in the same extent.

The sub committee also recommended that Canada's minister to Washington be appointed at once and that the Canadian Government should enter into negotiations with the United States looking to the early removal of the embargo on cattle and to a more liberal basis of trade between the two countries at present.

Britishers Buy U. S. Fruit

Imports of Apples Larger Than From Other Countries

London—Englishmen eat a larger proportion of apples from the United States than from any other country according to figures published by the Imperial Economic Committee. It estimates the average consumption in the United Kingdom at two apples per head. Of these 18 came from the United States, 2½ from the United Kingdom, 19 from Canada, and eight from Australia and New Zealand.

But of 70 oranges each Englishman ate that year only one came from the United States.

The committee estimates almost one-third of the annual payment on debt to the United States of $110,000,000 was paid in 1924 for American fruit.

Canadian Tariff Should Be On Same Basis As U. S.

Ottawa Representatives of the Canadian cattle industry, including members of the Canadian Meat Council, appeared before a subcommittee of the commons House of Commons agriculture committee.

The subcommittee expects to consider the cattle question, reported that a recommendation that the Canadian customs tariff against United States should be placed on the same parallel basis as the United States tariff on Canadian cattle would be given favorable consideration if the United States tariff is removed or reduced in the same extent.

The sub committee also recommended that Canada's minister to Washington be appointed at once and that the Canadian Government should enter into negotiations with the United States looking to the early removal of the embargo on cattle and to a more liberal basis of trade between the two countries at present.

Britishers Buy U. S. Fruit

Imports of Apples Larger Than From Other Countries

London—Englishmen eat a larger proportion of apples from the United States than from any other country according to figures published by the Imperial Economic Committee. It estimates the average consumption in the United Kingdom at two apples per head. Of these 18 came from the United States, 2½ from the United Kingdom, 19 from Canada, and eight from Australia and New Zealand.

But of 70 oranges each Englishman ate that year only one came from the United States.

The committee estimates almost one-third of the annual payment on debt to the United States of $110,000,000 was paid in 1924 for American fruit.

Searching For Art Collection

Valuable Paintings and Jewels Have Disappeared in San Francisco

San Francisco—The Russian department of the Bank of Italy has begun a search for a collection of paintings, bronzes and precious stones valued at $500,000, supposed to have been stored in the bank's vault three years ago. The collection was assembled in the far east by the late Ivan Leonidovich Kalmykoff, court artist to the Czar of Russia

The search was instigated at the request of Mrs. Kalitska L. Meyer, of Shanghai, sister of Kalmykov, one of numerous claimants to the property. The bank is unable to find any record of when the collection was stored, although Kalmykov exhibited it here three years ago.

Kalmykov died here in 1925 and is supposed to have left a will providing for the return of the collection to Russia, who when the United States recognized that government.

Professor Coviello, born in Italy, but a resident in England for more than 50 years, arrived in New York two weeks ago enroute to visit his son, Howard Coviello, a rancher in Saskatchewan. He was to have left for Canada this week.

BALDWIN'S PLAN IS OPPOSED BY LABOR PARTY

London.—The Labor party today voted to oppose the proposals outlined by Premier Baldwin in the House of Commons regarding reorganization of the coal industry.

The miners, at a special meeting planned soon by former premier Macdonald, voted unanimously for a resolution declaring that the government's declaration of policy on the mining crisis regarding the hours of wages, was a violation of the recommendations made in the report of the royal commission.

The resolution also stated that the government's policy was inadequate to meet the problems of the industry It was considered impossible to increase the hours of labor without increasing the output, and that the proposal to increase the hours would lead to a reduction in the rate of wages.

Grain Act Bill To Be Dealt With By Committee

Ottawa.—The act to amend the Canada Grain Act, which was introduced in the House of Commons by Milton Campbell, Progressive, Macdonald-Bank, was referred to the committee on banking and commerce by a vote. The bill, which has passed all stages in the house, proposes to give the farmer authority to designate the terminal elevators to which he desires his grain to be shipped, and also, in another clause, makes Moose Jaw Bank, an order point for grain shipments

The second reading of the act to amend the Grain Act was moved in the senate by Hon. W. B. Willoughby. Mr. Willoughby traced the history of the co-operative elevator movement in Saskatchewan and the development of the wheat pool. He claimed that the grain commission had intended to give the right to the farmer to designate the terminal elevator to which he wishes his wheat shipped. Farmers complained that in many private elevators there was mixing of grain from which he received no benefit nor did he participate in the profit, arising from error in weights. Senator Willoughby said that this bill had been evolved on the ground it would reduce to a minimum the loss in terminal elevators. He claimed there was no such object or intent in the bill.

Senator W. Ross, Conservative leader in the senate, thought a measure of this importance should be sent to the banking and commerce committee, where evidence, both from the wheat pool and the elevator interests could be given. Senator Willoughby said in a special committee to be elected, and was supported in this by Senator Landrindi. Sir George Foster left that to need, that a bill on a special committee would be to arouse skepticism and distrust, and urged that the banking and commerce committee be selected. This was done on the motion of Senator Ross.

esting the Reformed Conference, Wedmon, representing the Moravian Church, Alderwood, of the Bible Society, and Pusnch, representing the United Church. Standing room was almost at a premium for this service. The Biblical spectacle "King Saul," presented by the young folks of the congregation in the evening, brought the day and the celebration to a formal close. The largest crowd of the week was present for this closing event, many being disappointed in not being able to get within the doors of the church. More than a hundred motor cars were counted parked in the churchyard and along the road side. As in Friday night's program, the principals were given splendid support by the large chorus, made up of soldiers, ladies-in-waiting and court damsels. The rich costuming, vivid choruses and dramatic dialogue carried the large audience back to the Oriental court of Israel's first king. Mr. Fritz Nolte, in the principal role as Saul, gave a splendid portrayal of the headstrong king. Rev. and Mrs. Hoffman, as the lovers David and Michal, Edward Mohr, as the mild mannered Jonathan, Mrs. Frank Mohr as the Witch of Endor, Emma Kulak in the double role of Abigail and Mistering Angst, Rudolph Rippel, as the Messenger, and Edmond Hennig, as the Prophet Samuel, contributed their bit to the success of the presentation.

Not only was the soul food offered throughout the week in ample quantities, the ladies of the congregation saw to it that the physical also came into its own. Noonday and evening meals were served in the basement of the church each day. On Sunday over 700 meals were served on tables that fairly groaned beneath their load. Open-hearted hospitality is a trait fairly common in western Canada, and the ladies of this church gave ample proof of it.

Josephburg Church is happy because of this successful celebration and happy and proud in the new equipment attained through the remodelling of its church. The community may well be proud of this church home, which can hardly be equalled in the rural parts of Alberta.

VOTE "1" FOR R. HENNIG

In voting for a candidate an elector should exercise the same care as he would in engaging a manager for his business.

The main question should be "What are his qualifications, and his record?" You judge a prospective employee, not on what he promises to do, but what he has done.

The Liberals have a record of sixteen years of office in this Province. This record they do not, and cannot defend. The public, however, has not forgotten it.

The Conservatives have no record at all. Their return, as that of the Liberals, would mean a return to the party system, and all that it implies.

The U.F.A. ask for your vote on June 28 on their record for the past five years. They offer a continuation of sound business administration for the benefit of the people of Alberta as a whole, and co-operation in place of party division.

The only argument Liberals and Conservatives offer is that of promises. The Government's argument is performance.

During the past five years, the cost of administration has been reduced 14 per cent., the Civil Service has been transferred from a basis of patronage to a basis of merit, a real highway policy has been put into effect, health and education services have been increased, etc. Efficiency in much greater in every department of government as a result of transference from a basis of party favoritism to one of business administration.

The Government have had to face the opposition of the daily press, they have had to shoulder the legacies of railways, irrigation schemes, cow bill, seed and feed relief payments, etc., responsible for our present debt. They have had to face the inaction of the Liberal Government in Ottawa with regard to natural resources railway and colonization responsibility, provincial control of power and mineral development, etc. But despite these handicaps they have made remarkable progress.

Note the improvement since 1921.

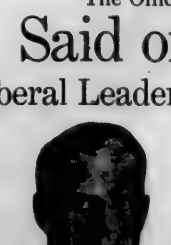
Here Is What "The U.F.A."

The Official Organ For the Province

Said of Capt. Shaw,

Liberal Leader, As Late As Sept. 15, 1925



CAPT. J. T. SHAW

CAPTAIN SHAW

"The announcement that Captain Shaw, who has represented West Calgary in the House of Commons as an Independent member for the past four years, will not be a candidate in the forthcoming election will be received with the deepest regret, not only in all parts of Alberta, but among forward-looking people throughout the Dominion.

"Capt. Shaw's withdrawal from public life would be a very serious loss to Canada. He made his mark in the last parliament, and he is recognized today as a parliamentarian of independent spirit and of outstanding ability and courage. He is one of a still small group of men in the federal sphere who have been paving the way for a real advance from the petty personal politics of today, to constructive and genuinely progressive statesmanship. His early return to public life will be hoped for by all who are familiar with his record of service in the parliament recently dissolved.

"Since the announcement of Mr. Shaw's intention not to be a candidate very great pressure has been brought to bear upon him in Calgary in the hope that he will reconsider his position. We trust he may yet decide to allow his name to go before the electors on October 29th."

MARK YOUR BALLOT THROUGH

Do not be satisfied by marking No. 1 for your own party, but mark your second choice of the other two candidates.

MARKING YOUR SECOND CHOICE

In no way interfere with your first choice. Your first choice is not eliminated unless your candidate is the low man. If you "plump" for one candidate, it means merely that you make no second choice of the other two, if your candidate should be eliminated.

Vote 1 For The Liberal Candidate

If you have determined to vote No. 1 for another candidate, then vote No. 2 for Liberal Candidate.

CONSERVATIVE PRINCIPLES ARE RESTATED BY THE CONSERVATIVE LEADER

A. A. McGillivray Sets Forth in Plain Language What the Provincial Conservative Party Stands for in Coming Gomera Election.

Co-Operative Marketing Extension is Advocated

Proportion of Moneys Expended on Roads to Go Toward the Maintenance of Country Roads as Well as Main Highways—Encourage the Inflow of Capital and Immigration to Supplement Efforts of the Dominion Government.

SPEAKING at Rockyford on Thursday afternoon, June 18th, in support of Hugh Miller, Conservative candidate in the Gleichen riding, A. A. McGillivray, leader of the provincial Conservative party, reiterated the items in the policy of the party that he has stated from different platforms in Alberta since being elected leader in August, 1925.

In his usual fighting style, Mr. McGillivray reviewed the record of the old Liberal administrations and the record of the present government. Coming up to date as to the election following the declaration of political principles, Mr. McGillivray said the Liberal party cannot get back into power and its record cannot be hidden under the cloak of one new convert.

Give Them Chance

The present government has failed to cope with public questions, the chief of which are redistribution, the northern railways, natural resources and the finance problem that it has had to face, then why not give the provincial Conservative party a chance to demonstrate what it can do? Mr. McGillivray left here at 4 p.m. for Oyen and other points in Acadia riding.

In reiterating points in the Conservative policy that have been enunciated by him from many platforms since he took the leadership of the party in August, 1925, Mr. McGillivray said: "I have not gone in for the form of political advertising that is known as the manifesto. I observe that the Liberal leader leaned toward them in 1921. He issued one which commenced as follows: "Truer representative government to replace the party system. Independent candidate in West Calgary outlines constructive proposals for the establishment of a democratic government freed from partisanship and partyism. Proportionate representation truly reflects popular will. Patronage system which is vital to the mainbeauties of party system, and is today a national scandal, will disappear under the reformed method of election."

"In so much as the new manifesto of the Liberal leader commenced as follows:

"Liberal manifesto—J. T. Shaw, Liberal leader, issues statement of party policy,' and in so much as this latest manifesto by Mr. Shaw, in so far as it does not consist of copybook platitudes and glittering generalities, is partly taken from the pronouncements of the Conservative party, it may be well for me to restate the position of the provincial Conservative party upon some of the provincial issues, a position taken and given public expression to on the platforms of this country at times when Mr. Shaw was still an Independent.

Conservative Platform

"The provincial Conservative party stands for the following:

"1. Redistribution whereby the number of constituencies will be reduced so that there will not be more than 45 members in the legislature. This reduction to be made having due regard both to population and to the sparsely settled areas.

"2. Reduction in the amount paid as sessional indemnities of members by $600.

"3. A determined effort to make of the United Farmers of Alberta organization something more than a mere political machine and to advance its development along social and economic lines.

"4. The encouragement of co-operative marketing. Even as supporters of the Conservative party brought Sapiro to Alberta without thought of political advantage, so will the Conservative party support any movement for the benefit of the farmers, without seeking political glorification.

Money for Roads

"5. A fair proportion of the moneys expended on roads being directed to the construction of trunk roads as well as main roads.

[illegible] far as [illegible] with respect to the [illegible] of [illegible] with [illegible] the [illegible] arena of the south by the [illegible] provincial [illegible]

"6. Furthering any practical scheme providing for rural credit.

"10. Equality of men and women under the law.

"11. A recognition of the fact that labor unions are as much an essential product of modern economic life as are the large corporations, and that they tend to bring about [illegible] wage bargaining that would not exist if the individual had to bargain with the great corporations

Right of Appeal

"12. Providing a right of appeal under the Workmen's Compensation Act from an autocratic compensation board.

"13. Raising the scale of compensation for railwaymen in non-negligence cases to the level enjoyed by other classes of workmen.

"14. Equitable distribution of the burden of taxation for upkeep of the schools.

"15. A most careful consideration of all possible ways and means for providing security of tenure and a practical pension scheme for teachers.

"16. An examination of the school courses by education technicians with a view to making certain that our student body is not faced with an overloaded curriculum.

"17. Revaluation and sale on the proper terms of the E.D. & B.C. and Central Canada railways, with a consequent saving of nearly one million dollars a year.

"18. The obtaining of our natural resources on fair and equitable terms without any school question or other strings attached thereto. (The provincial Conservative party has stood for this since 1905.)

Balancing the Budget

"19. The yearly balancing of the budget. In September, 1926, while advocates of this government were still saying that it could not be done without injuring essential services, the Conservative party took the position, as it does now, that the budget could and should be balanced in each year.

"20. A complete reversal of the former Liberal and the present government's attitude toward capital by encouraging in every possible way them to use money to invest in the exploration and utilization of our natural resources of all kinds.

"21. A provincial immigration and colonization policy to supplement the efforts of the Dominion government to get people and to retain them when we get them here, so that with more people amongst whom to distribute the load, we may hope to cope with our debt and our ever increasing burden of taxation. The provincial Conservative party is determined to bring about an inflow of capital and of people, because the future prosperity of our people is inseparably associated with these.

"22. One system of voting for both city and rural constituencies.

"23. An immediate decision as to the Spray Lakes water power project.

"24. More local autonomy in municipal affairs."

$3,000,000 IS VOTED FOR WORK ON H. B. ROAD

Ottawa—After considerable discussion, the house passed a vote of $3 000 000 for the Hudson's Bay Railway. The vote went through without a division.

The purpose of the vote is on put into shape for operation the 252 miles of the road from The Pas to Kettle Rapids on which steel has already been laid.

Speeches came mainly from Conservatives, among whom there was a division of opinion over the road. The point was pressed, however, that before embarking on the Port Nelson harbor scheme, it would be advisable to make practical tests of the Hudson's Bay route as a grain carrying route. Hon. Ir Manion suggested that, to this end, a Canadian tiers ven merchant marine vessel should make trips for three years from Halifax to Port Nelson and give a fair and honest report of the straits and the bay.

Hon. R. B. Bennett was emphasizing the suggestion when a Conservative interrupted that the vessel in the test trip might take the cabinet along.

"Or the board of strategy," shot ere Hon. C. A. Dunning.

Immediately after the passing of the Hudson's Bay vote, the house, without discussion, passed two votes for the Welland canal. One was $14,000,000 for construction, the other $145,350 for additional payment to the contractors.

B.C. Sawmill Burned

Big Blaze Throws Two Hundred Men Out of Work

Merritt, B.C.—Two hundred men are out of work in this town in Nicola Valley in the interior of British Columbia as the result of a fire which destroyed the sawmill of the Nicola Pine Lumber Company, one of the largest mills in the province, with a resultant loss estimated at $200,000.

Several of the employees were rescued from the blazing building only with great difficulty and the whole town for a time was threatened by the rumors which were carried for long distances by a heavy wind.

Heroic efforts of the fire fighters resulted in the planing mill, drying kilns and millions of feet of lumber in the shipment yard in the sawmill being saved, despite the fact that the wind was blowing in that direction.

Higher Production Of Registered Seed

Decided Increase Shown in 1925 Over Former Years

Ottawa.—Canadian production of registered seed of the principal field crops in 1925 shows a material increase over former years according to figures just released by Peter Stewart, secretary of the Canadian Seed Growers' Association. Wheat, barley and grass clover made the greatest gains, the increase over the previous year being 60,000 bushels, 9,000 bushels and 7,000 bushels respectively.

There is a growing demand from many lands for samples and quotations for Canadian registered seed, which seems to point to possibilities for a flourishing export trade within the near future.

Body Washed Ashore

Windsor, Ont.—The body of Mrs. James Phipps, missing since the middle of the winter, with her husband and two children, who disappeared while driving in a sedan across Lake Erie from Pelee Island, was washed ashore at Sturgeon Bay, three miles from Leamington. The body was identified by Fred Gate, brother-in-law of Mrs. Phipps.

Would Get Tax On Wines

Ottawa.—The conference of provincial premiers, and other representatives of the several provinces, passed a resolution asking the Federal Government to set to one-third its tithe on wines and spirits made in Canada and sold to provincial government agencies, and also to reduce to one-half the tax on wines and spirits imported by these agencies.

Tariff Advisory Board

Manufacturers' Association Expresses Faith That Proper Stand Will Be Taken

Toronto.—Confidence that the new tariff advisory board would deal fairly with the problems which it will be called upon to face, keeping in mind a broad Canadian attitude in their discussions, was expressed by various speakers at the annual meeting of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association.

President J. H. Fortier, Quebec, said: "I think, gentlemen, that when you take your cause to that commission, you will be well received. I have all faith that as Canadians they will take a proper stand."

Regarding the relation of the manufacturers to the rest of the country, the speaker said: "What we want is to show ourselves in a proper light to other classes in the country. Our case is their case, their case is ours. If we could bridge over the gap that appears to exist we would have no trouble in securing what we want for the good of Canada."

Hon. C. J. Davis, Newmarket, declared that co-operation was evident in Canada today and therefore suggested "a Canadian development committee," composed of men of business vision to meet representatives of farmers and other classes to discuss matters of interest to all. In this way an excellent condition of affairs could be brought about.

Want Germany In League

Leaders Anxious to Settle Membership Question in September

Geneva.—To get Germany into the League of Nations at the September meeting at all costs appears now to be the definite programme of the league leaders.

If necessary, a special session of the council will be convoked during the summer in order to remove impossible any repetition of the March fiasco when the Reich statesmen were forced to return to Berlin without being elected to membership.

This means that if Spain and Brazil continue their present policy, which is viewed locally as "bluffing," they will be jettisoned by the main powers, work of re-organizing the council proceeding without them.

Suggest Co-operation To Stop Smuggling

Matter Discussed at Conference Between Canadian and U. S. Officials

Ottawa.—Closer co-operation between the Canadian and United States Governments in regard to smuggling was under discussion at a conference here between Lincoln C. Andrews, United States assistant secretary of the treasury, in charge of the American prohibition and customs department, Harry C. Whitehall, collector of customs for Vermont, and Hon. C. H. Dewin, minister of customs for Canada, it was announced. Some of the actual matters discussed was made.

Across Canada in Eighty Hours

When the Canadian Pacific special mail train came to a stop at the C.P.R. depot at Vancouver, at exactly 5.30 p.m. Thursday, May 6, after its journey across Canada from Quebec, it established a record which, according to officials of the company, will stand for some time. The trip was made from Quebec in three and a third days, the faster then the speedy silk trains, the fastest trains crossing the continent. The photo above shows the train on its arrival at Vancouver with the Old Country mails for the Aorangi. The transfer of the mails to the boat took only twelve minutes. Inditating the reconvalescence of the C.P.R., an executive of the company had agreed to get the mails to Vancouver by 7.00 p.m. on May 6. The train came in an hour ahead of time.

SENATE ADOPTS AMENDMENTS TO CUSTOMS TARIFF

Ottawa—The senate adopted the budget amendments to the customs tariff and the bill was given its third reading.

When these amendments were under discussion, Hon. J. D. Reid, former minister of customs, said from his experience the customs staff on the whole was a good organization. He never could understand how the new bills administered the customs act at the salaries paid. Men getting less than $2,000 a year were doing work of the most important character. He did not believe the customs act would ever be properly administered unless competent men were secured by paying adequate salaries.

Hon. Jacques Bureau, late minister of customs, endorsed the remark of Mr. Reid. He thought the present customs staff was equal to any in the government service but are under-paid and overworked.

There was considerable discussion on the amendment making free certain automobile parts not manufactured in Canada.

Senator Gordon thought that the industry be maintained and those parts made here.

Senator Dandurand said that when they were manufactured in Canada the duty would be replaced.

Popularity Of Lord Willingdon

Canadians Resident in London Are Pleased With Appointment

London.—Canadians resident in London warmly welcome the announcement of Viscount Willingdon's appointment as governor general of the Dominion of Canada in succession to the Duke of Vimy.

Hon. Peter Larkin, Canadian high commissioner in London, is in a state-ment testified to the gratification with which the news of the appointment had been received in Canada. Right Hon. Sir Hamar Greenwood, Conservative member of the house for Walthamstow East and former chief secretary for Ireland, was equally convinced that the warmest welcome awaits Lord and Lady Willingdon on taking up residence at Rideau Hall, Ottawa.

Withdraws Motion On Egg Grading

Question Will Be Referred To Committee Of Agriculture

Ottawa—A motion introduced in the house by Hon. Hugh Guthrie (Conservative, South Wellington), which stated that "in the opinion of this house" the system of egg grading which came into force April, 1924, imposed a hardship upon farmers engaged in egg production, was withdrawn after Hon. W. R. Motherwell, minister of agriculture, had agreed to refer the question to the committee of agriculture.

May Organize Wheat Pool For Ontario

Will Likely Work in Close Co-operation With the Western Pools

Toronto.—That the United Farmers Co-operative Company Limited, undoubtedly will take the initiative in the organization of Ontario wheat pool, which will work in close co-operation with the western pools, was indicated by H. A. Gilroy president of the United Farmers Co-operative Co., Ltd., in a statement issued here.

Colin A. Burnell, Winnipeg secretary of the central selling agency of the western pools and president of the Manitoba Wheat Pool, has been in close touch with executive members of the U.F.O. organizations during the past week, and if the co-operative company decides to proceed with the proposition, it is expected Mr. Burnell will be called upon to assist in the necessary organization.

Mr. Gilroy expressed himself as having complete confidence in the feasibility of a wheat pool for Ontario, but the matter will be threshed out thoroughly at the next board meeting of the United Farmers' Co-operative Company, Ltd., this month.

Valuation of 681 Elevators in Saskatchewan To Be Made This Month

Winnipeg —On application of E. H. Mitchell, representing Saskatchewan Pool Elevators Ltd., proceedings of the arbitration board valuating the elevators of the Co-op. Elevator Company, in connection with the purchase by the board of the Saskatchewan Wheat Pool were suspended, after two sessions. GOOD SUPPORT FOR A NATIONAL FUEL POLICY

Ottawa.—[illegible] of coaxing [illegible] of agriculture and the adoption of the principle of measures which would enable Canada coal to be marketed in Central Canada were recommended by [illegible] and representatives of provincial governments who appeared before the special committee of the house investigating the Dominion's coal supply.

Premier Ferguson of Ontario, said his province was willing to give a fair and reasonable share of the cost of encouraging the coal [illegible] in Western Canada and on the Maritime Provinces. The use of Canadian coal in Central Canada in place of the importation of this commodity, would be observed tend to keep money within our own bounds.

Hon. W. H. Craig, attorney general of Manitoba and H. C. H. Richardson, New Brunswick minister of mines, supported the recommendation to provide fuel from Canadian mines instead of importing it.

Mr. Craig said that the experience of Manitoba with Alberta coal had been highly satisfactory. Manitoba was prepared to do its share in supporting a national fuel policy.

Mr. Craig presented a resolution passed at the provincial conference here of provincial premiers, which expressed the opinion that the Government of Canada should take immediate steps to favor the establishment of coking plants in the large centres of population, and the adoption of such other measures by the Dominion as will enable Canadian coals to be marketed in the central parts of Canada.

Killed By Senate

Old Age Pension Bill Defeated In Upper Chamber

Ottawa, (ont.—The senate threw out the old age pension bill by a vote of 46 to 31.

The defeat of the bill came on the second reading, which had been moved by Senator Dandurand, Government leader in the vote. Senator Robertson, former minister of labor, was the only Conservative to support the bill. Sir Allen Aylesworth, Senatory J. J. Hughes, and Senator Tarriff, all from the government side of the house, voted with the Conservatives against the bill.

Senator W. B. Rose, [illegible] lender, said that he believed the government had no constitutional right to invade provincial jurisdiction over such matters as old age pensions.

The bill constituted a discrimination against the maritime provinces because they were unable to participate in the financial proposals of the bill. Senator Belcourt said it would be unfair to deprive some provinces of the advantage of the scheme because others could not take it up.

Senator Donahue said Quebec opposed the bill.

Senator J. D. Reid said that only one out of the nine provinces had expressed a willingness to participate in the scheme. It should have been discussed at a conference of premiers before introduction.

Senator Dandurand, Government leader, in moving second reading of the bill, urged that it was necessary of relief for poor working people.

The commissioner should see United States authorities in case of deportation of the Canadian authorities in this country, he said, and thereby put it in position to demand to apprehended and punished [illegible] agents.

DORRANCE—LUNAN

(Omitted last week)

A pretty wedding was solemnized at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Rodney Cranston, Good Hope, Alberta at 3 p.m., Wednesday, June 16, when Mary Elizabeth, third daughter of Mr. A. Lunan became the bride of Tully C. Dorrance, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. M. Dorrance. Rev. M. L. Wright, pastor of United church of Fort Saskatchewan rural field, officiated.

The bridal party took their places before the fireplace which was beautifully banked with ferns, roses and wild flowers; these were also lavishly used throughout the rooms.

The bride was charming in a gown of oyster chiffon over peach silk crepe and carried a bouquet of peach snapdragons. Her only ornament was a pearl necklace, the gift of the groom.

Mrs. Nellie Cranston, sister of the bride, was matron of honor and wore a dainty gown of Adam green with tunic of georgette and gold trimming and carried a bouquet of pink Killarney roses and fern.

Mr. Rodney Cranston, brother of the bride, was groomsman.

Following the ceremony a buffet supper was served. The bridal party sat at a table centred with the bride's cake. Mrs. W. Peters poured the tea; Mrs. Fay Stetson cut the ices; little Miss Muriel Peters and Master Lorne Peters assisted in serving. Rev. Mr. Wright proposed the toast to the bride to which the groom responded.

Mr. C. H. Peters, Edmonton, proposed the toast to the groom to which Mr. Lunan responded.

Messrs. C. M. Dorrance, Fay Stetson, and Cranston and Gordon Lunan were heard from in a brief and happy vein; felicitous to the bride and groom.

The guests were the immediate members of each family. Many beautiful gifts were received by the young couple.

Mr. and Mrs. Dorrance left by motor for a honeymoon at Alberta Beach. The bride travelled in a gown of black satin, with gold trimmings, a smart cape-coat of blue-grey tweed with scarf to match, and hat of powder-blue straw, with French flowers. On their return they will engage in farming in Ypres Valley. A host of friends extend good wishes to them.

POLICE COURT NEWS

Last week a local farmer was fined $5.00 and costs by Magistrate Adamson on action brought by the Provincial police under the Vehicles and Highways Traffic Act.

"The offence was for having a spot light shining in a manner contrary to that laid down in the Act governing motor vehicles. The law allows a motorist to use a spot light but when it is used the beam of light must shine down to the right hand side of the highway and strike the ground within seventy-five feet of the car.

In other words a spot light cannot be used as a road light or in lieu of the regular headlamps but only as a protection against ditches.

Motorists are also warned to have their headlamps checked to see that they come within the legal requirements, as a number of complaints are being received that glaring headlights are a nuisance to other users of the roads. The direct beam of a headlamp at a distance of seventy-five feet from the car shall not raise above 42 inches from the ground level. Motorists are advised to see that their lamps conform to this regulation, and thereby not only keep within the law, but make the use of the road safe and comfortable for other people.

Agricultural Wealth Of The Prairies

In this year when the twin Provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan will celebrate their coming of age as autonomous units in the Canadian United nation, it is not only interesting but appropriate to note the truly amazing progress made by Western Canada in a space of time so brief as to be considered but a passing moment in the life of a nation. When the West was first opened to settlement with the advent of the C.P.R. professions were made that a great future awaited it, and as we were reviewed when twenty-one years ago the Old North West Territories passed and the Provinces of Saskatchewan and Alberta came into being. But even the most optimistic could hardly foresee such growth as has actually been recorded.

Twenty-one years ago Manitoba had a population of about 200,000, and in creating the two new Provinces they were each credited with an estimated population of 250,000. As a matter of fact the census the following year disclosed a much smaller figure. Compared with less than 700,000 people in the three prairie provinces in 1906, it is confidently predicted that this year's census will show a population of approximately two and one half millions.

According to a recent estimate by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, the gross agricultural wealth of Canada in 1925 was $7,822,942,000, almost one-half of which was credited to Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. Although the youngest of the provinces Saskatchewan occupies first place in gross agricultural wealth, being exceeded by Ontario only, while Alberta and Manitoba occupy fourth and fifth places respectively. The gross agricultural wealth of Saskatchewan last year is placed at $1,838,352,000, Alberta at $1,612,172,000, and Manitoba at $696,495,000. These are remarkable figures for such a young country, still in the initial stage of its development.

In annual agricultural revenue the strong position held by Western Canada is no less distinctly indicated. In land values and value of farm buildings, the older and more populous provinces of Ontario and Quebec naturally outrank the West, but in the annual value of agricultural production the Western Provinces take a high place. The total value of field crops alone in 1925 is placed at $1,709,567,000, of which the three prairie provinces contributed Saskatchewan being credited with $416,622,000, or only Ontario, Alberta with $351,962,000 and Manitoba $142,044,0

In field crops Saskatchewan ranges first with Ontario second, Alberta third and Manitoba fourth. Ontario and Quebec lead in the animals with Alberta third. In poultry and eggs Ontario and Quebec also lead, with Manitoba-

Airship's World Flight

Proposal to Make a Non-Stop Flight Around the World in Dirigible

A vast airship is being partly constructed at the Zeppelin works at Friedrichshafen, with which it is proposed to make a non-stop flight round the world. She is designed to carry an immense load of fuel Starting from the airship base at Seville, Spain, she will head across the Atlantic, ascending until she is in a westerly air-stream When Central America is reached the airship will descend sufficiently for her crew to sight the Pacific, after which it will be the aim to manoeuvre into an airstream that will speed on regain the starting point in Spain.

Running her engines at moderate speed, she can overhaul the wind, proceeding wherever possible by favoring winds. It is calculated that the nonstop voyage will be accomplished in about 22 days. If the airship now being built is to be German-owned, it should be noted that ever since the peace, German aircraft construction has been restricted by allied regulations, which seriously increase the difficulty of building an airship capable of such a flight. A conference is in progress in Paris for the abolition or modification of these restrictions.

Devotional Reading Psalm 94:10-17.

Explanations and Commends

The Reason For the oppression of the Israelites, verses 8-10 Not to know one means to control language not to acknowledge his authority or influence was to disregard him had passed since the death of Joseph, and a new Pharaoh is on the throne in Egypt, who, although he may have heard about Joseph and his services to Egypt during the years of famine feels no obligation to spare his descendants because of those services The new Pharaoh who is believed to have been Rameses II, said to his people, 'Behold, the people of the children of Israel are more and mightier than we This is a great, if exaggerated assertion. The matter considered is, "The people of the children of Israel are too many and too mighty for us that is, for our future welfare

Wise by such exaggerations and alarms that all the worst crimes of slaveowners have been practised on oppressed peoples. And we, when we carry what seems to us a righteous object by inflaming the passion and misleading the judgment of other men, are moving on the same treacherous and slippery footing." (Dr. A. Chadwick)

Should Show Courtesy

American Tourists Fail to Display Canadian Flags On Cars

"The people of Canada desire to welcome motor tourists from the United States in the most cordial manner, but those visitors would greatly help to create a friendly atmosphere for themselves if they would show a sense of courtesy in displaying Canadian flags on their cars. They expect the most penniless observers of this rule from visitors to their country, and they ought to be prompt to recognize the same amenity when they come to Canada. Courtesy in such things is a mark of good breeding as well as of international good will."—Brantford Expositor

New Turbine Engine Invented

Driven By Dynamos and Uses an Inexhaustible Fuel

A new principle turbine type engine which can propel a vehicle 500 miles on the cost of $2 has been invented, claims F J Taylor, 21-year-old physics student of Toronto. Taylor says his invention is driven by dynamos and uses an inexhaustible fuel, the nature of which he refuses to divulge at present. It will develop ninety horsepower with only half the number of the ordinary motor's revolutions, he declares, and will also do away with the danger of carbon monoxide poisoning.

RAILWAY RATE CASE IS ARGUED BEFORE BOARD

Regina Board Suggestions for the removal of the alleged discrimination in freight rates favoring Winnipeg over other prairie distributing points was made to the Board of Railway Commissioners by W H McEwen at a meeting for the premiers of Saskatchewan on behalf of the boards of trade of Regina, Moosomin and Moose Jaw The discrimination was said by counsel to exist in the fact that Winnipeg had the full advantage at a distance, mileage that was assumed between Fort William and Winnipeg while points beyond the latter city had the advantage only as far as Winnipeg Thence rates were calculated on an actual mileage

The difference, said Mr McEwen in final comparative statements meant that on goods shipped from Fort William over the C P R. Winnipeg had a rate reduction of 23 per cent., while westward this reduction decreased until by the time it got to Qu'Appelle the percentage was down to 12, at Saskatoon it was 10 per cent and at Calgary 4.6 per cent

What the premiers wanted, said Mr McEwen, was removal of the unjust discrimination How this was to be accomplished was up to the board, but among various solutions that might be offered that of removing the Fort William mileage altogether and getting up to a new basis of rates which would divide the advantage equally among all the prairie points seemed to be the most suitable.

Will Fight Miners' Leaders

Lord Birkenhead Charges A. J. Cook With Attempt to Blackmail Society

London Following closely upon a decision of the Labor party to put a strenuous opposition to the government's new bills which have as their purpose a re-organization of the mining industry, the Earl of Birkenhead secretary for India, has delivered a verbal broadside against A J Cook secretary of the miners' federation

Cook was charged by Lord Birkenhead of attempting to blackmail the coal owners' society, which had been instrumental in the Lord Birkenhead said he and his colleagues were fully determined that if they were driven to it by this attempt to blackmail society by men who declare they have a struggle based on the vital chords of industry, we shall once again successfully, but resolutely, gird ourselves for a great struggle We shall not permit the nation to be destroyed."

"We who have broken down every danger in the past," Lord Birkenhead added "will not be broken down by men who take their bidding from a group of irresponsible agitators who are in suggesting that cancellation was a good thing to settle the general strike.

Winston Churchill retaliated later in the evening by declaring Mr Lloyd George's utterances "ill-considered and ill-advised" and asserting that the duke of Kodhak and Lord Birkenhead were the three pronounced supporters of the Baldwin Government Walter Connell of this city, which Mr Lloyd George has condemned as "a Mad Mullah," is counselled on the executive of the miners' membership for the sake of harmony he does not wish to comment on the matter.

He had informed the senate each year of the league's work, but said Sir George, the average member of parliament and Dr. Riddell, Mason officer at Geneva, should be available to parliament.

Senator Lougheed replying said that Canada had spent $1,500,000 on the League of Nations, and while the League was seven years old it was ever more men under arms today than before the first War. It has not been conducive to peace, he said

Rates on shipments from Canada have increased a little less than three cents

LLOYD GEORGE IS NOT LOOKING FOR LEADERSHIP

London Speaking on the "future of Liberalism at a luncheon of the National Liberal Club, former Premier Lloyd George Liberal parliamentary leader, kept his audience in roars of laughter by humorous sallies and witty digs at his political opponents

He declared his ambition was merely to be a "good lieutenant" for the party, and added "At the same time I do not want to rule anybody—neither, but I want to say quite frankly that I am not going to allow myself to be driven out of the Liberal party."

Alluding to Winston Churchill's recent utterance that Lloyd George's attitude to the miners' dispute would be the beginning of the end of the Conservative party, the former premier remarked that so far as he could see, the downward course began when he stopped Mr Churchill and asked him to join the Baldwin Government.

Stopped Mr Churchill and asked him to join the Baldwin Government.

"The provincial governments of the western provinces have also been showing a healthier tendency in the matter of their finances

Western Financing Methods

Municipalities of Western Canada Are Showing the Way to Those of East

Vancouver — "Municipalities of Western Canada are showing the way to those of Eastern Canada in the handling of their finances," declared C. P. Pell one of Canada's leading authorities on public financing on his arrival in Vancouver as a member of the International Bankers' Association party, which recently held its annual meeting at Jasper Park.

"The British Columbian in particular," he said, "the municipalities have been reducing their debt to actual amount and the same is true in Saskatchewan In Eastern Canada, especially Ontario the reverse tendency is true

"The provincial governments of the western provinces have also been showing a healthier tendency in the handling of their finances

NEARING END OF THE COAL STRIKE IN GREAT BRITAIN

London.—Indications of early negotiations for coal peace were seen in the announcement by Prime Minister Baldwin of postponement for a week of action on the bill authorizing eight hours of work in the mines Meanwhile the bill for the reorganization of the mines is being pushed [illegible] said to be the result of a bargain between the Labor-ites and Premier Baldwin

If Labor is satisfied with the reorganization plans, it may not be necessary to proceed with the eight hours bill, as miners may agree to accept a small reduction in wages for a period rather than an increase in hours.

Herbert Smith, president of the miners' federation, in speeches recently declared a wage reduction to be better than an increase of hours

Secretary Cook, of the miners' federation is still asserting "not a penny off and not a minute more" but there are strong indications that the miners are getting tired of Cook, and it is hardly predicted in labor circles that as soon as the strike is over he will lose his job

The principal feature of the miners' reorganization bill is amalgamation of the mines

Compromise On New Flag

South African Government Likely to Accept Suggestion of Labor Party

Capetown, South Africa The controversy over the government's proposed new South African flag, the design of which has never excluded the Union Jack, has assumed a new aspect

The national council of the Labor party a few days ago passed a resolution that there should be equal official recognition of the Union Jack as a symbol of the empire and the other a symbol of South Africa nationality

A deputation from the council has interviewed Hon Fielman Hone minister of justice, and the executive of the Nationalist party in Pretoria where they have expressed complete satisfaction with the Labor party council's resolution, and moreover have pledged the full support of the nationalist party to this resolution

As it is by means of a pact between the nationalist and Labor parties that the government of Premier Hertzog is in power, the government may accept this compromise

One school picnic takes place this afternoon (Wednesday). Needless to say we are having a nice rain, and are expecting to serve the ice cream with a cold chisel.

Mrs. McCutcheon leaves this evening for her home in Vegreville. She expects to return in good time for school re-opening on August 30.

An enjoyable Young People's party took place last Friday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Beeker.

Mr. J. Dore spent Monday in the Pakan district driving voters to the poll.

To remove an unfair misapprehension, it may be well to state that the decoration colors at the recent Josephburg church celebration are the official colors of the Reformed Church; they are in no way associated, so far as our people are concerned, with the Prussian Eagle or the Hohenzollern dynasty.

A. J. Powell expects to be marching Departmental papers in Edmonton next week, after which he will pay a visit to relatives in Saskatchewan. Mrs. Powell will spend a week or two with her brother, W. D. Taylor, in the Kitscoty district.

We woke up the other morning to find that our locality had drifted seven miles during the night. We have always estimated that we were 25 miles from Edmonton, but Mr. Campbell of the Mail has taken the trouble to set a sign up to indicate that the distance is 33 miles. Well, Mr. Campbell, that's too far to go for a hat. We will buy ours in the Fort.

2. Regarding the free dining service on Sunday, I would say, that it is beneath the dignity of the Reformed Church to use the Sabbath Day to enrich its coffers, and the Denomination as a whole is strictly opposed to distinct separation of Church and State, a tenet that is emphatically recommended to all our individual congregations.

Hoping that this explanation may serve to clear a somewhat strained atmosphere

CHAPTER VIII.

Joanna Makes a Decision

After a time the girl nodded on the floor in a heap of bobbed brown hair and clinging gown and silver stockinged legs, stifled the hitch of a new sob and stopped the rumbled storm of her fears, velvet soft shoulders, her eyes as quick to dry as to dim with moisture, which is the way of youth, selected a spot on the parlor carpet, just beyond her toes, and fixed on it. So she sat very quiet, and started straightening out the jumble of her bitter, very bitter thoughts. She realized that she probably would pay for the things that had happened during the hectic day were not on visible things—any of them.

It was a fruit of her's to rebel when things weren't right; she couldn't analyze or probe for reasons, or ask herself if she were to blame. That is, she could ask if she were to blame when things got into a jumble, but her invariable answer was "No!" Time was when the spirit of Joanna was submissive and amenable to discipline, and in the learning of lessons out of experience. That was a long time ago—before she had to make her own way alone and compete with other girls—with the ones who were on the square, as well as those who weren't. She gradually had learned of the many misfortunes them. Whoever criticised her, except herself, was wrong. As her tongue grew smarter, more and more accustomed to giving them it free rein, and her lips grew redder and more provocative, and her shirts became shorter, everybody

Even John! The one thing she admittedly loved. Even he could never understand a girl—a real girl who also loved and who had to fight for the devil to keep up with the other girls of his day and age! John had observed in almost everything she did or wore or said. He'd preach by the hour. Once, in this same parlor—the dingy, fire-hazard-evil parlor of the working girl "drawing room only," John had brought her a lot of clippings from a magazine—evidently only old bi-bop had said young women ought to wear Mother Hubbard's or something like that, and somebody else said old-fashioned but he read bedtime stories and told the newspapers that in his girls' club he'd take an occasional drink out of their partner's flasks. Good Lord! In his day! He and Noah were so busy advertising a flood in their young days they couldn't appreciate having to take a nip of some thing else besides water just to keep up appearances! And John couldn't understand that neither she nor any girl she knew really liked the beastly stuff; nor cigarettes. Simply had to go in for both or else go into dead storage.

John was wrong, then. Tonight, the human simplicity of the money that had been given her for a reason she couldn't fathom, simply proved how wrong he had always been—about her, and he wasn't coming back, as she was sure that he would when he slammed the front door. Always, their quarrels had ended in a kiss and a few minutes of wonderful silence very close to each other. To-morrow, of course, he would go to him and run straighten out his mind, easily. She could even take him to Mr. Graydon, or to Eggleflon, himself. Then John would be humble, they would have their silence together, and make their love.

That was what she could do. But this had been a deep hurt. Being so utterly unjust, the bitterness of the wound was just a bit magnified by Joanna's admission to herself that other times she hadn't had next so much right to fight back. He'd come to her, and he wasn't coming back, as she was sure that he would when he slammed the front door. Always, their quarrels had ended in a kiss and a few minutes of wonderful silence very close to each other. To-morrow, of course, she Preparations are being made for a bowling green in the Fort. It will in all likelihood be ready for next summer.

A car caught on fire while passing through Ross street Monday. Prompt action and a fire extinguisher prevented a wreck.

The post office is now located in its new quarters on Dennis avenue opposite the Memorial plot. (And The Record office is just around the corner.)

The new tennis courts at the gaol are a popular resort of the staff judging by the sounds of merriment which are heard from that direction each evening.

Wonder permeating the ladies of the Altar Society will hold a tea and sale of home cooking in the church grounds on Saturday, July 3, from 3 o'clock to 7. Everybody welcome.

The Fort tennis club played Patricia (Edmonton) second team last Saturday in the inter-club tournaments and were afterwards taken home and put to bed, the Patricia's having rocked them to sleep. The locals lost eight out of nine events, Mrs. Harper being the only player to emerge victorious, defeating Mrs. Hailsberton in two straight sets.

Holiday In Canada

Taking a holiday is "good business," provided the holiday is spent in a sane sensible manner and largely out of doors. Such a holiday is likewise a form of sound health insurance. Money spent in a vacation in the open will prove a good investment and return handsome dividends in renewed vigor increased energy to put into one's life work, and re-awakened zest, charm and interest in life and all its manifold activities.

To the full extent possible people should spend the summer months in the open. Fresh air and sunshine are the best doctors in the world. They are doctors of preventive medicine and make no charge for their services which are free to all mankind, rich and poor alike. Remember holidays to be truly beneficial, should not be spent in visiting crowded cities, but in the wood's beside lakes, rivers and the sea, among the mountains in a word, close to Nature's heart.

And no country in the world surpasses Canada as the ideal land for a summer vacation. People, who can afford to do so, may flock to tropical countries during severe winter weather, or enjoy winter sports such as are provided in Switzerland and Eastern Canada but not at most enjoyable and healthful invigorating summer holiday, no country surpasses and few can equal our own Dominion.

In the variety and beauty of its offerings, Nature was most prodigal in its treatment of Canada. Nor did she confine her gifts to any one Province or section of the Dominion, but with lavish hand distributed bounties on all Lucre is something to appeal to every taste and increase the delight of the human race.

Furthermore, probably in no other country can a vacation be enjoyed at less expense than in Canada. For a real holiday a person needs a complete change of scene and an entirely different environment to that in which he or she on workday months are spent. In many of the older and thickly populated lands this is difficult to obtain without travelling long distances and at a cost beyond the means of the average person. But in Canada such a change is possible in a few hours journey with its great wealth of rivers, lakes, mountains, woods and sea-shore. Canada still remains a land of romance, a sportsman's paradise, with abounding natural beauty in landscape, in water in the inner of the wild. And these things are available to Canadians within the bounds of their respective Provinces.

But the dweller on the prairies of the West can at small expense obtain the greatest of all changes in his environment by spending his or her holiday in the Rockies, or journey a little further and bask among the beauties of Nature along the Pacific coast, or proceed eastward to the Great Lakes. People of Ontario and Quebec might well with advantage to themselves, and in real patriotic give to a more united and understood Canada, take a holiday among the people of the other Province, while the holidaying citizens of these two Provinces and the Maritimes could with pleasure and profit interchange visits.

If Canada lacked in providing scenes of Nature's beauty, or if these spots were few and far between and therefore difficult and expensive of access there would be some excuse for Canadians not holidaying at home and learning more of their great Dominion, but, as already noted, this country takes second place to none as a place in which to enjoy Nature at its best, and in which to recuperate in mind and body, forget one's business worries and responsibilities, and reaffirm worn out and jaded nerves.

Canadians, of course, must not be narrow, provincial people. They should know the world, and to know other countries and peoples it is necessary to travel. But half the enjoyment and more than half of the advantage to be derived from foreign travel is found in first having the fullest possible knowledge of one's own country. "See Canada First" is, therefore, not only a telling slogan but good advice to all Canadians.

And while not disparaging the beauties and exhilaration of Canada's winter, it is none the less true that the summer vacation months offer the best time in which all parts of the Dominion and hours of its beauties, its resources, its grandeur, its transcendant possibilities.

Purchases Exceed Sales

Russia Buys More From Great Britain Than She Sells

The council of the Russo-British Chamber of Commerce has published figures tending to show a steady increase in trade between Great Britain and Russia.

The growth is given as from £15,000,000 in 1922 to £48,000,000 in 1925. The report says Russian purchases from Great Britain slightly exceeded Russian sales in the British market. The latter consists almost entirely of foodstuffs and raw material, while the Russian purchases are largely machinery, cotton textiles and other manufactured goods.

The council points out that the entire business is being conducted on a credit basis and says it is not aware of any case in which the Russian organizations have failed to carry out their obligations.

Better Gasoline Promised

May Mean Increased Efficiency and Economy in Automobile Operation.

Increased efficiency and economy in automobile operation are forecast by government experts as the result of recent motor fuel studies by T. R. Sligh, of the U.S. bureau of standards.

The simplicity of the Sligh test is claimed to make it possible for refinery supervisors, by an easy graduation of oils under refinement, to produce without laboratory manipulation and increased expense a "standard" gasoline meeting the specifications and giving the public more efficient uniform, dependable gas without increase in price.

Find Magnificent Temple in East

Discovery in Indo-China Made By French School of Extension

A magnificent temple, dating back to the early fourteenth century, has been discovered by the French school of Extension, in the Far East, now working in Indo China. The temple is described as the finest example of its art of that period yet seen, and the inscriptions upon it throw considerable light upon history.

Experts of the school have just reported to the institute in France that the temple is near Angkor Thom, and that other buildings of the same age probably will be uncovered in the vast jungle north of the present ruins of Thom. These forests will be explored this year.

Another remarkable discovery was reported to the institute from the province of Tam, Indo China, where several thirteen tombs were unearthed, but not a single bone found. Precious articles in bronze and other metal were discovered.

Woman Will Attempt Flight Across Pole

French Actress Announces Intention to Try To Cross Arctic Ocean.

For years men have been seeking to locate the North Pole, and now the conquest of the air is to be added to the list of other sports to dare the cold of the frozen lands. Miss Ida Rubinstein, a French actress, has announced her intention of flying across the pole this summer. In New York, another woman intends to gratify her craving for daring experience and accompanying MacMillan's Polar party. Miss Maude B. Fisher the explorer, for fame, is a graduate of Harvard College, and an athlete. "The quest for the unknown overshadows all fear," said Miss Fisher.

NO MEDICINE LIKE BABY'S OWN TABLETS

For Either the Newborn Babe or the Growing Child

There is no other medicine to equal Baby's Own Tablets for little ones—whether it be for the newborn babe or the growing child the Tablets at all ages do good. They are absolutely free from opiates or other harmful drugs and the mother can always feel safe in using them.

Concerning the Tablets, Mrs John Armour, R.R. 1, South Monaghan, Ont., says:—"We have three fine, healthy children, to whom when a medicine is needed we have given only Baby's Own Tablets. The Tablets are the best medicine you can keep in any home where there are young children."

Baby's Own Tablets are a mild but thorough laxative which regulates the stomach and bowels; banish constipation and indigestion, break up colds and simple fever and make teething easy. They are sold by medicine dealers or direct by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Miller's Worm Powders act mildly and without injury to the child, and there can be no doubt of their deadly effect upon worms. They have been in successful use for a long time and are recognized as a leading preparation for the purpose. They have proved their power in numberless cases and have given relief to many children, who, but for the good offices of this compound, would have continued weak and enfeebled.

Even if the week do inherit the earth in accordance with the ancient prophesy, they'll still have the traffic cops to contend with.

Comparison By Total Tonnage

Only Way to Judge Naval Armaments Says France

France has proposed to the disarmament experts meeting at Geneva that the only way of comparing the naval armaments of the various countries is by total naval tonnage.

This raises the question of the effect adoption of the French theory would have on the Washington naval agreement.

The significance of the French initiative is that both countries seek liberty to strengthen their submarine and cruiser forces which they deem more important to their national defence than battleships. Both United States and British delegates are hoping that the global tonnage agreement will not interfere with the Washington accord. They believe that the ratios of capital ships established at Washington could remain the bases of such a tonnage programme.

Recuperative Powers Of Fish

Frozen Solid By Liquid Air Will Revive in Water

An audience in New York was treated the other night to an exhibition of the recuperative power of fish when Professor Calahorch, of City College, transferred from a bowl of water into a jar of liquid air, two goldfish. Upon removing them from the jar, one was shattered into brittle fragments by a hammer. The other returned to the water, soon swam about naturally.

Canada Occupies Foremost Place In Seed Improvement And In Handling Registered Seed

Canada produced a considerably larger quantity of registered seed of the principal farm plants in 1925 than in any previous year, according to a report just issued by Mr. Peter Hare ott, secretary of the Canadian Seed Growers Association. It grew 80,000 bushels more registered seed wheat that year than in 1924, eight thousand bushels more of seed barley and seven thousand bushels more of registered stock, clover seed. Increased production and trend—signs of ours need, confidence in the future—are also apparent in the quantity of registered seed potatoes grown in Canada and in other crops also.

A great deal of attention is given in this country to the provision of good seed for the farmer. Experimental farms, agricultural colleges, and experimental stations maintained by the Dominion and Provincial Governments, all do their part in this regard, by a number of individual organizations, one of the most important of which is the Dominion Seed Branch. This branch distributes every year very materially to the improvement of the varieties of cereals and other farm plants commonly grown in Canada. Another object of the branch is to discourage the production of grain, vegetables and fruit of inferior quality, and to encourage production under particular conditions or climate and soil. This will mean, for example, a reduction in the production of certain varieties of wheat which are not suitable for milling and baking quality, and an increase in the production of such varieties as furnish satisfactory flour. It will also tend to discourage the production of certain kinds of seed which are not adapted to the conditions of the locality in which they are grown.

The Seed Branch also encourages the breeding of various strains of wheat, oats, barley, potatoes, etc., which are adapted to certain districts, and which are superior in certain respects to those now in use. It also encourages the production of pedigree seed grain, and the growing of grain in isolated fields, under particular conditions, to eliminate smut and rust. It will soon be in a position to distribute such seed grain to farmers who desire to purchase it. For example, the breeding of various strains of wheat which are resistant to rust, a problem which has been engaging the attention of plant breeders in Canada for a number of years, is finally approaching a successful issue. It is expected that in a few years' time a large quantity of rust-resistant wheat will be available for distribution to farmers who desire to grow it.

Mr. L. H. Newman, of the Dominion Cereal list, has told that "Among the duties of the world Canada occupies a different place in regard to its organization. Its Seed Branch is the only government and for the handling of high class seed in commercial quantities, and it is the envy of many countries. The fact is real that Canada has the first organized outside the Dominion. Marquis wheat, originally evolved in Canada, grown throughout a large part of the hard wheat area of the United States. Last year, a big shipment of Canadian registered seed wheat was shipped to Argentina to be planted by farmers there. Last year, too, the secretary of the Canada Seed Growers' Association says, practically all of the supply of western grown Canadian registered alfalfa seed was bought by farmers of the middle west portion of the United States, who paid a considerable premium over the price of home grown alfalfa seed, to gain a customs duty of four cents a pound. Dairy Industry Expanding

In Few Years Manitoba Has Built Up Wonderful Business

Manitoba's dairy industry continues to expand. Starting with almost nothing 24 years ago, the provincial dairy production in 1925 reached nearly $14,000,000. The province won 44 per cent of butter first prizes in 1925 and 34 per cent. of the total dairy prizes. The first export of butter was made in 1915 with 55 carloads. Last year it was 315 exported to Eastern Canada and the British Isles.

Northern Route For Cattle

Mayor of Saskatoon is a Strong Supporters of the H. B. R.

Mayor Emmett Wilcox, of Saskatoon is a strong advocate for the early com pletion of the Hudson Bay Railway to a record interview with the local Sas katoon paper his worship said:

"As mayor of Saskatoon it is my pollcy to co operation with the other members of the city council, the board of trade, the press and all other citizens to secure as much assis possible next year, with a view to ation as will link up Saskatoon and Hudson Bay Junction by the shortest possible mileage. While I cannot, of course, state definitely what that mile age would be an approximate estimate is 175 miles From there The Pas is 85 miles and from that town to Port Nelson is 424 miles, being a total of 682 miles from Saskatoon to Port Nelson. The proposed line joining Sas katoon direct connection with the Hudson Bay Railway would, no doubt pass through Humboldt.

"It can reasonably be anticipated," said the mayor, "that one of the many advantages in the coming of the Hudson Bay Railway to Saskatoon will be the opening of the Canadian Pacific Railway in 2,216 miles, from Montreal to Liverpool via Belle Isle—a route available only a portion of the year—to 2,760 miles a total, Calgary to Liverpool, or 3,000 miles, the rail haul being 45 per cent of the total mileage From Calgary to Liverpool via Montreal and Cape Race the mileage is 5,255 miles, of which the rail haul is 43 per cent."

"From Calgary to Port Nelson, via the proposed direct line, Saskatoon to Hudson Bay Junction, the mileage approximately would be 1,000 to Saskatoon, 600 miles. Saskatoon to Port Nelson, 687 miles, a total of 1,287 miles—say 1,100 miles—and from Port Nelson to Liverpool 2,966 miles, a total of 4,066 miles, of which only 27 per cent, is rail haul."

The mayor, who is familiar with the subject, pointed out that while cattle in transit "shrink" during railway travel, they "pick up" on ocean ships. Also that the coolness of the bay route would in sure their arrival at port of disem barkation in fine condition and he stressed two marked advantages as favoring the bay route for cattle ship ment—less total mileage and a lower percentage of that total being rail haul than that of any existing North Atlantic route."

Strange Aquatic Animal

A strange looking aquatic animal reported to be half the length of a canoe, and believed to be a giant sturgeon of a species known to abound in northern waters, was seen in the Quinea River recently. It was first thought to be one of two pet alligators who escaped from Sydney, Que., last fall, but naturalists claim an alligator could not survive a winter in a frozen river.

Looks Like Pleasant Farm

But England's Leper Colony is Lonely Isolated Spot

England's leper colony is one of the most lonely and isolated spots in that country. Travellers on those remote ruuds pass a collection of small houses set in the heart of fields. There are cows, and poultry, and a dog that barks fiercely. It looks like a pleasant small holding. But the inhabitants of the houses are lepers. They are British men, women and children who have lived abroad, and who once in perfect health have contracted leprosy. An Anglican sisterhood gives them the most tender care.

Joanna

THE STORY THUS FAR

Joanna, a pretty, ultra modern shop girl is told by her employer that she has been given a million dollars by a friend in an unknown hemisphere. In her room to know its name. She are no conditions—it was left to her own caprice. Nothing more than that—so he states. Joanna and Georgie are not in that "about" town region. Brandon, a young man of the latter, is trying to make love to her, with indifferent success. Joanna, in the meantime, has suddenly come into wealth but disappointed Brandon and upset his love affair with Georgie. Brandon turns home. Joanna after an argument with Georgie, goes to the apartment of Brandon and Georgie, who is there. Brandon's man, John, admits a messenger boy. Joanna hears John inform Brandon that he does not know where she can be, the money [illegible] ably. He is angry.

With her awakening to the new day—the first full day of her new life—the varying emotions crashed in confusion into Joanna's mind. Her first thought was of John. With it came the memory of recognition of the scene in the [illegible] drawing room only. She winced at the sudden memory. She would be bold of him that way. She would lose a minute before he went to his work! She hurried her hand in the hair on pillow beside her. Georgie had stubbornly shut her eyes, refusing to be ordered up by any human mood but opened them wide at the visioning of Joanna's face at her shingled head.

"Pile out and get dressed," Joanna commanded, trying to quiet down and make up afterwards. Bring some things in and we'll ask Mrs. Adams to let us breakfast in the kitchen. Breakfast—and I want you to tele phone from downstairs on your way out."

Georgie her wits not fully gathered, broke off short in a general remark to the effect that some people had their rest! Things came back to her, especially that she must send word to the store that she'd broke a leg, or neck, and couldn't show up at the silk counter until the next day, and that Joanna was going to take her shopping. She hurled out the last remark with "Harvest thing you know" And, in her own conception of the way people kept their affairs straight, she added

"I'll make the telephone in about two minutes What did you say John's number is"

JOINT STATEMENT

issued by the representatives of the United Grain Growers and the Alberta Wheat Pool, on the Board of the proposed handling company

The negotiations between the United Grain Growers and the Alberta Wheat Pool, on the Board of the proposed handling company, which have been in progress for several months and which had been carried to a point where there was complete agreement between the two bodies as to terms and conditions of the agreement, have been brought to a successful conclusion. Mr. Manz, president of the new elevator operating company, will be elected to the board of directors of the Pool, and Mr. [illegible] and the Pool directors, and was [illegible] to the board of directors of the United Grain Growers Limited.

The United Grain Growers' representatives on the proposed new Board recommended that one of the Pool directors should be president of the new operating company, and that Mr. McRory, manager of the United Grain Growers' office in Calgary, should be manager.

The Alberta Pool representatives on the Board suggested that one of the United Grain Growers' representatives should be president, and that a man of recognized standing in the elevator business and not previously connected with either the Pool or the U.G.G. should be secured as manager. The chief objection of the Pool representatives was that if Mr. McRory were retained as manager there would be a great deal of [illegible] in the province on the part of the farmers that the United Grain Growers management was being continued.

The United Grain Growers' representatives on the proposed new board urged chiefly that Mr. McRory had in large measure the confidence of the farmers of Alberta, both Pool and non-Pool, that he had demonstrated his ability in managing the 126 elevators owned by United Grain Growers in Alberta, and that, from the point of view of the success of the new operating company, it was a mistake to drop him, when there was nothing against him, for a new man who would have to familiarize himself with the whole system and organization.

It was found impossible to reach an agreement on this point and it was decided to continue for the time being under the existing arrangements under which the Pool and the Company have worked in Alberta since the Pool was organized three years ago.

The relationship between the Company and the Alberta Pool has always been of the most harmonious kind since the Pool was organized three years ago, and it was the unanimous opinion of both the Pool and the United Grain Growers' boards that there was not only no reason why this should not continue in the future, but that it was highly desirable that it should continue. It was felt by all that the organizations built up after many years of effort could not be destroyed by attacks from without, but could only be injured by internal dissension, which both Boards are determined to avoid.

Canada's Year Of Jubilee

The Dominion of Canada has entered upon its diamond jubilee year and on July first next your Canadians will celebrate in a fitting manner the sixtieth anniversary of Confederation.

It will be most timely and in every way appropriate if in the months later coming before that historic date all Canadian organizations make it the chief item in their programmes to study Canada, past, present and future, and to present facts to their members and the people generally relative to the history, the development, the resources, and the boundless possibilities of the country.

Canada's diamond jubilee year presents a glorious opportunity to all our organizations to make this a "Canada First" year. Would it not be a fine thing if say once a month, every Canadian Club, Rotary Club, Kiwanis Club, Lions Club, and other service organizations, every Homemakers and Community Club, the Canadian Legion, all fraternal bodies (I.O.D.E., Y.M.C.A., Y.W.C.A.), United Farmers' churches and schools devoted a meeting or more to some phase of Canadian life history or development.

Indeed why should the Departments of Education of the several Provinces not arrange a special programme of studies in regard to Canada, all designed to make our people better informed regarding the constitutional development of government in Canada, our position in the Empire, in the League of Nations, and better acquainted with the principles and procedure of governments in Canada, the administration and enforcement of law, in a word, the growth and developments of Canada from the stage of a crown colony to a self-governing nation within the Empire and with full nationhood among the nations in the League of Nations."

This jubilee year presents a golden opportunity for the presentation of historical plays and pageants designed not merely to entertain and bring out the artistic qualities of our people, in their preparation and presentation, but also to instruct in a most effective way.

The twin Provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan are this year celebrating their coming of age as autonomous provinces, and advantage is being taken of this occasion to depict in scenes what the growth and development which has marked the past two decades. In a special way these facts are being presented by floats in parades in connection with our summer exhibitions. But why should plans not now be made, not only in the West, but throughout the length and breadth of the Dominion, to present at every exhibition next year through means of floats, parades and pageants the Canada of 1927 as contrasted with the Canada of 1867?

Canadians, it is true, are not much given to this sort of thing. We are a reserved people and hate to display our feelings and emotions. We are not given to flag waving. But surely all can unite in making the diamond jubilee year of Confederation an exception. We have hundreds of thousands of citizens born in other lands and under other flags, who have chosen Canada as the land of their adoption. This jubilee year should be an effective era to acquaint them with Canada's past history and achievements, to instil in their hearts and minds a real pride in Canada, to enthuse them with a desire to be Canadians in every true sense and meaning of the name.

If our solid twenty millions of the people of this Dominion thought, talked and preached Canada, the cumulative effect in the arousing and development of a real national spirit would be tremendous. It would operate to break down old barriers of race and creed, would wipe out purely sectional considerations, jealousies and rivalries, and create an entirely new spirit throughout the land.

Canada is worthy of the very best that her people can give to it. Let us unite therefore, in giving to Canada one year of undivided loyalty, considered thought, and unselfish devotion—a year of study of Canada, a year of service in endeavouring to arrive at a fuller understanding of her problems and needs, a year of unremitting effort to solve those problems and meet those needs.

Commissioner Dill, of the New Jersey motor vehicle department, said he of will attempt to revoke licenses of automotors who display offensive signs beneath registration plates.

One of the signs to which he objected particularly reads: "If you can read this you are too damn close."

GIRLHOOD DANGERS

Come Through a Weakening of the Blood—A Tonic is Needed

In their early teens it is quite common for girls to outgrow their strength, and mothers should carefully watch the health of their daughters at this time. It is then the strength is sapped by rapid growth that anaemia develops. The first signs may be noticed by pearlishness, languor and headaches. The face grows pale, breathlessness and palpitation become apparent, with fits of nervous depression.

Neglected anaemia often leads to a decline, but if you see that your daughter's blood is enriched, there need be no cause for anxiety. The New Discovery was discovered in Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They will build up your girls' health and reserve for her healthy womanhood is proof of this Mrs George Jamieson, Black's Harbor, N.B., says:—"I think Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a wonderful medicine My daughter, Margaret, was in such a low run down condition that we feared she was going into a decline. Her face was pale, tongue coarse and would have her breakfast in bed. She had no appetite and lost a lot in weight. Up to the time we began giving her Dr Williams' Pink Pills, no treatment had helped her But thanks to the use of this wonderful medicine she is again well and strong, showing no signs of the former trouble and is weakened her."

In all tronbles due to weak, watery blood, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will be found a reliable remedy. Sold by all medicine dealers or sent by mail at 50 cents a box by Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Invited To Palace

Spanish Workman Did Not Recognize King Who Gave Him Lift

Here is another story to add to the many good ones told about King Alfonso of Spain.

Driving recently just outside Madrid, he hailed a lorry driven by a handsome, and a minor adjustment had to be made by the chauffeur. At that moment a tired-looking workman, who was walking in the same direction, came up, and, not recognizing the king, asked him for a lift as far as Madrid. The king, with a smile, told him to jump up, and the car conveyed him swiftly to his humble dwelling in the shops of Madrid. Before the king shook hands with the amazed workman, who had begun to thank him, "Good-bye old man," he said. "Have a good rest, and if you want anything at any time, come and see me at the palace."

Use Bad Language

Modern Mother Responsible For Great Deal of Loose Speech

Bad language of the modern mother is responsible for a great deal of loose speech among school girls and boys, Miss Morrison principal of the Lincoln Highland School for Girls told the annual conference of the high mistresses and masters association in London.

"For years we have made allowances for father's strong language. Miss Morrison asserted. But now mother seems to match as bad and it is having a serious effect on the girls speech among themselves. This is all a part of the so-called greater freedom."

An Unexpected Sequel

Man Failing to Carry Out Death Pact Condemned For Murder

A death pact drama at Southport had an unexpected sequel. The young man aged 18 and his sweetheart of the same age agreed to commit suicide together. The girl died. The man failed to make good his share of the pact and as a result the court has condemned him to death for murder. The law holds that if two persons agree to commit suicide, and, in consequence, one of them dies, the survivor is guilty of murder.

Amateur Mushroom Cultivation

The Fall Is the Best Time For Preparing Beds

Few people have any taste for mush rooms and many would like to grow them The latter would be well advised to consult the Publications Branch, of the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa for Circular No 45, wherein Mr H T Gussow, the Dominion botanist, tells of the requirements of a promising bed of mush rooms. The circular, it might be stated, has been specially prepared for amateurs, who are advised to proceed slowly at the start and to take care that the conditions initially important facilities are provided In the first place the cultivation of mush rooms out of doors in Canada is not recommended as a warranted success As they do not require light, a cellar below a dwelling or a place used for vegetables will answer The fall of the year is considered the most suitable time for preparing the beds The fundamental requirements, says Mr Gussow, are the facilities with which the requisite temperature and degree of moisture may be maintained and controlled, keeping these elements at a uniform level, being the first condition to success Nothing, says our authority, seems more disturbing than sudden drops in temperature or the absence of a system of ventilation preventing the regulation of moisture in air and bed. Proceeding from this remoter the circular deals with the methods of manure and methods of treatment, preparation of the beds, the spawn and spawning, manner of cultivation

Two Prairie Provinces Will Attain Their Majority In Regard To Age On Sept. 1st

The two Canadian provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan attain their majority in regard to age on September 1st next. They will then be 21 years old as provinces of the Dominion. Prior to that date the area they now embrace had the status of territories, administered largely by the Canadian Federal Government.

The creation of the two provinces resulting their majority provides an interesting retrospect. In 1905 the combined population of Alberta and Saskatchewan was 160,000 in round figures. It is now 1,500,000. The value of the annual agricultural production has increased in 21 years from about $10,000,000 to $[illegible],000,000.

Equal Political Rights

British Women Under 30 to Fight For Franchise

British women are about to open a vigorous fight to do away with present suffrage laws which exclude them from the right to vote until they are 30 years old.

Many prominent men have agreed to join a great mass meeting staged by the women's societies in the interests of equal political rights. Among them are Lord Balfour, Lord Cecil and Professor Lawrence, M.P.

George Bernard Shaw, the noted playwright, however, has declined to participate.

Under the present suffrage laws in England, 5,000,000 women above the age of 21, but below the age of 30, are unable to vote while qualified men above the age of 21 have the ballot. All the old time suffrage leaders and thousands of other prominent women protest this discrimination.

One Hulsh Japan Will Not Tolerate

Protest of Police Recently Issued Statement Against Outrages

Tokio is decidedly under the ban in Japan, where the act of assassination is described as an "unclean and indecent habit." Recently the Protest of Police in Tokio issued the following statement:

"Blazing is a common custom foreign to Japan, and it is undesirable that it should be introduced into our country in its unclean, immoderate, indecorous, and ungrateful, and likely to cause the spread of disease."

This "immodest habit" is no doubt roughly repugnant to the Japanese nation that the wonderful statue, "The Kiss," by Rodin, the great French sculptor, sent to Japan for exhibition has been relegated to a public park with a high hoarding screen around it, so that the possibilities of the public may not be shocked.

New Russia Conveys Money To Strikers

Sent to Communists By State Mutts Says Whitehall Gazette

The methods by which Russian money for the striking British miners was sent into England during the general strike, and is still being sent is described in the Whitehall Gazette as follows.

"A sum of money, in one pound and five pound notes is placed in a red envelope in Moscow. This envelope is placed in a diplomatic valise, and the valise is consigned to one of the secretaries of the Soviet Legation at London. He, in his turn, passes the envelope, unopened to a woman—a member of the British Communist party. This woman meets a man member of the Communist party in a room in 56 Bride Street (London) The man leaves 56 Bride Street on a motorcycle and delivers the envelope himself, unopened, to the head office of the Communist party.

Large payments, it is believed, are made by the foreign exchequer to members of the "underground" section of the Communist party, who are known only to two or three at high up circles. Most of those men carry on some sort of business, so that if the secretary refuses to guess that the cheques received by them from Miss. Berlin Park, Vienna are legitimate business sums. A constant sniker at the offices of the Miners' Federation has been identified as an official of the Soviet Legation in London.

New British Industry Growing

Forms Making Artificial Silk See Possibilities in New Material

The rise of the artificial silk industry in marvellous. Scarcely more than two or three years old, already the British fabric shows more than one third of the world's demand for artificial silk. The aspect of this comparatively new trade is unusual. Thousand workmen in Bradford are employed to dye this product. The town of Leicester turns out every thousand pairs of artificial silk stockings a year. The Lancashire cotton weavers are adapting their mills to the industry. This material is of once utilitarian and beautiful, has become the staple fabric for shawls, stockings, dresses, underwear—and its possibilities are only something short of infinite.

It is a fascinating story and a beautiful one, that of the birth of artificial silk in the old dog John Ball, notwithstanding all the crawlers. And it shows, incidentally, that the Britisher every where has the proper name for arts. Britai silk is a supreme product. For it is certain that this silk by any other name is destined to be a household word in all the world.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

THE CALL OF MOSES

Golden Text: Certainly I will be with thee. Exodus 3:12.

Lesson: Exodus 3:11-4:10

Devotional Reading: Psalm 90:12-17

References and Comments

Moses Called to be the Agent of God in a Great Undertaking. Exodus 3:10 "The biography of great men is not confined to public events. It relates the incidents which are private, and describes the experiences which are spiritual results. This it was with Moses. He must be with him in the wilderness in order that we may understand his conduct at the head of the host of Israel." The summons to become the leader of his people, deliverer from their oppression in Egypt, and bring them forth on their way to the Promised Land, came to Moses in Horeb.

"Only in the sacredness of inward silence does the soul truly meet the secret, hiding God. The strength is creative, which afterwards shapes life, and mixes itself with action, is the fruit of those sacred, solitary moments. There is a divine depth in silence We meet God alone" (Dr. F. W. Robertson).

There before a bush that burned and yet was not consumed, Moses heard God speaking to him. As the account of the inspiration of Christ in the wilderness must have come from himself, and in his spiritual way of portraying his inner experience, so the account of the call that came to Moses in the wilderness must have been told by Moses himself and may have been given by him in a personal way. The burning bush may be a representation as outward of something that was inward—the flame of enthusiasm for a great cause. But be that as it may, it is assuredly true that Moses had the power to see the divine depths of the glowing beauty of the bush; he was able to see God in the midst of everyday life.

Canada Reverts to Gold Standard

Canada has now reverted to the gold standard In other words, any holder of paper currency issued by the Canadian Government or by any chartered bank in Canada, may exchange his paper for gold—if he wants to. Canada is nominally a gold standard country, but during the war found it necessary, for financial purposes, to suspend payment in gold, and the paper money issued by the banks was made legal tender. Penny postage is now in effect.

It is rather a curious fact that the three popular beverages, tea, coffee and cocoa, all were introduced into Europe within a few years of each other.

Giving good advice is all right—if we give it to ourselves.

Silver Coins From Royal Mint Delivered During Strike In London

Landed with coins of silver, weighing 47½ tons, a heavy lorry journeyed safely during the strike from the Royal Mint in London to Greenock, and saw the specie safely stowed on board H.M.S. Warspite for Cyprus and other western points. On the lorry were three armed policemen, two special constables, and two drivers. The journey of about 400 miles was made in 41 hours, and very few stops were made, the drivers taking turns at the wheel Except when stopping for petrol, they were on the lorry the whole time, and even ate on the lorry during the journey. The silver was in stout packing cases, covered by a tarpaulin, and there was nothing to indicate the nature of the freight.

NO DEARTH OF CANDIDATES IN FEDERAL FIELD

A London Senate deputy speaker of the house and minister of immigration, will contest Peterboro while Hon Thomas A. Low, former minister of trade and commerce will contest Renfrew.

Lamour has singled out Hon John R Martin, minister of agriculture, as third member of the Quebec cabinet to whom one of Premier Meighen's ultimata pertaining to the making may be hold out. Premier Ferguson and Attorney-in-general Nickle have already been named as possible sacrificials for the federal ministry Of the three Queen's Park men, Mr Martin it was believed in Conservative circles, would be the most likely to accept position but conversions for the larger than of activities at Ottawa.

Montreal Le Devoir organ of Henri Bourassa, nationalist M P for Labelle, gives prominence to the following:

"According to what can be learned today, one of the bombs which the Conservatives are preparing to launch in the vicinity of Sir Robert Borden, former premier of Canada from 1911 to 1919, into public politics in order to assist Premier Meighen in his unfortunate direction during the forthcoming electoral campaign. Mr Meighen, within the past few weeks has hastened to succeed Sir Robert Borden's advice; the latter received him cordially and inspired certain of his decisions."

Floods Have Completely Destroyed Maze of Crop

Mexico City.—Rising flood waters threatened Mexico City with complete isolation and fear is expressed here that the nation may face famine or a food shortage unless large quantities of food are imported to replace crops destroyed by the flood.

All railway tracks within 15 or 20 kilometers of the capital were under water and prospects that the train service between here and El Paso, Laredo and many interior points would be in the same predicament.

In the state of Puebla a steamboat over the Malinche Mountains caused a burst of fear and panic in the city and a mile wide and destroyed over a mile of track near the station

LABOR OPPOSES COAL PURCHASES FROM GERMANY

London.—Lively scenes were enacted in the House of Commons during consideration of the vote on an appropriation of £2,000,000 to pay coal subsidies to the coal industry for the month of June.

The Labor members vigorously opposed buying more coal abroad, some of them did not mince words about it, but nevertheless the vote passed 241 to 118

John Wheatley, who was minister of health in the Labor cabinet, objected particularly to the government buying coal in Germany to beat the British miners who responded to the call to the colors in August 1914

The till in the house came upon the heels of an announcement in the House of Lord that the Yorkshire coal owners had succeeded in effecting the same cuts of wages and profits as other districts thus restoring a standard which it is hoped will be in force until the final stages of the eight hour mines bill have been reached.

London Has Meat War

Royal Packing Firms Cutting Prices Away Below Cost

London A meat war is raging in London, says The Daily Mail Armours have been selling this week at Smithfield, London's central meat market, at less than it costs to import it

The Daily Mail, which is investigating the circumstances, traces the low price to a war among rival British packing firms The newspaper declares the war is being waged with relentless fury, notwithstanding the fact that everyone denies its existence.

During the past year, The Daily Mail declares, firms concerned in importing beef from Argentina are estimated to have lost anything from £1,000,000 to £10,000,000 Nevertheless importation continues without any connection with the demand, and apparently will continue until one of the big concerns has found courage enough to admit it cannot go on losing money to all have done during the past year.

Two Dolls on Empress World Tour

Two of the tiniest passengers on board the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Scotland, making the cruise Around the World, were Mesdemoiselles Fifi and Georgette, a pair of marvellous dolls which amazed the grown-ups. Fifi is a real Parisian blonde and doesn't even know what porcelain is. Georgette is a brunette whose eyes make them once turned in the direction of some lively steward smile. Dressed in the height of fashion, the two mannikins were given an airing on board the deck of the Empress of Scotland almost daily. At the left, above, is Fifi on the lap of an admirer, while on the right is Georgette in the arms of another charming passenger.

THE QUESTION OF EQUAL STATUS FOR DOMINIONS

London.—The issue of dominions and treaties was raised in the House of Lords when Lord Parmoor, asking for information on the nature of negotiations which treaties contracted by Great Britain impose on the dominions called attention to the inconsistency arising from the fact that the dominions were subject to dangers and obligations if Great Britain declared war to enforce rights whereas the dominions after the way they had begged to with, were now claiming the positions of equal partners who have achieved full status

Lord Cheveden, under secretary of state for dominion affairs, replying for the government, said the importance of the issues raised were real issues and they would be discussed at the imperial conference He had only recently received a report of the debate at Ottawa and had not yet found time to digest it

The under secretary said the government was most anxious to assert fully and strongly the principles they attached to the principle of equal status and said it was his opinion that the strength of the empire did not depend on the form of constitutional principles so much as the belief of the heads in the right-ness of the cause they upheld

Tremendously rapid development of forest and water power resources of the Province of Quebec is indicated in the forecast of revenue totalling $6,000,000 from these sources for the current year. Last year the same resources produced a revenue of nearly $4,500,000.

Sixty men from the training camps in Brandon and Clayden, England, have been accepted by the Canadian Government and called on the "Empress of France" at the end of June. They proceeded to Winnipeg after landing at Quebec and will be placed on especially selected farms.

Saskatchewan exported last year 17.4 per cent. of its total production of creamery butter, according to a statement made by the Provincial Dairy Commissioner. The increase in production in 1925 over that of 1920 had amounted to 126.5 per cent., the output last year totalling 18,000,000 lbs.

Cigar on one hundred pilgrims from St. Paul and Minneapolis passed through Montreal recently on their way to the famous shrine of Ste. Anne de Beaupre, near Quebec. They were the advance guard of the great army of pilgrims that visit the shrine every year. While stopping off in Montreal they visited the St. Joseph Oratory in that city, also well-known as a shrine.

Hundreds of students and co-eds from Canadian and American universities have been passing through Montreal recently to board ships for Europe in connection with the Overseas Collegiate Tours that have grown increasingly popular of late years. Many of these collegians travel by Canadian Pacific steamships, "Empress of France" on a recent trip carrying over 250 of them.

Clad in gorgeous scarlet tunics, plentifully decorated with gold braid, forty members of the world-famous Coldstream Guards Band, of London, reached Quebec recently on the Canadian Pacific liner "Metagama" on their third visit to Canada, having been here in 1904 and again in 1911. Under the command of Lieutenant R. G. Evans they will play at Brandon, Calgary, Edmonton, Saskatoon, Regina, Vancouver and the Toronto Exhibition.

The electrification of the main line of the Japanese Government Railway system from Tokio to Shimonoseki, 750 miles, has been long projected, and recently the 45-mile section between Tokio and Odawara has had experimental trains drawn by electric locomotives run twice a day between these points. Owing to the great expense involved it is feared it will be many years before the entire main line can be electrified.

Founded 86 years ago in garrison on the site of which the Canadian Pacific Railway Windsor Street Station in Montreal now stands, the St. Jean Baptiste Society of that city celebrated that event on June 24th last by laying a memorial tablet affixed to the walls of the station. The tablet was the gift of Victor Morin, former president, grandson of the society, who was present and unveiled it.

Negotiations have been completed for the creation, and work will shortly commence, upon a terminal warehousing cold air storage plant, to cost about five million dollars and to be built in Montreal. It is stated that it will be constructed within two months from the end of June, will be ten storeys in height and will have a total space of 600,000 square feet, of which one-third will be for cold storage. The plant will be built by the Montreal Rail and Harbor Terminals, Limited, and cost will be financed by Municipal Bankers' Corporation of Toronto.

We hear that Chris Rean of Pleasant View has disposed of his farm, stock and equipment to Thomas Hodgins, of Agrivale.

There has been a very large attendance of Fort people at the Edmonton exhibition this year; more, we believe, than ever before. The splendid array of attractions secured by the exhibition board has had a great deal to do with this and in our opinion the greatest attraction of all for the people of Fort Saskatchewan was the Coldstream Guards band, as this is a musical town. The Fair was well advertised in the local newspaper and local patrons have found they always get their money's worth; one never hears that expression, "Never again," in connection with the Edmonton exhibition. In this locality it is too popular an institution.

—Calgary Albertan.

Edmonton exhibition is an unusually good one. The fact that it differs from Calgary as much as two exhibitions can differ, indicates the scope of this province of Alberta, one of the smallest in Canada in population and much the greatest in possibilities.

The new post office has been handsomely fitted up by postmaster Wootton. New boxes, nicely varnished and numbered, greet the eye upon entering and the whole layout is an improvement on the old office. The wickets give the place the appearance of a bank, so much so that each time we go in we try to borrow some money. We always fail in this effort but gather consolation in the fact we have been to pay for postage than formerly.

The following changes in postal rates became effective July 1st: Canada (for local delivery) 2 cents for the first ounce, 1 cent for each additional ounce; Canada (except for local delivery), United States, Newfoundland, and all other places in the North American continent 2 cents for the first ounce, 2 cents for each additional ounce. Joanna Answers Questions

Brandon watched the girl who sat opposite him, across the little table. The words she spoke—she spoke that irritated while it taunted, hovered—all by at his lips, and in his eyes. The girl he watched breathed quickly, heavily, while she surveyed the bright scene around them. Her eyes leaps him for corners of the pink and gold dining room, at the dancers and the other tiles in the tables like their own. Suddenly her glance met Brandon's. She resided in him as if she had surprised his reflections, what ever they were.

"It was good of you to come," Dran don murmured. "Presently it will not be such a simple matter to win a tete a tete from you."

"After awhile, I hope, you will tell me what you know and I don't know, if you think there is to be for me." Joanna reversed, the serious chord which was never far absent, showing again in her face.

"We shall have to make a new bargain," he said. "That you will accept from me completely that I am only a spectator to your extraordinary circumstances, for the part of these, and you give me favor. What are you . . . ."

"Please!" Joanna interrupted; "Not now—not just yet."

Brandon had come to her, as they had agreed, in the wake of the flowers she had found, in their tissued boxes, awaiting her when she returned with Georgie from their long round of shopping after her visit to Graydon's office. One of the blooms now clung to her waist. Brandon, as he eyed her, compared its delicate perfections with the more buoyant loveliness of its mistress—as lovelier still marred. Because, by the too elaborately penciled eyebrows, the beaded lashes copied from a screen close-up, and lips that betrayed a new attempt at rouging, still were much too Cupid-like. They were accentuations that few would notice in the conglomerate composite around them, but Brandon's was an experienced taste.

The first evening he had chosen the brightest of the fashionable restaurants where names and distinction of some sort or other are held to be the only acceptable sesames. The women were beautiful and of the varied pattern that decorates the new age. Debutantes and matrons from the first families, naval voiced and redthroated women of the nouveau riche from the last families, and the ever inescapable bevy of movie celebrities from none. Joanna had tasted of the gaudy cabarets—they had been the lamp posts along her paths of gaiety. But here—here were women gowned by the master dressmakers of the day, artists of the world of the silent. And the men matched the women. She

Brandon had come for her—he had chosen the brightest of the fashionable rendezvous for their evening.

He rose instantly, and swept her into the maze on the floor. Joanna observed that women showed they liked him. Brandon's face and voice [illegible] missed him, shifted their eyes quickly to her. What [illegible] their glances puzzled her [illegible] about specialties [illegible] man who knew the man whose name she referred her and I was danced as [illegible] Joanna's partner's name [illegible] a common curious regard for his un- known companion. She considered [illegible] that was natural enough for [illegible] to not like Brandon but were never [illegible] by fascinated by him. She felt [illegible] the hours and was glad when the encore finished.

"Now the questions," she challenged him, abruptly, when she had held a light to her cigaret and then to his own.

"But I haven't made a program of them," he protested—more by his voice was like a caress. "I promise to combine them all into one, or, two, at most, and be content with what ever you conclude to tell me. What are you going to do?—that, of course is the first one."

"And that's longer than any list any man ever put in me," she assured him.

"Yesterday morning I went to my job at the store wondering if I could go along for two weeks' salary. Tonight I'm wondering where to begin to spend money. You see one of my phases—the first one I made got all smashed up somehow, I don't know how—but it's gone—and now I'm [illegible] deep.

"That was a most interesting chap who waited for you last night—in the drawing room," he ventured to wonder if the smash you have in mind came after I left you?"

Joanna looked on into the room, as in the brilliance of the scene to soothe her memory of the hours in the "drawing room [illegible]" after Brandon had gone.

"Yes," she admitted quietly. "After you left. You see John was all that I had, the only one to share with. He

SICK ABED EIGHT MONTHS

After Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Could Do All Her Work and Gained in Weight

Melfort, Saskatchewan. — "I had inward troubles, headaches and severe pains in my back and sides. I was so sick generally that I could not get up and I was in bed most of the time for eight months. An aunt came to visit and help me as I was unable to attend to my baby and could not do my work. She told me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and after taking two bottles I could get up and dress myself. I also took Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Medicine. When I first took the medicine I only weighed seventy-eight pounds. Now I weigh twice as much. If I get out of sorts or worry and can't sleep I always take another bottle of the Vegetable Compound. I find it wonderfully good for female troubles, and have recommended it to my neighbors. I will be only too glad to answer any letters I receive asking about it. — Mrs. WILLIAM RITCHIE, Box 626, Melfort, Saskatchewan.

Face Badly Broken Out With Pimples Cuticura Healed

"My face was so badly broken out with pimples that it was unsightly. They first started with a few blackheads on the sides of my nose and spread. The pimples spread to my forehead, chin and neck. They ached and burned so that I could hardly rest. They looked so badly that I was ashamed to be seen in public. The trouble lasted about three years.

"I read an advertisement for Cuticura Soap and Ointment, so purchased some. I used about two [illegible] of Cuticura Ointment and four cakes of Soap and was healed." (Signed) Mrs. John Kelly, Rt. 3, Bay City, Mich., Nov. 3, 1925.

"I am not so sure of that" she replied quickly.

Sign Posts Of the Sea

Sailors Gain Information From Buoys Which Mark Certain Places

As the traveller by land looks to the fingerposts at cross roads and elsewhere for guidance on his journey, so does the sailor gain information from the buoys or signposts of the sea which mark the water at certain spots

But, unlike the ordinary fingerpost, these sea buoys would convey little or nothing to the landsman at first sight, because the meaning of buoys is a subject that must be studied before it can be understood

For instance, certain buoys of a recognized shape may always be looked for in certain positions when one is making for a harbor or river from seaward. In such cases your course will be marked by "starboard hand" buoys on your right—and "port hand" buoys—on your left

A starboard-hand buoy must always be painted in only one color. A port-hand buoy may be in solid one color or part-color, but its color must differ from that of the starboard-hand buoy. The spherical buoys, marking middle grounds, must be painted with white horizontal stripes. The beacons surmounting buoys must be painted in a single dark color.

PRESERVING AND STORING EGGS

(Experimental Farms Note)

The economical housewife will take advantage of the season of heavy production and consequently low priced eggs to put by a supply of eggs for culinary purposes for use during the season of high prices.

For this purpose there are a number of preservatives that are satisfactory, but the two outstanding ones are "waterglass" and "lime water."

Waterglass is an excellent preservative but it owes a great deal of its popularity to the fact that it can be readily procured at any drug store in convenient form.

Lime water is a much cheaper preservative and experiments carried on by the Experimental Farms have shown it to be equal, if not superior, to waterglass. For a number of years the Experimental Farm at Cap Rouge has been conducting tests in the storing of eggs. Some of the eggs are shipped to the Central Farm each season for examination and it is found that those preserved in lime water are best.

When eggs are to be held in a commercial way, cold storage is essential. The guaranteing process is one that is becoming increasingly popular. For a number of years the Central Farm has been carrying on tests with this process and the results obtained warrant its recommendation to commercial packers.

Literature on the preserving of eggs for domestic purposes or on guaranteing will be sent on application to the Poultry Division, Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa.

Canada's Gains and Losses

Preeminent for its population Canada now has the largest favorable trade balance of any country in the world. During the fiscal year ended March 31, 1926, while imports of goods into Canada substantially increased the exports of Canadian products and manufactured articles increased to a far greater extent with the result that during the year reports exceeded imports by the huge sum of $161,124,985. This is the largest favorable trade balance in the history of the Dominion except in the final of the war years, 1916, when enormous requirements of munitions and other war supplies at high war prices built up the balance.

During the last fiscal year Canada not only enjoyed a favorable trade balance with the British Empire but it also had a favorable balance with foreign countries and an adverse balance with the United States. Despite this adverse balance with the United States, however, more than offset a favorable balance with other foreign countries. The total of Canada's foreign trade last year was $2,555,279,429, or about $250 for every man, woman and child in the Dominion.

It is this large favorable trade balance which has contributed so largely to our improvement in Canadian exchange and placed the Canadian dollar at a premium in the United States as well as in other countries. It is a sign of the returning prosperity so strikingly in evidence throughout the country as an unusual rate and a promise of further advances in the future.

It is while Canada is thus making really remarkable progress in the markets of the world it continues to suffer heavy and quite unnecessary and preventable losses at home. Of first importance because to us the most serious is the unnecessary loss of life from wholly preventable causes. Two previous articles in this column reference has been made to losses sustained through disease which could be avoided by the exercise of proper precautions. Attention at this time may well be directed to the increasing list of fatalities and serious injuries to life as a result of reckless automobile driving. The newspapers are full of accounts of fatal motor accidents, nearly all of which could and would have been avoided by the exercise of ordinary care. Recently the Railway Commission of Canada issued a bulletin dealing with only one cause of accidents, namely, the dangerous practices of motorists and drivers of other vehicles at railway crossings. This bulletin records the fact that the previous year Canadian Pacific railway engines struck 242 cars because of gross negligence by motorists at grade crossings within the last twelve months and these cases did not cover all crossings, but only a selected few. One citizen is of much greater value to Canada than one thousand, or dollars' worth of foreign trade. Each life lost to Canada is a heavy economic loss to the country.

Another source of loss is brought to public attention every summer when the papers are filled with reports of disastrous forest fires in which the growth of centuries is wiped out and untold millions of dollars of timber destroyed. Some of these fires are started by lightning or other natural causes, but many are the direct result of carelessness on the part of campers and others.

It is not through forest fires alone that Canada suffers. The fire flood is as much throughout the Dominion every day in the year, with the result that the per capita fire loss in Canada ranks among the highest in the world. Total Canada as a whole the annual fire loss is slowly decreasing, having dropped from $34,390,000 in 1922 to $19,282,000 in 1923 and $16,216,000 in 1924 to $16,212,000 in 1925. But this decrease has been largely offected in Ontario and Quebec, the decrease in the former province in the nine years being over $8,000,000 and in Quebec nearly $4,000,000. The record of the four Western Provinces offers an unfavorable contrast. Five homes west of the Great Lakes were $11,768,000 in 1922, rising to $13,462,000 in 1923, $13,672,000 in 1924 and $12,868,000 in 1925. Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia all sustained heavier fire losses in 1925 than in 1922, while Manitoba showed a decrease.

The besetting sins of far too great a proportion of people in this age and country are wastefulness, carelessness, recklessness, culminating in a disregard for consequences, and inevitably resulting not only in individual and national economic loss but in untold suffering and much loss of life.

Record Trade Balance

Largest Trade Balance Per Capita of Any Country in the World

Canada now has the largest favorable trade balance per capita of any country in the world.

For the fiscal year ended March 31, 1926, Canada's favorable trade balance amounted to $161,124,985, an increase over the previous year of $116,705,293. Only on one occasion previously in the dominion's history has the balance been as large, namely, the war year 1916, when it amounted to $166,727,711. Among the principal exports are agricultural products which for the 12 months under review totalled in value over $600,000,000. Of this amount the field and grain products accounted for $484,412,176, more of which were the products of the fertile farm lands of Western Canada alone than the entire United States with nearly 100 times as much cultivated land which 25 years ago were new land values and markets.

Many of these lands can be bought at prices rang from $15 to $20 an acre.

Ship Alberta Coal By Water

Claim Saving of $3.50 on Coal by the Lake Route

An appreciable reduction in the cost of Alberta coal to the Ontario consumer is effected by the employment of waterbound cartage, according to the claims of a deputy minister who appeared before the Ontario Board of Railway and Municipal Commissioners which is investigating the matter. Evidence for the province is filed on the haulage rates in question.

It was stated that by shipping Alberta coal by water the price laid down in Ontario would be $11.50 per ton, whereas, under the train haulage of recent years, which prevailed last winter, the cost would be about $15 per ton.

Battle With Sharks

Seaman Falls Overboard in Tropical Sea and Has Thrilling Adventure

A thrilling account of a two hour fight for life against sharks as I miles of prey in the pitch darkness of a tropical sea at midnight was told by officers of the British steamer Derry Castle.

The big freighter was just south of the equator bound from Philadelphia to Capetown when Tony Madison, 26-year-old seaman, had his balance and fell into the water.

In the darkness his fall was unobserved and he was not missed until an hour later when the ship put about and slowly retraced its course.

In the morning, fatal cries were heard. Two boys with fierce were tossed overboard and Madison was seen struggling in the water. When the seaman was pulled aboard, both legs were bleeding from shark bites and his face was torn and pecked by great birds which had swarmed down on him.

The British Temperament

Important Facts Which Stand Out In Connection With the Recent Strike

Two great facts in connection with the general strike should be appreciated by people overseas. The first is that the ideas of the great mass of British citizens are sound, sensible and moderate. Sooner or later resort is had to reasoning rather than to violence. Wherein is seen the fundamental difference between the British temperament and that prevailing in certain other countries. The second fact to dun to decency of common rights and privileges, all classes will at once unite. Soldier Settlement Scheme is Showing Good Results

Of the $100,000 000 advanced by the Federal Government to veterans of the great war agreed on farming land, $36,000,000 has already been returned to the Dominion's treasury, according to Major John Bernard, director of settlement board. Major Barnard further stated that the government's scheme was showing promising results and that 30.00 ex-soldiers were now helping to cultivate Canada's vast farming areas.

Minard's Liniment for Colds

Millions Are Lost Annually In The Western Provinces Through Lack of Research Work

The lamentably apathetic attitude of this country toward scientific research is frequently pointed out. Lack of financial assistance for industry is a standing tribute with the Canadian Manufacturers' Association. It was referred to again at the recent annual convention. Men who understand how research is being carried on, how experiment is being provided in other countries and the handicap under which Canada is labouring by comparison cry out for an awakening which does not come. We are no busy over thinking little things that fail to appreciate the large problems a mile then of which could wipe out many of the unsolvable difficulties were the Toronto Globe.

It might amaze even the Canadian Manufacturers Association to hear Dr. H. M. Tory explain such an organization as a department of science, industry and commerce could in a few years be made to mean far more to industry than all the past tariff changes about which there is so much agitation." These are words he used in an address which he published in the Toronto Board of Trade Journal. They emphasize what he regards as the failure of the city fathers to tackle such subjects. It is quite natural that, as president of the Advisory Council on Scientific and Industrial Research, he should be partial to that organization, but his arguments are highly convincing.

We are lamenting the departure of university trained men from Canada. Many of them have been drained by other countries paying salaries of dollars annually on research work, while we spend not more than a quarter of a million. The field awaits them at home as their own profit and that of the country, but we do not provide it. There are scores of questions demanding solution in order that our industry agriculture and natural resources, requiring the employment of specialists and each of them offering a potential return to the country of many millions of dollars a year. Canada is losing in letting the initiative and producing ability of these men go elsewhere, but is losing infinitely more in failing to grasp the opportunities which would keep them here.

It is a typical case, as Dr Tory points out, that more time and attention are given to the expenditure of $2,000,000 on the Hudson Bay Railway than on the elimination of wheat rust in the west, yet during the last five years Manitoba and Saskatchewan have lost $35,000,000 annually through this blight. And when an expert in pathological work was required to study the subject the salary offered was $2,500. During the past four years the country has paid out $3,000,000 for cattle slaughtered because of tuberculosis trouble, yet the country is not willing to pay for research to wipe out the malady.

The discovery of Marquis wheat has already been responsible for $500,000 to Western Canada. The separation of the bitaneen from the tar sands in Northern Alberta has been worth millions of dollars so far, and will eventually run into wealth which cannot at present be estimated. These matters are only illustrative of what can be done in industry as well as with regard to natural resources. Research under Germany has not been the United States industrial leaders. Britain is now spending £5,000,000 a year in bettering the service which research work will disclose. The United States is spending much more to continue its development. But Canada is almost hopelessly lumbering.

We mourn about our taxes and our debt, and this is Dr Tory's reply: "I say to you that it we would throw off the mantle of pessimism and the infantile complex which has possessed us, and this the war in this trained and favorable intelligence of our own people in one generation we would add to the national assets of our country more treasure the population of our national debt."

Optimism, energy and determination to submerge minor things in a practical working out of the greater problems are all that Canada needs.

Co-operative Livestock Marketing

Taking Necessary Steps to Form Organization in Manitoba

Following the inter provincial conference on co-operative livestock marketing at Regina, held a short time ago, the United Farmers of Manitoba have taken steps to bring about the formation of a provincial organization for co-operative livestock marketing similar to those already established or under way in Alberta and Saskatchewan at the meeting of the central board of the association on June 17 it was decided to call a meeting to be held in Winnipeg on August 5, of representatives of the U.F.M. locals which are co-operatively shipping and of organized shipping associations in Manitoba. This meeting will consider the question of getting co-operative livestock marketing in Manitoba on a constructive basis. Several U.F.M. locals and associations as a result, have established or taken steps to do so, and the central board of the U.F.M. wants to get such groups and any others of making use of the contract plan to which the U.F.M. is committed in its dealings with the co-operative livestock shippers.

Mr. Bragg, the Regina conference was arranged to establish an inter provincial committee on co-operative livestock marketing to put recommendations into effect, and this committee was duly appointed from each province. Mr. A. J. M. Poole president of the United Farmers of Manitoba, has been appointed by the committee to represent Manitoba on that committee. He will not until the meeting is opened assemble his report, but says: "Organization is held, and that body will be asked to support the representation is not afraid that done."

Canadian Seed Growers

To Enlarge Scope By Growing Certified Vegetable Seed

Plans have been made by the Canadian Seed Growers to enlarge the scope of the association in the matter of certified vegetable seeds. The horticultural committee has placed several articles in vegetables among the eligible list, and elite stocks of foundation seed will be distributed among several of the Dominion experimental farms for increase and from there they will be placed in the hands of the growers.

Sweet Clover As A Green Manure

Shown to Greatly Increase the Yield Of Wheat

Comparing sweet clover with peas as green manure crops the results were quite decisively in favor of sweet clover in experiments over several years conducted at the Brandon, Manitoba, experimental farm. The yield per acre of wheat following the ploughing under of sweet clover was higher than that after peas or after summerfallow even when seeded Brandon, this sweet clover can be seeded with the oat crop, the pea vine season at a very small cost, while the cost of seeding peas as a green manure is no small item. Furthermore there is no loss from pea aphis, a pest requiring two ploughings during the summer, whereas the ploughing under of sweet clover can be done early the following year, after the crop has been removed.

The experiments also show that in those districts in which moisture is the prime requisite sweet clover should be ploughed under when no higher than 15 inches. On the other hand where moisture is not the chief factor in profitable production it is better to allow the plant to attain a height of 18 to 20 inches as the amount of nitrogen returned to the soil is in direct proportion to the height of the crop when ploughed.

Beet Sugar Industry

Area to Seeds of About 7,000 Acres in Southern Alberta

The beet sugar industry in Southern Alberta is entering in the second season of its operations with an area to beets of about 7,000 acres, which fairly well completes the quota of 10,000 acres allotted to the factory at Raymond, Alta., plant, stated after an inspection of beet lands that until conditions were very favorable. While some growers may be obliged to irrigate their beet land, this practice is generally in force.

The United Irrigation district, southwest of Cardston, will ship beets to the Raymond factory for the first time this fall. The extension of a branch line of the Canadian Pacific railway into the district has for its first mark makes the growing of sugar beets feasible. This line, 19 miles in length, is now under construction, and by a fellide will extend for some 25,000 acres. The block is occupied by Mormon farmers, who are experienced sugar beet growers. The district will raise upwards of a thousand acres of beets this year.

Canada Ships More Wheat

Over Half of World's Wheat Exports Made By Canada in Period Under Review

Over one-half of the wheat exports of the principal wheat exporting countries of the world during the period from August 1, 1925, to February 28, 1926, was made by Canada. Accordingly to statistics of the Canadian Pacific railway, wheat exports in the period under review totalled 318,874,000 bushels and of this amount Canada shipped 192,152,000 bushels. In the same period last year exports of wheat from Canada amounted to only 99,318,700 bushels.

Ask For Government Subsidy

Beet Sugar Industry For B.C. Is Possible Soon

Establishment of sugar beet industry in British Columbia will be undertaken if the Provincial Government will subsidize the production of sugar at the rate of $40,000 a year. W. H. Watson, head of a Vancouver syndicate, informed the cabinet. The proposition calls for a factory at New Westminster to cost about $1,250,000, and capable of handling one thousand tons of beets a day.

The subsidy asked of the government would amount to one-half cent a pound on all sugar produced up to ten million pounds.

A rule may work both ways and still be a poor one.

Believes That Next Great War Will Be Fought In The Air And Will Be Decided Quickly

Dates Of Cutting Rested Wheat

In Ordinary Seasons Early Cutting Found To Be Detrimental

The Brandon, Manitoba, experimental farm has during the last three years carried on experiments to decide upon the effect of pre-maturer harvesting of rested wheat on the yield, quality and plumpness of the grain. The experiments, which are described in the report of the superintendent in charge that in ordinary seasons early cutting is distinctly detrimental, while during even severe rust and in most nothing is gained by cutting earlier than the prime dough stage. Ordinarily it is good practice to begin cutting before the grain is dead ripe on account of the large acreage to be cut. This is particularly true when the straw stem sawfly is prevalent and when the varieties of wheat grown are prone to shatter.

This champion Valley cow has now cut behind the record in the four year old class in which she was running the final test, but she has also passed the record of Brookmere Jersey cows in this particular and had topped the record for actual milk production in this breed.

Lawns For Farm Homes

Valuable Hints For Cultivating Lawns On the Prairies

The growing of lawns on the prairies is particularly difficult because of the lack of sufficient moisture in most seasons. Several grasses and clovers have been tried out at the Dominion experimental station at Brandon, and the following mixture is a mixture of 15 pounds of Kentucky blue grass seed and one pound of white Dutch clover seed sown at the rate of one pound to 500 square feet. Preparation for the lawn must begin the year before the seed is sown. The best satisfactory method is to give a heavy coating of manure and plant potatoes.

This enriches the soil, clean the weed and leaves the soil in splendid physical condition. The ground is then thoroughly cultivated in the spring and harrowed. If the season is late fall an opportunity is afforded to sow any depredations that may occur during the winter. In the spring as soon as the ground can be worked and the soil again worked and rolled and rake it in the fall. Apply manure in fall or sowing and raking in spring. If the seed needs watering it is advisable to do so in the evening. Cutting in dry season and cut frequently. Frequent mowing water is available the condition of the lawn will be greatly improved by watering with a fine sprinkler weekly.

The movement so far this year is about volume that is between the two ports and the final figure of the grain movement through the port for the 1925-1926 season are expected to exceed a new record.

Explanations and Comments

Instruction As To the Instituting of the Passover (Exodus 11:1-10) In the words of Rabbi Wise "It is the natal day of the first independent nation constituted upon the principles of liberty and equality." It was fitting that the new era should be dated from that deliverance. To Moses and Aaron came the assurance that God fulfilled a change in the calendar to commemorate the great deliverance he would accomplish for them. "This month shall be unto you the beginning of months; it shall be the first month of the year to you." This month was the month Abib, which corresponded to the end of March and the beginning of April. The month Tishri, the month of harvests had been the beginning of the year. After the Exile the month Abib was known by the Babylonian name of Nisan. It was the month of the birth of a nation, and therefore it was fitting that as a perpetual reminder it should be the beginning of their year. "The later Jews had a twofold computation of the year—the ecclesiastical year, which began in autumn in the seventh month of the sacred year in Egypt the year properly began with the summer equinox, when the Nile commenced to rise" (Edersheim).

Safer Flying Craft

To Make Travel in the Air As Safe As On Land Or Sea

The time is coming when it will be as safe to travel in the air as on the land or the sea. In the opinion of the board of trustees of the Guggenheim Fund for the promotion of aeronautics, and to hasten the arrival of this era the board will sponsor an international competition for the construction of safer aeroplanes.

Between $150,000 and $200,000 will be appropriated from the fund to finance the contest, the board has announced. It hopes that the best designers and builders of aircraft throughout the world will compete.

Stimulation of commercial air transportation is the chief aim of the board. In its opinion aviation has too long been limited to principally military uses.

An Interesting Ceremony

U. S. Scouts Send British Comrades Bronze Statuette

An interesting little ceremony took place in Gilwell Park, Essex, when the Prince of Wales, in behalf of the British Boy Scouts, 150 of whom were present, accepted at the hands of the United States ambassador, Alanson B. Houghton, a bronze statuette of an American bison, the gift of the Boy Scouts of the United States as a token of goodwill and friendship.

The statuette is dedicated to the "unknown scout" who, by doing a good turn to a United States tourists, induced the United States to take up the scout movement.

SAPIRO MAKES PLEA FOR UNITY AMONG FARMERS

Saskatoon, Sask.—An appeal to end factional strife in the Canadian agricultural ranks in the interests of the progressive movement was made here last night by Aaron Sapiro, American co-operative marketing expert, who addressed a meeting of 1,000 farmers and put full into their cause.

Mr Sapiro plainly expressed his opinion of the wrangling of some of those present, who, he said, were not helping the movement in the country. He held up the tragic events of some of them as examples of what results when there is no spirit of true co-operative spirit in land. "I appeal with you as might one to lose that co-operative spirit in two years you have made wonderful progress, but the whole world by reason of what you have accomplished by means of your pool. I shall not feel content until you have formed that spirit to the extent that on every Saskatchewan farm, in every Saskatchewan home there shall be the true spirit of co-operation the realization of human life as you have no expressed in them."

Wilson the evening meeting presided. Dr Walter Murray, president of the university, took the chair. Fellowship was extended to Sapiro by Premier Dr Anderson and Hon. C. M. Hamilton briefly spoke of the wheat pool and welcomed Sapiro. Dr Murray addressed the audience.

The vast audience rose en masse and Mr Sapiro was introduced by Premier Dr Anderson and at the close of his address was greeted by Dr. Murray as a fellow citizen from whom he called for Britishers and there.

Stormont, the best muse to Nova Scotia, when gold-mining in the province was an industry, is to be re-opened. Until it closed down, twelve years ago, Stormont mine had produced over $78,000 tons of ore, giving an average of free gold of $6.12 per ton, or $2,220,000 during its activity.

A record single shipment of Indian motor-cycles, consisting of 83 cases, from Armory, Mass., recently arrived in Tokyo, Japan, having come forward by Canadian Pacific Rail and steamer lines. The demand for motor-cycles in Japan is a steadily increasing one, being a cheap and convenient method of locomotion and still suited to the somewhat narrow roads of that country.

Twenty-one British Rotarians recently came over to Canada on the Canadian Pacific liner "Montclare" en route to the International Rotary convention at Denver. On their return trip they came back through Canada, travelling to Winnipeg and Fort William, and taking the Great Lakes trip on C.P.R. steamboat to Port McNichol. They returned to the Old Country by the C.P. liner "Montcalm."

The Canadian Pacific Railway has just added two of the new Mount Clean observation cars to those running out of Montreal. Five more are just about ready to run and the balance of four cars will be ready for service shortly after these. They are all-steel cars, made up of three compartments, and one drawing room with a parlor room and observation platform. They will be a feature of long-run trains on the C.P.R.

The English football team now touring Canada had ego of the most strenuous weeks in the history of any athletic body. Staying for a week-end at the Chateau Lake Louise they had a practice at an altitude of a mile and a half above sea level, where the thinness and dryness of the air had a wonderful effect upon them. Their captain thought it remarkable that prize-fighters in training had not utilized the marvelous properties of this training camp.

New C.P.R. Cold Storage Cars

Under old conditions there was always a certain amount of fruit in shipping fruit. The entry of dust or cinders, or the high temperature of the car, was frequently the cause of fruit becoming spoiled during transit. But under present conditions, fruit not only retains its colouring, freshness and firmness when it is shipped from one point to another, but it is actually improved.

For many months officials of the Canadian Pacific Railway and the Dominion Exper... have been carrying on experimental work with a new type of ventilated express car to be used in the handling of soft fruits by express to prairie points, and they have recently arrived at an entirely new method of ventilating express equipment, which is known as the "B. C. Ventilator."

This device allows the air to be received into the car through two spacious intakes located at the ends of the car at the roof, carried to the floor without decreasing in velocity and effectively distributed through the lower sections of the car. Therefore in a minute there is a complete change of air, 16,270 cubic feet of air per minute being recorded through the intakes and 9,355 through the exhausts.

The type of Ventilator was tested out under full load conditions

Have a Hobby

Among the many excellent features of that splendid organization, the Boy Scouts is the encouragement and development of hobbies. It was recognized by the founder of the Boy Scouts that boys of a certain age invariably grouped together for their activities, whether in play or work, that the 'gang' spirit prevailed. And almost without exception these boys had definitely developed a hobby which in them is of absorbing interest and arouses their enthusiasm although outsiders in many appear quite unimportant, even futile.

It is one of the Boy Scout programme to encourage boys to adopt some hobby that is really worthwhile one that appeals to them, and to then help them to develop a hobby to a point where it will prove of real value to them and to the fellow men. Thus the Boy Scouts offer badges for efficiency on the part of its members in an almost inconceivable number of things.

Time is full of instances of men and women who have developed their hobby to a point where they became the real passion and business of their lives, resulting in important discoveries and inventions and bringing untold benefits to the world as well as fame and riches fortune to the hobbyist.

George Eastman, the kodak inventor and manufacturer was a bank clerk and a shipping clerk on a holiday trip he decided to take photographic plates visit to several towns in his widowed mother. In those days, half a century ago, amateur photographers were few in number because the unsightly photographic equipment was bulky and crude and the work of picture taking, developing and printing difficult. Eastman decided it could be simplified and in his spare time in his mother's kitchen made photography his hobby. The result is well known.

Luther Burbank's hobby was horticulture, and he amazed the world with the achievements in the development of new plants and flowers and in demonstrating how they could be improved in size and beauty. Charles Minot Thompson and others have made the life and habits of birds their hobby with the result that mankind has learned how much we owe to the feather folk, and how, without their help, destructive grubs, worms and insects would soon play havoc with gardens, orchards and our food supplies. Another man, Johnston by name, within the past twelve years has, as a hobby, grown birds from tropical and sub-tropical trees and plants with the result that he has proven that many things, which the United States now imports from foreign lands, to the extent of hundreds of millions of dollars can be raised at home.

Many a boy has a mechanical turn of mind which soon finds expression in some form or hobby and which, if rightly directed, encouraged and developed, may point to the occupation in which he may find the greatest enjoyment and success in life.

But apart from hobbies of this character, it is well that the business and professional man and woman should have a hobby. It should be something distinctly different from that in the office, store, shop, workshop, factory, mine, mill and office—man will find healthful recreation and diversion pleasure in it during his spare time to the development of some hobby that takes him out doors, calls for the use of the muscles rather than the concentration of the mental faculties.

This is fundamental, a growing realization of the value of hobbies, although they are not always classified as such. Service clubs in the cities are more and more turning their activities in the direction of helpful, humanitarian service. Thus we find these Club members making a real hobby out of providing outings for orphaned, under nourished and crippled children, and finding as much pleasure in doing so as they provide for these little unfortunates.

Hobbies there are such as the collecting of stamps, coins, antiques, china, pictures and other articles too numerous to mention. These all have their value in freeing the mind from too close and constant application in business affairs and worries, even though they may not result in added anything very worthwhile to the lives of others and the advancement of the world.

The main thing is to have a hobby. Parents should encourage their children in this direction and carefully refrain from ridiculing what may seem rather silly and purposeless to them. So impatient a study of a child's hobbies may give a valuable indication of the direction which such child's training should be given.

Six plants in Canada were engaged solely in the manufacture of radio sets or parts, nine other companies made sets and parts in connection with the manufacture of other electrical apparatus and 17 of the manufacturers of batteries in Canada reported an output for radio purposes.

Statistics for 1925 show a substantial growth in the radio industry during that year and also reveal a total sales amount

Brandon came to Joanna's rescue She will survive, even Reddy I'm sure," he commented "She has a most discriminating way of putting the proper people in the right places"

Over the coffee they talked of the scenery, of Graydon, and Eggleston and quite understood Joanna's inability to make plans As often as she could, Joanna watched Yvonne, and studied her She was of the kind that [illegible] does comes to the silk counter of a department store Joanna decided she was a bright example of the butterfly who hovers gaily over the most de sirable gardens in that world to which Miss Twenty seven of the silks," had aimed no closer than the farthest edge until tonight And she thought that Yvonne was deliberately reaching out to her, as if to bring her within some common bond Immediately though she considered if this feeling were not born of her own self consciousness

In the local police court John Uhryn of Edmonton was last week fined $5.00 and costs by Magistrate Adam son for failing to keep to the right of the centre of the highway when passing another motor vehicle, this being an infraction of the Vehicle and Highways Traffic Act

The case was the outcome of an accident on the Fort trail. It appears that Dr. Henry, Fort Saskatchewan, was travelling toward Edmonton and one of the gravel trucks working on the road came toward him in the centre of the road. The doctor was able to see that he could not conveniently pass the truck so pulled to the side of the road and stopped. The truck kept on its course along the centre of the road and grazed the hind part of Dr Henry's car, thereby smashing the hub cap and rear fender.

FIELD DAY ON BEE-KEEPING AT RED DEER

Wednesday, August 11

Beekeeping is rapidly becoming an important industry in Alberta For several years numerous experiments in methods of prevention of swarming, summer and winter protection, and increasing honey production have been under way at the Dominion Experimental Station, Lacombe. This year a new experiment was started to compare different races or breeds of bees. The proper breed of bees is even more important than the proper breed of live stock. Twelve colonies of bees for this experiment are at the residence of Mr. Wright Beaumont, 5th street North, Red Deer. At 2 p.m Wednesday, August 11th, a demonstration of methods of handling bees, and the results of these experiments will be given at Mr. Beaumont's home. Anyone interested in bee keeping is invited to be present.

Tolerance

Some years ago that master craftsman among movie picture directors D. W. Griffith, conceived and produced a great spectacular film play under the title "Intolerance." Like other Griffith productions it was one with a wonderful and entertaining picture, but it sought to teach a great lesson. It depicted in a convincing manner the wrong inflicted upon humanity at different periods of the world's history as a result of the intolerant views held by those in power for the time being.

Unquestionably, with the growth of education and a more widespread enlightenment of people, there is a lessening of bigotry and a larger degree of toleration in the world today than ever before in its history, and it is a matter for rejoicing to know this spirit is developing. Nevertheless, there is plenty of room for a still greater development of this spirit not only in later international relations, but within the bounds of each individual nation.

With another general election pending in Canada it is perhaps timely to urge the necessity for the display of a more tolerant spirit and attitude in matters political. As individuals we may differ on points of constitutional law but that is no reason why one person or group should denounce those who do not see eye to eye with them as disloyal either to Canada or the Empire. West and East may hold opposite opinions as to matters of the tariff, and both be perfectly honest and sincere in their views, but such difference of opinion surely provides no reason why the West should denounce the East as deserving of bleeding the West, or for the East to accuse the West as selfish and ready to ruin all Eastern industry. Unity of opinion on such a controversial question is impossible, but it is possible that there be, and there should be, a tolerant attitude and a respect for each other's views.

A spirit of tolerance should obliterate from the adversaria of ever-religious denomination or sect, yet all too frequently the reverse is true and the narrowest bigotry and bitter intolerance is displayed. In this, however, it is pleasant to note that the old clerical and religious antagonisms and intolerance which for so many years in our past history disgraced and disrupted Canada have largely passed away. Today in our own country as well as elsewhere change—and for the better—is the world over. Even the Fundamentalists are not the Modernists. By all means let there be full discussion and debate. Only so will the full truth be disclosed and established, but it is all let there be charity and tolerance.

It is well to remember that intolerance and bigotry are by no means confined to religion and politics. As Dr. Frank Oliver, head of the University of Wisconsin, and former editor of The Century Magazine, recently pointed out, there are bigots of patriotism, bigots of education, bigots of science, bigots of business, bigots of journalism, bigots of medicine, bigots of theology, bigots of reform. Each and every one of them is dangerous, and every one of them doing real damage to the cause of truth.

There is a very real need still apparent for a constant preaching of the gospel of tolerance; a very real need for combatting the still all too prevalent tendency on the part of many people to adopt an intolerant attitude towards all people and all questions with whom or which they are not in agreement. This "I alone am right, and you are wrong and must therefore be suppressed" attitude is the cause of more heart burnings and mentally quarrels than almost any one other thing in our present day civilization.

Intolerance, nothing else, has split many a village and small town into factions not only to the detriment of each and every individual but to such an extent that all community spirit and enterprise has been killed. And, after all, it is the most futile and nonsensical of human weaknesses. On the other hand, respect for other people's opinions, the encouragement of a spirit of charitableness, makes for peace, happiness and contentment in the home, for helpful co-operation in community life and effort, and for strength and unity in the nation. Intolerance aims at the suppression of truth, but truth cannot be suppressed. It is mighty and will prevail, and all that intolerance in thought and action can accomplish is to create ill-will and discord and thus retard the onward march of progress and achievement.

Anyway, the man who has no faith in himself is able to realize his own weakness.

Opportunity is an angel in disguise that some people suspect of being a pound lady, whose diet included the cold brick poultice.

Wonder Canyon Of Rockies

Trapper and Explorer Finds Gorge That Rivals the Colorado Canyon

A deep mountain canyon, carved at most perpendicularly through a high rocky ridge a canyon so deep that it is said its rival the world famous Colorado canyon, has been discovered by Albert Mercer, trapper and explorer, who has returned from a long journey through the little known wilderness of the Upper River country in British Columbia.

The spring fever attempted to penetrate the country of the south fork of the Upper River, a country that has aroused his curiosity. Even though he did not reach his objective, he discovered the canyon and he believes that this find amply rewarded him.

The canyon is from 12 to 15 miles long and from three to four thousand feet deep. It is a paradise for mountain goat, Mercer claims. The can yon, he says, is so comic that wolves and other enemies of the goat cannot penetrate its fastnesses. He saw goats skipping about on points of rocks where a misstep would mean a straight drop of thousands of feet.

The south fork of the Upper River country and would be a favored hunting spot if more accessible.

Western Farmers Should Receive Higher Prices For Wheat On The Basis Of Protein Content

The protein content of Canadian wheat averages so much above that of wheat from other countries that there should be strong price preference for the Canadian farmer than is now obtained, but it is doubtful whether such recognition will come so long as chemical analysis is our given definition which is the established standards for wheat grading. Neither United States nor Canadian millers give a reverential bow to this factor, that results in increased return to the farmer producing extra fine wheat

Protein content of the wheat constitutes an index of the gluten result in the flour. Flour with high gluten content is more nutritious absorbs more water and will make more loaves to bread per barrel. Standards of bread making in Canada and the United States have reached a point where bakers pay close attention to the chemical analysis of their materials, with the result that they are willing to pay premiums for better flours. When this was first trade-d, millers were able to pick up odd lots of good quality wheat in a particular grade without paying more than the average price for that grade. Now, however, the situation is changed. A recent statement in "Wheat studies" is to the effect that "There are great variations in the protein content of wheats of a given grade. Consequently, because of the importance of protein in milling and baking qualities, there is commonly a far greater range of prices for wheats of the same grade but of different protein content, than between average pds a for adjacent grades."

To a great extent the farmer has failed to profit by this new criterion of wheat values because his wheat is sold almost entirely by standard grades. The dry land farmer who produces under conditions of high cost both because of summerfallowing and frequent loss of crops, is the farmer whose wheat would receive most recognition under this new standard. Recognition of protein content is a big factor in grading wheat will do much to aid many of the farmers who are now meeting problems and will also raise the general level of the quality of the wheat produced. In the long run, standardization of a type which gives full credit for quality, benefits both the producer and consumer

In line with the idea concerning the importance of emphasizing protein content is another suggestion pointing out the advantages of a policy of keeping low grades wheat of the market and using those grades for feed purposes Not only do low grades have a disproportionately bearish effect upon the market, but they also tend to injure the reputation of the region from which they are derived. Strict maintenance of perfect standards has gone far to reward quality production but because of the high quality of our wheat, further refinement of standards in terms of protein content will be particularly advantageous to Canada

The province of Saskatchewan is particularly interested in this phase of the development of wheat production and marketing. It is a fact—by the way, not sufficiently advertised—that Saskatchewan wheat has the highest protein content of any wheat growing area in Canada, and its milling interests of the dominion have a map showing the particular districts in this province where the high protein wheat is grown. South of the main line of the Canadian Pacific Railway and west of the Moo Line, produces the largest quantities of this extra high grade milling wheat. The importance of this to our farmers is not yet realized. By concentrating on quality wheat, production and establishing a Saskatchewan inspection system, and placing our wheat on the world's market as Saskatchewan wheat instead of the generalization of the northern millwers, it is possible that immense benefit may accrue to our grain growers, particularly when the Hudson's Bay route is opened up, ensuring our wheat reaching the markets of the world pure and unsullied by low grade mixtures. It appears that it would be a great mistake for Saskatchewan to regard the present inspected system as fixed. Under it our wheat producers are suffering a loss for the benefit of the Canadian grain crop as a whole. —Moose Jaw Times.

The Feeding Of Chicks

Feed Containing Cod Liver Oil Found Of Great Benefit

Most satisfactory results are reported at Lacombe, Alta., Dominion experimental station from feeding chicks with a commercial starting feed containing a percentage of cod liver oil. The feed is supposed to be fed dry in open troughs or feeders as an early time starting feed for the first two weeks at a chick a life. The superintendent of the station Hilf J. A. McCarty in his annual report, states that last year almost all the chicks were started on this starter meal and that the results were outstanding in the health of the chicks, there was being a case of leg-weakness or rickets and no one pickling. Fresh water was always available and sour milk was gradually introduced after the fourth or fifth day, about the slight or tenth day alternate feeds of a good scratch feed was scattered in a litter, which practice was continued until the chicks were around six weeks old when they were gradually accustomed to coarser grain. Soft-boiled eggs were given in preference to hard-boiled. Enrolled results were obtained from having a house raised a ration of equal parts of wheat and oat chop and oats in one compartment, and mash and a dry mash of bran, middlings, cornmeal and a percentage of beef scrap in another compartment. Mr McClary concisely states this counsel regarding the rearing of chicks: Don't feed until at least 48 hours of age, have sufficient brooder heat to prevent crowding, feed every three hours a little at a time, muggy free mouldy feed or litter must not be used, supply plenty of fresh water in clean fountains, make all changes in feeding gradually

Cattle Exports Decline

Cattle exports to the United Kingdom continue to decline heavily in comparison with last year During the week ended July 16, only 912 head were cleared, a decrease of 1,000 in comparison with the corresponding week of 1925 of several hundred head. The total shipments for 1926 to date are 49,496 head, and for the corresponding period of 1925 47,238 head. At one time the exports were over 100,000 head were greater than for 1925 by 10,000 head. Now the increase has dwindled down to less than 2,000 head.

To Dominate Clover Seed Market

British Columbia To Undertake Extensive Cultivation of Clovers

British Columbia seed stations of dominating the Canadian clover seed market as a result of the reclamation project in and around Nemos Lake This body of water was recently drain ed by provincial authorities leaving a valuable tract of land, which will be opened up by a system of roads and offered for sale In the meantime the government has experimented in growing clover seed, probably of the red variety, though a rowen, report in the Victoria Times does not specify the particular kind

A field of 500 acres will be harvested this fall, the yield, it is expected, running around eight bushes per acre next season. Some as the seed is now ready to harvest. The provincial minister of agriculture, Hon E D Barrow, confidently expects to make a profit of $100 per acre and has enough clover seed next fall to supply the whole domestic market without importing

Registered Seed

Order Placed in Saskatchewan For About Fifteen Carloads

An inquiry for a quotation of 500 tons of registered Saskatchewan Marquis wheat has been received from a British firm by the Saskatchewan Registered Seed Association. This quantity represents 15 carloads of about 35 carloads, and it fitted will be the biggest consignment yet sent from the province. Substantial orders for registered seed wheat and other grains have been filled by the association for Argentine United States and British Columbia

Examination returns received that approximately one half the samples were already free from arsenic and the great bulk contained found was slight. Excess of one two hundredths grain per pound

At this rate it would require one dozen apples of average size to supply the minimum medical dose and four dozen apples to supply the maximum dose

Should a trade agreement be negotiated with the Czecho Slovakian Government, Canada would receive the benefit of a reduction amounting an almost 50 per cent on her exports of cereals and wheat flour to that country, according to F. V. Keenan, commercial agent of the Czecho-Slovakian Republic in Montreal

The new tariff law passed by the Prague Government imposing duty of $1 65 on wheat, $1 65 on oats and $4 20 on wheat flour per 100 kilos had been suspended until August 31. After that date the council hoped that Canada would take advantage of the most favored nation treatment extended by Czecho-Slovakia Under such treaty the duties would be lowered

Canadian Apples Not Affected By Spraying Methods

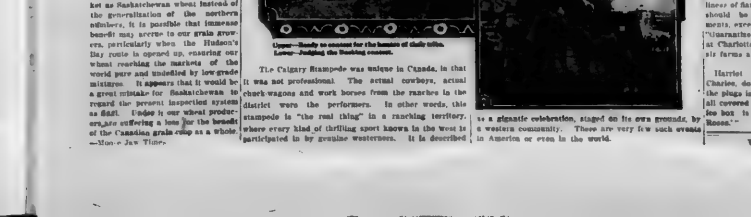
Poison Spray May Be Used As A Remedy

During the late summer and autumn strong cabbage worms, which are the caterpillars of the white cabbage butterfly destroy large numbers of cabbages by nibbling the leaves and heads of the plants. The best remedy for the common in gardens where they can be seen depositing their eggs on the leaves of cabbage and cauliflower is addition to cabbages Poison spray may be used as a remedy with the heads are forming. The most effective poisonous remedy is fresh pyrethrum insect powder the part of the powder should be thoroughly rubbed into four parts of cheap flour and kept in a tight vessel for twenty four hours before using The mixture may be applied from a duster made from tin cans, or from a clean dry, flat top tied on the end of a short stick the open ing for holding the bag may be made by tapping the stick with a case held in the other hand as the walks along the rows.

Calgary Stampede a Big Success



Upper—Ready to contest for the honors of their tribe. Lower—Judging the Bucking contest.

The Calgary Stampede was unique in Canada, in that it was not professional. The actual cowboys, actual chuck-wagons and work horses from the ranches in the district were the performers. In other words, the stampede is "the real thing" in a ranching territory, where every kind of thrilling sport known in the west is participated in by genuine westerners. It is described as a gigantic celebration, staged on its own grounds, by a western community. There are very few such events in America or even in the world.

Gandhi Would Reform India

Tells What Measures He Would Take If He Were Emperor

"If I were Emperor of India," Mahatma Gandhi, the great Indian Nationalist idol, states, "I would prohibit the importation of intoxicating liquors and close down every distillery. I would summon the Representatives of both Hindus and Moslems, search their pockets and deprive them of all cutaklys and weapons, and then lock them together in one room and open it only after they had settled their quarrels.

"I would intensify the hand of fellowship to the whole world, irrespective of caste, color or creed, I would disband the entire army of occupation in India, retaining only enough police to protect the citizens, I would guarantee full protection to every European as well as all honest European citizens; I would guarantee protection to all forms of religious worship, except that which is repugnant to the moral sense of mankind; I would not bribe the frontier tribes as they are now being bribed, but would cultivate their friendship, and I would impose a prohibitive tariff on all foreign cloth."

Devotional Reading John 6:32-40

Explanations and Comments

I. The People Complain of Lack of Food, verses 1-3. This is the initial recorded "murmuring" in the Hebrew history. Background. "Would that we had died by the hand of Jehovah in the land of Egypt" the people cried "when we sat by the flesh-pots when we did eat bread to the full"

They remember the flesh pots but not the affliction. Human nature does not change Murmurers still have short memories. The spectacle of regret haunts past blessings, and bedwarf past sufferings

The Israelites even averred Moses of having brought us to death into the wilderness to kill them all with hunger!

"It is worthy of remark that those who are the most unworthy of liberty are wont to be the most ungrateful towards their deliverers" (Milton).

II. Food Is Promised, verses 4-12 And Jehovah spake unto Moses, saying, "I have heard the murmurings of the children of Israel speak unto them, saying, At even ye shall eat flesh, and in the morning ye shall be filled with bread, and ye shall know that I am Jehovah your God." And shall know by this manifestation of my power and care Here in the early part of the wilderness like the complaints of the people are treated with mildness, as if made by irresponsible children; but toward the end of their journeyings such complaints are severely punished, for after so many years' experience of God's providence something better was expected from them.

Miller's Worm Powders, are a pleasant medicine for worm infested children, and they will take it without objection. When directions are followed it will not be long before the child, as there is nothing of any injurious nature in its composition. They will speedily rid a child of worms and restore the health of the little sufferers whose vitality has become impaired by the attacks of these intestinal pests.

Auxiliary Lungs

Artificial Lungs Provide Air Pilots With Oxygen For High Altitudes

Auxiliary lungs enabling airmen to reach unprecedented heights, are said to have been perfected by a French scientist, M. Garnier, the Academy of Science regards the invention as one of the most important to the science of aviation in recent years. Artificial lungs, adjusted to a rheostat, provide pilots with increasing amount of oxygen as they climb. Experiments have shown that a pilot can stand unlimited air pressure corresponding to a climb of 50,000 feet, hitherto unattainable by man.

"Uh, I shan't be so quick to get married that I'm likely to change my mind," Joanna returned

"Now that's a sensible resolve," Kenilworth agreed. She felt his arm tightening a bit. He was holding her closer than Brandon had, almost as close as her own dancing had been romantically did. She began to wonder much about him. She had thought him old, much too old, but he danced with her and talked in her on the level of easy youth She had observed earlier in the evening that most of the men around the tables appeared to be much older than their women. But she reflected, they seemed to be men who had a place in life and, so were more worthwhile than inconsequential younger men And she rather liked the change. Her companion was still talking to her as his young her deftly in and out among the dancers on the well crowded floor

"I have heard, Brandon remarked, that Reddy never compliments a woman. A dozen of his victims have assured me that he declares his love first and then tells them why. His reasons are, therefore, accepted as being truthful statements of fact, and not flatteries A woman doesn't class what is said of her by a man who is in love with her, as flattery. She believes it to be a just inventory of her perfections."

"Never, that!" Yvonne declared "It proves what I've always contended that a man ought to have a style of his own. It's positively tiresome to listen to most men go sentimental"

"What weary hours you must spend!" Kenilworth exclaimed. "I promise you complete relaxation if you will take a turn on the floor with me Miss Manners, here, is dying to ask Brandon what sort of a chap I am, and to ask him who you're planning to marry next"

Seals Sink Boat

Power Launch Sinks When Fifteen Seals Climb Aboard

Seals looking for a place to sun themselves are playing havoc with small boats off Santa Monica, Cal.

Attracted to the bay in unusually large numbers by good fishing the seals have failed to find rocks upon which to sun and so have taken to the small craft anchored a short distance off shore.

A 22-foot power launch sank after fifteen of the animals, many of them weighing more than a human being, climbed aboard. Two other vessels were almost sunk before the seals were driven away.

Members of the Union club who would like to play as Bon Accord on the abovementioned day are hereby requested to hand in their names to the secretary so that arrangements may be made for transportation, etc.

The Fort baseball team played miserable ball in their game with Lamont Tuesday, completely shutting them out with a 9—0 score. Not one Lamont player reached third. Ellis Graham was largely responsible for the victory with his pitching exhibition, having to his credit 13 strike-outs and only 2 hits. Val Berg handed in a home run as his contribution. It is expected Lamont will play a return game here Friday.

Several complaints have arisen from the presence of the gravel trucks on the road between the Fort and Edmonton. While the work in progress may be an improvement, nevertheless, as the road is allowed to remain open for public use, we consider that the drivers of these trucks should use reasonable care in their treatment of other users of the road.

There Isn't Time

Preparing for a brief holiday at a summer cottage on one of our lovely lakes, takes the writer of this column tossed a few odd magazines in his grip, went with to pass an idle hour while loafing under the trees. Glancing through one of these bits of wax was caught by an article appearing under the caption, which appears at the top of this column.

How often are people heard to exclaim, "I haven't time," or "There isn't time enough" by way of excuse for not doing something which ought to be done. And how false and shallow such an excuse can be! The necessary time can always be found for the discharge of one's duties and obligations if the will to do is in evidence.

But on the other hand it is perfectly true that "there isn't time" for many things upon which a nevertheless countless people expend an enormous amount of time, valuable time resulting in pure waste.

Time appears long and slow at moments when moments are tragic. . . . In the history of nations, but it is fast and fleeting when gauged by the life of individuals. Men who have lived long and very active lives filled with no end of activity, achievements, have at the close of their careers expressed their regret in the words, "So much to do, so little done."

Time, coupled with good health, is the most precious or gift to mankind because the span of human life is brief, every moment should be put to the best possible use. Sufficient of it should be devoted to healthful pursuits and invigorating exercise and recreation in order that the body may be kept strong and physically fit to keep the mind alert and active and the soul pure, else the work it may be called upon to do. Only so can the best use be made of all the time allotted to the individual.

But let it be repeated and emphasized, there isn't time in every the long run for some things. Worry comes in all at some time or other, but there isn't time to waste in brooding over one's sorrow and losses. To do no benefit means to further shorten life.

There isn't time in this life for worry. Worry kills. It accomplishes nothing, but is wholly destructive and undermining. It is right, proper and among the sensible and prudent to take thought of and for the future but many people confuse this desirable trait with needless, nerve-racking worry. There is no time left to hunt for grief, for thorns among the flowers."

How we may be today by what friends or others say about us. We may be misunderstood, our actions misrepresented, our words distorted. We may be maligned, slandered, and made the victims of false rumor. These things cut and hurt, but "there isn't time" to let them long annoy. Along with them there are also many things to make us happy and glad, and we need all the time there is for the bright and joyous things of life.

Life is too short for thoughts of malice, hatred and revenge. Wrongs may be inflicted upon us, but by pursuing the even tenor of our ways, the wounds of the slanderer will be closed and life will work effectually unmarred. "Life isn't long, just time for song, and love, and things sublime." Be not concerned with thoughts that burned, flood friends, there isn't time."

People there are who are so busy in this life getting everything out of it which seems to them all important and worthwhile that they can find no time to think of and prepare for a future life in which we all believe, while there are others so absorbed with thoughts of their future life that they become neglectful of the duties and responsibilities of this life and their obligations to others, and lead narrow, selfish lives in a continual atmosphere of gloom from one wrong. There isn't time for such misconceptions of the true mountain of life.

It would, for most of us, be time well spent if once in a while in the quiet of an evening hour we made a mental inventory of our days, and weeks, months, and carefully classified under appropriate headings the use being made of the time allotted to us. Are we using this precious inheritance, which once neglected is immediately gone never to return, for the improvement of our minds, an increase in our talents and powers, and developing all the best of which we are capable for the advancement of our age and race? Or are we wasting precious hours and days on matters and things for which, after all, probably, really has any time to spare?

Several Chinese generals have issued orders imposing the death penalty on any soldier found smoking opium.

Big Family Of Settlers

Family From Minnesota Settle on the Humboldt District

Mr. and Mrs. John A Sundeched from Minnesota, have recently settled in the Humboldt district with nine children ranging in age from two to 19 years. They bought 960 acres of farm land in this district and came with several thousand dollars in cash and effects and their judgment valued at $2,500. They made the move from their home in Minnesota in a motor car and motor truck on which was built a house large enough to hold the big family, which is the modern style of covered wagon or prairie schooner in which settlers of today make their migrations. In the old days the ox or mule drawn covered wagon took days or weeks to cover long distances, whereas now the motor driven prairie schooner makes the journeys in hours or days.

The Training Of Children

Valuable Work Being Carried On For Welfare of Children in Saskatchewan

Ten or twelve years ago two Eastern ladies specially trained in Sunday School work came to Saskatchewan to see what they could do for the children of the prairies by giving them instruction in religion. After giving some years to this work in a restricted area, they returned to the East carrying the Sunday School to the children widely scattered on the prairies And for this purpose the Sunbeam was built and equipped, and since 1920 this van has been travelling about the southern part of the province of Saskatchewan, gathering children together and teaching them as far as possible something about the teachings of our Lord Jesus Christ. This work was begun in 1920 Now, there are vans doing a similar work in all the prairie provinces and in British Columbia. The children so taught in the summer are enrolled as members of the Sunday School by post and so they are kept in touch with those truths which concern their moral and religious welfare.

But Miss Boonaroot was not content with this; she felt that something more should be done and so she gave the sum of $15,000 to start a girls' school for the children of parents who wanted to give their children a religious as well as a secular education. The school was started in Regina in 1918 under the direction of the Ursuline Sisters of Quebec and the work is carried on under the care of the Sisters of St. John the Divine, a Canadian Order of the Church of England in Canada. The school has grown in numbers and a good sound education is given by very competent teachers to fit our girls to take their part in building up our country on a sound religious basis. The children are well cared for and every provision made for their happiness and well-being. The school is in the beautiful grounds of St Chad's College and would well repay a visit by anyone interested in the welfare of children and their moral and religious training.

The charter of incorporation gives legal effect to the work of the unified body that has been prosecuting among Canadian veterans ex-service men, since the visit of The Prince of Wales, grand president of the British Empire Service League, to Canada last year.

The original intention of the legion was to seek a royal charter by special act of parliament but the dissolution of parliament made it necessary to alter this proposal Application then was made for a charter under the Companies Act

Condensed Milk Absolutely Pure

Value of Condensed Milk As A Guardian of Health

The value of condensed milk as a guardian of health was curiously demonstrated by an item in the London Daily Mail recently, one sentence in the article reading

"The complete replacement of fresh milk by condensed milk has notably reduced tuberculosis"

The story had in deal with the arctic trips of the London explorer Wilkins and was reporting on the health of the animals Most animals especially those which live on vegetable diet, are subject to epidemics of bovine tuberculosis The anteloper seemed to die of nothing else Yet they lived under very conditions and were given as much as one daily draughts of fresh milk Then the fresh milk was cut off and the tinned variety substituted A marked improvement followed and tuberculosis has been stamped out in the same localities The Swedish company Aktiebolaget Arctic Expeditions Limited, who put up Eagle Brand condensed Milk, have long advertised it as a most valuable aid to health in the feeding absolutely pure as well as nutrient. This incident would seem to bear out the statement that, save for mother's milk, there is no better food for the infant as Eagle Brand

Explanations and Comments

Jethro—Technel, verses 12:29. Jethro Moses' father-in-law called Reuel in Ex 2:18; inherited the way in which Moses entire day was occupied in answering inquiries and settling disputes making known God's laws Matthew Henry—It sounds as if that when a quarrel happened in Egypt and Moses would have recourse and the contenders then asked, Who made thee a prince and a judge? but now it was past dispute that God had made him one, and then they had the proof in reserve to whom they had then proof to appeal

What is this thing that thou doest to the people? Why silent thou this well alone, and all the people stand about thee from morning unto even? Jethro questioned after he had watched as Moses sitting in judgment

Because the people came to me to inquire of God Moses answered they regarded Moses as God's representative the prophet or mouthpiece When they had a matter in dispute, they came to Moses to settle it "of judge between a man and his neighbor and I make them know the statutes of God and his laws," said Moses Statutes were definite rules stereotyped and permanent Laws were directions, or pronouncements delivered as special circumstances required them" (Dr. R. R. Ritter)

The thing that thou doest is not good," said his father in law "There may be over doing even in well doing" (Matthew Henry)

Splendid Safety Record On Canadian National

Congratulations From Workmen's Compensation Board of Manitoba

Sir Henry Thornton, president of the Canadian National Railways is the recipient of a letter of congratulation from the commissioner of the Workmen's Compensation Board of Manitoba in which high praise is accorded the safety measures practiced by the company and its employees

Thos K Nevombe, the commissioner writes from the office of the board in Winnipeg to Sir Henry

"We have just completed a check of accidents reported for six months ended June 30 1926 and I wish to congratulate the Canadian National Railways upon the excellent showing made. The accidents reported to this office by the Canadian National Railways during the six months ending June 30, 1926, numbered 1,981, three of these being fatalities During the corresponding period of 1925 this total was reduced to 873. During the six months ending June 30, 1926, 75 accidents were reported This would appear to indicate a very gratifying state of affairs—especially as our records show an increasing accident frequency in all other classifications since one of the Manitoba Compensation Board wishes to congratulate those in charge of safety work upon your system.

Insurance Agent: Don't you want your office furnishings insured against theft?

Boss: Yes, all except the clock Everybody watches that.

A Wonderful Camera

More Wonderful in Some Ways Than the Human Body

There is a camera in London which is capable of recording photographs at the rate of 2000 per second. Not that man uses these cameras himself, but some wonderful work is done by them, too. One London scientist has a camera connected with a microscope, and by means of this he can photograph the movements of the heart of a living animal. Another camera is used to photograph the movements of the wings of insects in flight. Another is used to photograph the movements of the tongue of a snake when it is striking at its prey. GOVERNMENT TAKES OVER OWNERSHIP OF R.D. AND B.C.

Full ownership in the Edmonton-Dunvegan and Central Canada railways, now roots with the Alberta government, which will proceed to deal with other interests for their future operation or, as an alternative will operate them as a public enterprise.

The ownership rights have been secured in consideration of $1,275,000, which has been paid over to the Royal Bank in final settlement of its claim of $2,000,000 and accrued interest. Complete control of both railway lines thus passes to the province.

A further step in clearing up the northern railway situation has been taken, it is announced by the government, by giving notice to the Canadian Pacific Railway company of the government's intention to terminate the existing agreement under which the Canadian Pacific is operating the freight and passenger service on both lines.

This has been done in a letter from Premier Brownlee to President Beatty of the Canadian Pacific, which was the subject of discussion between the premier and D. C. Coleman, vice-president of the Canadian Pacific, a few days ago.

Premier Brownlee has also declined the last offer of the C.P.R. which proposed a renewal of the agreement on somewhat different terms. No new offer has yet been received, and it is not known at the government offices whether any further offer will come from C.P.R. sources or not.

LAMONT BUSINESS SECTION HIT BY DISASTROUS FIRE

A disastrous fire occurred in Lamont last Friday, destroying a large section of the village. Three buildings were razed before the flames were quelled.

The fire originated in the Chmelnitsky property, occupied by Forchuk's second-hand store, and had gained good headway before it was discovered by the family, who lived in the rear.

The flames spread to Mrs. Carmichael's millinery shop and the Taylor and Carter building housing the Manz meat market and Campbell's law office. Hard work by the brigade confined the fire to this area. Two chemical engines and a bucket brigade saved the Royal cafe, Lotwsky's store and the Standard bank.

DEATH OF DR. LAIDLAW

The sudden death of Dr. W. C. Laidlaw, provincial deputy minister of health, took place at his home in Edmonton, Sunday morning, August 15.

The late Dr. Laidlaw was appointed to the position of Provincial Medical Officer of Health, in June, 1912. At that time the public health service was a branch of the Department of Agriculture. In the early fall of 1914 he went overseas, and when he returned in 1918, the public health service had become a separate department under the late Hon. A. G. Mackay, the Deputy Minister being Dr. Norman. Dr. Laidlaw again took up his duties as Medical Health Officer until the retirement of Dr. Norman in 1921, when he was appointed Deputy Minister of Health.

Dr. Laidlaw was a veteran of the South African war, having served as artillery officer in that campaign. When the great war broke out in 1914 he again offered his services, and was sent to France as medical officer of the 4th brigade. Later he was transferred to headquarters staff of the Canadian Corps, as sanitary officer, which post he filled until the close of the war.

How Do Your Children Grow?

...tools a few more days' rounds of the summer holiday season, and soon boys and girls all over the land will be trooping back to school. Johnny, who was on the fourth grade last year, has passed into the fifth, while Bessie has moved from the eighth grade into high school. They are looking forward to meeting their new teachers and becoming acquainted with new school mates. Their advancement from grade to grade are milestones along the way indicating one form of growth.

In our modern school system both Johnny and Bessie were examined last term by the school nurse and their height and weight recorded to ascertain if they were normally developed for their ages or underweight. From time to time their weights were checked to determine if they were making gains or losses. Johnny gained nearly five pounds during the last term, but Bessie did not do quite so well. The same system of checking up their physical conditions will be continued this term. This is growth in another way recorded and recorded.

From year to year teachers and parents can follow the growth of the children under their care in these two respects. Examination papers, marks received, application displayed in studies, passing from grade to grade, high school and college, tell the story of mental growth, increase in knowledge and development of those powers of thought and conversation which mark a line of advancement of our modern civilization. Development charts show weight tables, increased application in study, more vigorous enjoyment of sports and all forms of outdoor recreation is the manner record physical growth. These two things are fully demonstrable, and through our modern methods in education we demonstrate them. We know, by comparison of records extending over a period of years, that the standard of intelligence is higher and that the span of life is being lengthened.

It is well that these tests and measurements of the mental and physical development of the younger generation should be made, that records be kept, and that they be compared and analyzed so that we may know where strength and weakness exists, and thus learn the correctness or falsity of the methods being employed.

Our school system, however, has a greater function to perform than the giving of knowledge, the development of boys' or girls' mental faculties, and the encouragement of right living leading to physical health and strength. These things are, after all, but the foundation stones upon which to erect that noble structure which true education is designed to build—character.

Our examination tests and physical records do not, and cannot, reveal whether as a result of the school term any hardening lets of character has been added to the wobbly parts of any boy's moral backbone, or any of the essence of spirituality made more fragrant any girl's standard of conduct. Intellectual equipment and bodily vigor without character only serves to launch into the world a man or woman capable of doing greater harm than the world otherwise do. On the other hand, the development of a fine character, supported by bodily vigor and those attainments and refinements with which education endows, results in giving to the world the greatest of all gifts.

Character training should be the aim of education, first, last, and all the time. No child is too young to begin it; no student is old enough to dispense with it. Those who provide education, whether it be the teacher, the parent, boards of school trustees, or the taxpayer whose money maintains our educational system in its entirety, are engaged in fitting others to take their places in the life and activities of the world. They must not forget the finish-work side.

Life is becoming more strenuous year by year; the newcomer must be better equipped than the one whose place he takes. Activity crowds upon activity, distraction upon distraction. Science and invention is setting a swift pace which calls for all the resources of mental and physical power of which the race is capable. But above all it calls for strong characters, men and women of sterling honesty, uprightness of purpose, high ideals and selfless usefulness.

Within the first quarter of this present century greater advancements in science and invention have been made than in any like period in the world's history. The world has moved forward at an unprecedentedly rapid pace—and the developments of the past twenty-five years, have but opened the way to a yet more magnificent and still more rapid strides in the years that abead. To-day's men and girls of today must be fitted for the great responsibilities which will be theirs. If they have character they will rise to the occasion; lacking it, danger signals can be seen on every hand.

Character is the perpetual youniver that education carries with it a perpetual ability. How do your children grow? In mental attainments; in...
...wards physical perfection; in strength of character?

"That's a good one on us," said the boss, as the minister sat down on him.

Paris Clerk Gives Gallons of Blood To Heal Sick

Having given 22 1/2 ... gallons of his blood in 5 transfusions and operations since November, 1924, Raymond Bebet claims to have established a record. Bebet is a healthy looking, fresh complexioned young man, employed in the chief's market of Paris. He is 29 years old, is married, and leads a normal life, going to the office every day.

He happened one day to visit a sick friend in a hospital and met Dr. Picart, who stopped him and said, "You have a splendid looking pair of cheeks, I have good use for you."

He had his blood analyzed and the first operation was performed, which, since then he has repeated almost continuously. Dr. Decary presented him to the International Congress on Surgery in 1925 and an American doctor offered him $2,000 to come to America.

Bridges Built In Dark Ages

Eighteenth Century Engineers Had To Re-invent Principles Of Construction

It is a curious fact that upon the interpretation of our common term "the dark ages" that those "dark ages" should have given England nearly all the bridges she had till the time of the Georges, for bridge building preceded with the construction of roads and waterlies, and even the principles had to be re-invented by eighteenth century engineers.

RUN DOWN IN HEALTH

Why Many Men and Women Are Badly Handicapped

When you are so run down in health that it impairs the efficiency of your work as well as your power to enjoy your leisure hours, or obtain rest, it is time you looked to the cause. If you do not, a serious breakdown is almost sure to result, nearly all cases this condition, which doctors usually describe as general debility, is due to poor blood—blood that is deficient in red corpuscles. When the blood is thin and weak your whole system suffers. You lose appetite, you are nervous, your nerves trouble you and you feel restless.

What you need is help to build up your blood and you should begin at once to make your blood rich and red by taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. You will soon notice the difference in your health by a better appetite and increased vigor. The reason is that the new blood created by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills stimulates all the organs of the body to healthy activity and so the system gains nourishment and strength. If you are weak or out of sorts, begin gaining new strength to-day by taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. "I was in a badly run down condition," says Mrs. J. Potter, of Wansford, Alta., "when I began using Williams' Pink Pills and they fully restored my health. I strongly recommend this medicine to all weak people."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Now Air Service To Red Lake

Flights by regular aeroplane service into the northern goldfields of Manitoba and Ontario will soon be as common as stepping on the gas of any motor bus travelling into all districts surrounding Winnipeg. The newest route through the air to be organized for business is that of the Patricia Airways and Exploration Limited, which promises a daily service from Sioux Lookout, on the Canadian National Railways, to Pine Ridge, Red, Woman, Birch and Cat Lakes. Special stamps have been issued and necessary permission to carry mail has been given by the post office department.

Queen "Hat" Reconstructed

Queen "Hat," who was the Queen Boss of ancient Egypt, has been reconstructed by Mrs. Winnifred Brunton, and Londoners are now able to get some idea of the appearance of the strong-minded ruler who dressed as a man on state occasions. The real name of this queen was Hatshepsut. But Egyptologists have shortened her "Hat."

"And do you remember him?" asked the little girl.

"Well, then," she asked, "how much older will I have to be before I can remember him?"—Christian Science Monitor.

Encourage Canadian Authors

Assistance Should Be Given To Canadian Writers Dealing With Canadian Material

The advice of Robert Watson, Canadian novelist and poet, given at a session of the Canadian Authors' convention in Vancouver, was to make literature a crutch rather than a staff. The Canadian reading public was limited and where two or three well known authors had their works distributed years ago, there were scores today. He thought, however, that Canadian writers should get a number of local bonded businesses to take up the question of subsidizing by Canadian newspapers, Canadian material by Canadian authors. He said special stress upon the fact that while the American Government aided the work of Canadians gaining into the United States, the Canadian Government put no taxes upon the enormous flood of American literature circulating in Canada.

A very interesting talk upon his experiences with publishers was given by Arthur Hemming, noted Canadian author and illustrator.

Valuable Tree Planting Work Is Having the Effect Of Changing the Prairie Landscape

A radical change in the general prairie landscape is taking place in Western Canada as a result of the extensive tree planting work being carried on this by the forestry branch of the department of the interior. The change is particularly striking in the case of the shelter belts now found on farms as they extend in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta some twenty-five years or more. Thousands of shelter-belts have been established from seedlings existing and transplants distributed from the Indian Head and Sutherland nurseries and the Dominion experimental farm at Scott, and have proved a source of profit to the owners of the farms on which they are situated. Many of these shelter-belts are now of considerable extent, and contain a considerable number of varieties of trees, in addition to those immediately associated with the original plantings. Some of these have developed naturally from seedlings carried in the wind, and others have been planted by the birds which have been attracted to the shelter-belts by the protection afforded by the trees.

Two years ago there were distributed from the Indian Head nursery 1,000,000 seedlings and transplants, and from the Sutherland nursery 1,000,000 seedlings and transplants, while in 1925 this was increased to 2,000,000 seedlings and transplants. The total number distributed from the two nurseries since 1901 has amounted to 40,000,000 trees. The demand continues to increase, and for the present season 3,000,000 seedlings and transplants are available for distribution. Applications for trees should be made to the Superintendent, Dominion Experimental Farm, Indian Head, Sask., or to the Superintendent, Dominion Experimental Farm, Scott, Sask.

During recent years the distribution has been carried on from two stations, Indian Head making shipments to all Southern Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, and Sutherland to the northern districts. Careful check is kept of all material sent out until replacements are considered as failing, and well established and no trees are allowed to go unplanted until transplants and supply failure. Instructions are issued with the trees in most cases, particular care prepared in the office of the tree planting division at Ottawa. Head during the winter time on the guidance of the individual planters in the spring. This season some 2,97 plans were so prepared and during the summer the inspector will visit these plantings to see that the stock has been properly planted and is being given reasonable care and cultivation.

The tree planting inspectors started out on their annual trips over their respective territories on the latter part of May and about 11,200 farms are on their list to be visited. A staff of eight inspectors will be engaged in this work until the middle of July, each visiting an average of 1,400 properties. Unfavorable weather conditions [illegible] delay [illegible] the inspectors have to visit each farm in some cases [illegible] the second year, owing to the [illegible] plantings have made a start [illegible] the first year. Some of the plantings [illegible] are now in good shape.

The effect of tree planting on the social and economic life of the prairie provinces is considerable. MacMillan belts have made the homestead more home-like and comfortable, while by checking the high prairie winds and conserving moisture the production of the farm is increased. The farmers of Western Canada quickly realized the value of planting trees and in the large and steady demand for material to meet their approval of this important work.

Canada's National Emblem

Union Jack to Only Suitable Flag For Dominion

What objection can be raised to the Union Jack as Canada's national emblem? This Dominion is a part of the British Empire. No people openly advocates separation. Do the anti-argument that the British can think of for a distinctive flag have real moan Canadian Independence.

Assuming that Canada is to remain a part of the empire, then the Union Jack is not only suitable but highly desirable as the flag of this Dominion. It is an emblem of liberty. It has a history of which every man and woman of British blood should be proud. It is emblematic of the high ony type of civilization to which man kind has yet attained. It speaks of service not only to one race, but to all races world service in the broad est sense of the term. It is respected by all nations, and it is feared by aggressive, autocratic freedom.

The Union Jack is part of an inheritance that includes even handed justice to all classes the right to vote and religious liberty personal freedom to live according to one's own conscience and glorious traditions that have marked the advance of nations led by its higher bowls with each succeeding generation.

To suppose it will any means of keeping the peace for all time, it may be in no one's Canadian people of their invaluable inheritance arouses latent strength capable of vastly surprising for what is best.

THE TEN COMMANDMENTS: DUTIES TO GOD

Golden Text: Thou shalt love Jehovah thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy might. Deuteronomy 6:5.

Lesson: Exodus 19:1 20:11.

Devotional Reading: Psalm 19:7-11

Explanations and Comments

The Preface to the Commandments. The Appeal to History, 20:2. "And God spake all these words." We call these words the Ten Commandments, the Decalogue (from the two Greek words deka, ten, and logos, word). The children of Israel had already attained to a knowledge of these religious and moral principles they knew that they should not use ship idols and should not have here at Sinai they learned that these principles were from God. They may have thought that they had found out all this for themselves, but the real Leader had been the Spirit of the Lord. It is important for us to remember that God was in all the process of moral training which led to Sinai, as well as at Sinai itself." (Bishop Francis J. McConnell) "We cannot suppose that Moses was a mere mechanical instrument in conveying their laws to Israel from Jehovah, or in embodying great principles of religion or civil order in practical institutions. God was instruments that are fit" (Dr. A. B. Davidson).

THE WHEAT POOL AND TRADING IN FUTURES

(Quoted from the Chicago Price Current. Grain Reporter, issue of August 5th, 1926)

The feature of the last day of the month's trading was the heavy delivories of wheat to the trade by the wheat pool. It is estimated that at least 3,500,000 bus. of the total delivories for the day were from the pool. The pool all the week has been pounding the market and checked any advances by throwing in the swell of trunks.

This is perfectly legitimate business. The pool is a member of the exchange and entitled to the facilities provided for it as a member. The operations in futures are on a very large scale.

But the promoters and propagandists are responsible for its organization announced that one of the main objects of the pool was to break up the Winnipeg Grain Exchange. It was also frequently preached by the farmers' friends that short selling was a crime, that future trading and hedging were unnecessary as far as the pool was concerned, that it was in fact inaugurating a new and enlightened method of marketing. This humbug was swallowed by a lot of farmers, but not all. From now on the highly paid pool propagandists will and their ingenuity tasked to explain it that, you can't fool all of the people all of the time.

The Canadian Co-operative Wheat Producers, Ltd. (The Wheat Pool) is in the limelight these days. The public and the pool members have been informed that officials of the company suffered from writer's cramp from signing checks, and how millions of dollars have been distributed among the members of the pool by the interim payment of July 26.

So far members have received $1.40 a bushel for No. 1 Northern wheat. In a statement issued by pool officials they are led to hope that they may get a little more. The president of the Manitoba pool offers a word of comfort—the pool paid $1.00 all told last year. He did not depress his clients by telling them that on a whole lot of grades and mixtures there was nothing more coming. However, they know it now that they have their cheeks.

On the trading floor of the Exchange the feature of the past week has been the heavy and persistent selling of futures by "A certain big interest." Brokers do not divulge the names of their customers, but pit traders know where this selling to coming from. This short selling is in the face of it by parties who have the wheat to deliver and mean to deliver it.

As it is, $1.40 a bushel looks small compared to $1.25%, the average price paid by the trade. It would look smaller should the average price by the end of the crop year be $1.00 or over.

The general conclusion is that the big interest is more interested in keeping prices down than in any other valley for the season.

Covering the period 1854-1924, Canada shows 1.86 years of prosperity per year of depression. The United States comes next on the list with 1.79 years of prosperity per year of depression, covering the same 1854-1924.

Following a recent hunt of workers Canada, W. L. Smith, former editor of the "Farmer's Sun", writes that he will be surprised if the aggregate wheat crop of the Prairie Provinces falls below 300,000,000 bushels. "It will not be surprising if the 350,000,000 mark is nearly reached," states Mr. Smith.

Eleven hundred farms will be needed next year to accommodate the British settlers who will be brought to western Canada, according to Major F. J. Ashton, commissioner of the Soldiers' Settlement Board. So far this year 1,420 families were placed on farms in the prairie provinces by this organization.

Hogs to the value of $800,000 were shipped from the Prince Albert district in 1925. This sum was far in advance of that received the previous year and the increase was due to considerable extent to the activities of the agricultural society boosting hog production. This year the shipments will mean a one million dollars worth of hogs, and from present indications the mark is more than likely to be attained.

Arrangements for the export of large quantities of British Columbia prunes from California is being made by a potato grower of that state. The British Columbia potato crop failed in 1925, and the demand prunes because they introduce new strength into the seedlings. Experiments were made with Canadian grown seed last year in California and growers were well satisfied with the results.

A flock of 46 sheep, comprising 25 ewes and 21 rams, has been purchased by an official of the Dominion Government under instruction from the Soviet Government for distribution in Vladivostok, as soon as arrangements can be made for their shipment. Last year quite a number of prize-winning cattle were shipped from British Columbia to Russia and this new order indicates that previous shipments have been satisfactory.

Many valuable shipments of furs from the great trapping areas of the Hudson Bay Company are arriving through the Dominion Government post at Montreal. These winnipeg sales, piled high on the trucks often represent a total value of $500,000. Among the shipments at the various Hudson Bay posts along Hudson Bay and James Bay have been many of the finest pelts in some one and dog team in winter to the northern boundaries of the T. and O. Railway.

Remarkable expansion of passenger traffic into and out of Montreal has been reported during July and August by the passenger department of the Canadian Pacific Railway. The "Black Wing" and "Alexandra" on the Boston run and the "Sidney" and "York" to Toronto, four new trains, have been placed on them routes only in the year have been running with capacity loads. Similar increases are shown in heavy traffic for the Ancient Capital, while routes running north into the Laurentians, it is stated, have never been so filled up at this time of the year.

A manufacturer, 56 pounds in weight, with a length of 32 inches and a girth of 31 inches, was taken from the Restigouche River by the French River Rangers Camp recently, according to information received by the tourist department of the Canadian Pacific Railway. This fine fish was taken by R. A. Parkinson of New York with a 6-lb. silk fly cast on a 9½ ft. rod of the Bilmore bait. To date this is the largest fish caught this year to be entered in the contest for the Restigouche Camp Trophy competition.

To The Electors Of Vegreville Constituency

Having been nominated as one of the candidates in the forthcoming general election, I wish hereby to state that I certainly appreciate the honor conferred upon me by those who met at that convention. The more so do I appreciate the honor inasmuch as it was not at any time sought by me nor was it supported until immediately previous to the convention my friends insisted that I let my name go before that convention and assured me that I had the support of all Liberals in the Constituency. As I appreciate the honor, however, I realize also the great responsibility placed upon me by that nomination. You have placed your confidence in me and my one hope and desire is that not only during the coming campaign, but more especially after the election, should I be elected, as I hope to be by your active co-operation and support, I shall at all times accept that responsibility and fulfil my duties as your representative in a manner which shall be an honor and a credit to myself and to those who may elect me.

In this campaign I am appealing to you, not as the representative of any one section of the people, but of all the people; not as the representative of any one occupational group but of all of the people in this constituency; and not as the representative of any one nationality, and there are many, but of all of them.

Probably there is no man in this district who has filed so wide an experience—and I do not say it boastfully—in the various occupations of the people whom I seek to represent, as I have had, since I homesteaded at Beaver Lake, I have been actively engaged in farming every year from one hundred acres up to one thousand acres. I have been school teacher, general merchant, implement agent, automobile agent, livestock shipper, postmaster, secretary-treasurer, municipal councillor and Member of the Legislative Assembly of Alberta. As to my ability and success in these various lines of endeavor, I refer you to the people who know me personally and who have known me during my 14 years residence in the district. On my public record I appeal to you for your support.

I am a sincere advocate of the principles of lower tariff and less taxation, as proposed by the late Liberal Administration, and I certainly hope to see them go much further in that direction.

I am also strongly in favor of lower freight rates in the carrying of the farmers' grain to the markets, especially over the Western Route.

Between now and election day I hope to have the opportunity of addressing the electors at some length on these and other matters which I believe to be of vital importance. I shall address you at such public meetings as it is possible to hold during this short campaign, which is being held during the busiest season of the year, and also through the Press.

As one whose every interest is undeniably in common with your own, I appeal to you to organize in support of my candidature in the coming election. Especially do I appeal to the women of the constituency to organize to see that every man and woman who believes in the principles and policies which I advocate shall be out to vote. If any intelligent women or men refuse or neglect to use the franchise, then those women or men are making it very easy to defeat their candidate and the principles and policies advocated by him and supported by them. They must therefore assume the full responsibility for any failure due to that neglect.

Hoping to prove myself at all times worthy of the support you may give me, and of the great confidence you you have placed in me as your candidate,

I am,

Yours very truly,

J. S. McCALLUM.

"You mean," Joanna said, flatly, "to the country home Whatever I do, or wherever I go, you must remember that I haven't any—" she waited a little while for her last lips. Then she finished "That I haven't had an home, for a long time"

CHAPTER XII.

Joanna Visits Eggleston

So Joanna, all of seven white ermine, nestled in the cushions of Brandon's limousine, went happily to the place she had called home for years to the rambling house where Mrs. Adams lost her sleep over Sapper lodgers. She thought it would be fun to be last time.

Realization that she was rich, fabulously rich like Yvonne Valiant; like a movie star, like Mrs Delaney Jordan, with whose son Bob Joanna once had a date, negated yet over his shoulder a shadow at the silk counter, had settled at last to her groping brain. Her fight to understanding of the fantastic thing that had happened to her was not entirely cut away by the retrospects of the evening. The feel of the ermine against her throat and about her shoulders, the nearness of Brandon, who gave his evening clothes no smartly, the prospects of the moment when she would move into the mansion of Yvonne, the symbol of Life, threshed through her palsied and suffused

The Wool Industry in South Africa

Letter from S. J. Bartlet, Bloemfontein, O.F.S., Africa

Ostriches & Leghorns.
Wearing woolen and primitive coats of Africa
Note the Ostriches

Two Ostriches in Africa

The Union of South Africa is rightly classed among the great wool producing countries of the world. Climatic conditions there are admirably adapted to breeding and raising of the Merino type of sheep with a strong, staple wool.

A large part of this country is suitable only for the raising of sheep, and the government in making progressive and intelligent efforts to improve both the sheep and the manner of preparing the wool for market.

Jackals being a strong menace in South Africa, long-time government loans are extended to sheep owners for the erection of jackal-proof fencing. Government sheep experts are established permanently in allotted districts so that their services and advice may be accepted at nominal fee.

The merino sheep of South Africa is the fat-tailed, black-headed Cape —a non-woaled sheep. As no crossbreeding for mutton lambs is done, the wools are purely Merino in character.

Progress in this South African industry is particularly noticeable in the harvesting. Despite the fact that Kaffir labor can be secured at the equivalent of $6.50 per month, there is a trend towards the modern shearing machine as against the age-old hand blades, which, even on this continent, have not been discarded by many otherwise entirely progressive wool raisers.

A study of this fact, however, readily reveals the reason for it. While there is a first cost for the machines, the unskilled black adepts themself to the use much more readily than to the hand blades, and soon does a remarkably smooth job of shearing with the machine.

Once adapted to the use of the machine, the economic values is demonstrated in the materially greater number of sheep shorn daily, the better market value of the wool, the fewer maimed sheep, and not least important, the additional 5 to 12½ more wool obtained with the machine over and above the amount of wool secured with the hand blades. As a consequence, the machine resolves itself into a small investment with certain and big returns.

Steadily, the science of wool-marketing in South Africa is fast approaching the scientific efficiency of the Australian marketing plan, which is, without doubt, the most practical and efficient in existence today.

Considering that the four provinces, Natal, Transvaal, Orange Free State and Cape Province, which comprise the Union of South Africa, have over a million square miles less of territory than the populated Provinces of Canada, it is surprising to note that they contain over ten times as many sheep as the whole of Canada. The Union of South Africa ranks about fourth among the countries of the world in sheep population. These points alone put that country in line as a strong contender for future leadership in the wool industry.

It is interesting to note, however, that the great bulk of their progressiveness is due to quickness in observing the advantages of modern implements and machinery and up-to-date methods and discarding the old ideas that are no marvie as profitable.

One of the wonderful products of the wool industry has made it South Africa in a comparatively short time, that industry is merely destined to take a large and important place in the economic progress of the far distant Union of South Africa.

VOL. 5, NO. 33 FORT SASKATCHEWAN, ALBERTA, WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 26, 1936

MONTH FORTNIGHTLY CROP REPORT

Issued by Department of Agriculture, Government of Alberta, Edmonton, August 21, 1936

Harvesting of wheat is proceeding slowly, and is about 25 per cent. completed throughout the province. Late rains have held up the ripening process somewhat, and in a few locations have hindered harvesting, but in the main the rains have considerably assisted the filling of the grain, especially the late wheat and the coarse grains. The general effect has been good, save in one or two districts where the drought has been severe and where the grain is too far gone to recover. The districts then affected, as has been previously stated, are very limited in extent. It may safely be stated that the rains which have come during the first two weeks of August will have the effect of adding considerably to the yield of wheat, and of causing recovery of much of the oats and barley which were making a poor showing.

There has been no frost to speak of, and the damage from hail has not been heavy this year. The earr-fly is reported active in one or two localities, but damage is not extensive. A slight appearance of rust is reported from one district.

The rains have been fairly general over the province during the past fortnight, being somewhat heavier in the central and southern portions.

The labor situation is well in hand and a sufficient supply of harvest hands is assured.

OBITUARY

The death occurred last Wednesday of Mrs. Harman, Fort Saskatchewan, at the age of 36 years. She leaves to mourn her loss, her husband and four young children, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Van Alstyne, Leduc, one sister and two brothers.

The funeral service was held at the Union church last Friday afternoon, Rev. C. E. A. Pocock taking charge. Interment was made in the Fort Saskatchewan cemetery.

OBITUARY

The death took place on Sunday at the Royal Alexandra hospital, Edmonton, of Frederick Moon, aged 67 years. A well known character in the town it was not expected by his many friends that his visit to the hospital was anything but a transient one, but his illness was of a more serious nature than was generally known and the old man failed and finally passed away.

The late Mr. Moon was born at Cliff, Kent, England, and came to this country with his wife and two sons in the year 1912, and suffered the loss by death of his wife six weeks later. He was also pre-deceased by his sons, Percy being killed in action overseas and Fred dying of wounds at Victoria, BC!

He is survived by his daughters-in-law, Mrs. Fred Moon, Victoria, B.C., and Mrs. Percy Moon, South Edmonton, and six grandchildren.

A choral funeral service was held in St. George's church on Tuesday, August 24, Rev. E. R. Lockyer officiating. Deceased during his years of residence in the Fort had given his services cheerfully and enthusiastically to the church and choir work and a large number of friends attended to pay their last respects in the edifice he had spent so many happy hours in.

Interment was made in the Fort cemetery.

Flowers were received from the following: Maud, Kitty and Children; Mr. and Mrs. A. Weenton; Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Ray; The Magor Family; Mr. and Mrs. R. B. and Grace McDonald; Mr. and Mrs. Percy Shephard; The Choir; W.A.; Chancel Guild; Congregation; Mrs. E. Hallam; Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Shera; Mr. and Mrs. P. C. Spicer; Princess Rebekah Lodge, I.O. Having permeated a thistle on his premises he was given notice by government inspector O. O. R. Youngs to cut or pull and burn. This he failed to do in the specified time limit and was fined as above stated. The next song on the programme is "The weed inspector will get you if you don't watch out!"

The W.A. of St. George's church will hold their monthly meeting in the parish room on Thursday, September 2, at 3 p.m.

HORTICULTURE FLOURISHES IN THIS PROVINCE

Horticural shows are the order of the day in Alberta now. During the past week the Edmonton show was held, with 8,000 in attendance, and some of the finest displays of flowers ever seen. Camrose show, noted for being one of the best in the province, was also held this week, and Calgary show, always a big affair, is scheduled for this week.

U.F.A. CANDIDATE HELD MEETING HERE FRIDAY

A public meeting in the interests of M. Lechovich, U.F.A. candidate for this constituency, was held in the Memorial hall last Friday evening. There was a large attendance and the candidate made a good impression at this, his first appearance before a Fort audience. Apparently nervous at first, he soon warmed up to his work and surprised some of the chaptics.

Hon. Geo. Hoadley was late in making an appearance and part of the audience had, unfortunately, left for their homes before he arrived.

PREPARE FOR ROADS CONVENTION

The Canadian good roads association will hold its annual convention in Edmonton this year, on September 22, 23 an 30. It is expected that some 700 delegates will be present and that full advantage will be taken of the occasion by the eastern visitors to see something of the charms of Alberta's mountain scenery.

Exercise Your Franchise

It is one of the peculiarities of the human race that they intensely desire that which they are prohibited from having but which, when they obtain it, they neglect and frequently base all interest in. It is an inherited trait in the human make-up. According to the Bible story our first parents were given full ownership and use of everything in the Garden of Eden except one thing, they were forbidden to eat the fruit of one particular tree. And that was the one thing they longed for and felt they must have.

It has been found the world over that exacting prohibitory laws fail in their objects and do. Are backed up with not merely a strong public opinion but practically an unanimous one. Legislative enactments without proper educational force culminating in public opinion generally prove a failure because when people are told they cannot have or do this particular thing that is exactly what they are determined to have or do. Apparently the best way to make children desire something is to tell them they cannot have it and it is generally true that when they are given it they no longer want it.

This very human characteristic finds expression in politics as in other matters. From time immemorial men have agitated, struggled, fought and bled to obtain the right of self-government. Men and nations have been prepared to sacrifice everything else to achieve personal and national liberty, the right to make and administer their own laws. Some of the most terrible wars have been fought over this one issue. The result of the American Revolution, the South African War, not to enumerate the many struggles recorded in all English Histories, tell the story of man's fight for self government. Canada's Canadian history, the only Family Compact, and the subsequent development of responsible government, is a long continued story of the same struggle.

Now that the fight has been waged and victory achieved in nearly all civilized countries, and men are accorded the full privileges of citizenship, a free and secret ballot, and full power to thus choose those who will make and un-make laws and administer public affairs, what value does the average man place upon this great privilege and right? Women, too, agitated for the right to vote on terms of equality with men, and only at a compara tively recent date were accorded that right. What value do they now place upon it?

In the last Presidential election in the United States it was necessary for public spirited men and women and great public bodies and organizations to engage in a nation wide campaign to arouse the general public out of their indifference sufficiently to get them to the polls and record their votes. Yet those were the descendants, only a few generations removed, of the men who fought under Washington for the right of self-expression and self-government. And notwithstanding this aggressive campaign a large percentage of people did not take the trouble to vote.

The same apathy is in evidence in Great Britain, although not to the same extent. Nevertheless it is sufficiently noticeable to lead Sir Sidney Low, in an article in the Weekly Dispatch to say: "They will fight, and even die, to secure the vote. They obtain their votes and neglect to use them. Deny them the franchise, and they have an intolerable sense of injury and are ready to embark on revolution or rebellion in order to restore that wrong. Yet the privilege entered by so many years of effort is treated with strange indifference by those the fight is over and forgotten."

With a general election pending in Canada it became necessary to compile anew and up-to-date lists of qualified voters, but it was also necessary in all our large centres of population to plead with and exhort and continually urge men and women to take the trouble to register in order that they might vote, and party workers had in numerous cases to assist electors to secure the registration books. And it has been the experience in every election that thousands of people have to be gone after and conveyed to the polls to vote. In Australia a law was recently enacted making failure to vote an offence punishable by fine, and South Africa, the scene of a bloody war to obtain the right to vote, is now contemplating passing a similar law.

On September 14 next the people of Canada are called to the polls to choose their representatives in the House of Commons and to determine who shall constitute the Government of Canada and what policies shall prevail in the enactment of future legislation and administration. It is the duty of every qualified elector, man and woman, to vote. Whatever business, no matter how important, can equal this in importance. It is not only Canada's business that is at stake, but your own personal business—those things which can only be done for you in a collective way, but your own business nevertheless first.

In no instance it is any sacrifice on your part to devote a few minutes, or even hours, in discharging the obligations of your Canadian citizenship on one particular day in order to determine the character of Canada's policy and work for the next five years. Rather you will be making sacrifice of your own best interests of you fail to discharge your duty and exercise the greatest privilege of your citizenship, the permanent loss of which you would regard as a gross grievance and outrage.

"It is a pleasure," says Mrs Rose Donlon, of Tignish, P.E.I., "to tell you of the new lease and strength I got through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Before taking the pills life was a burden to me. I was so nervous that I did not know what to do. My head seemed to have no rest to water. I was very pale, constantly tired, and was losing flesh. It was then that I started using Pink Pills. Added to this I had a bad cough and my husband and friends thought I was going into consumption. The medical treatment I was taking did not appear to do me any good, and I had about given up hope when a friend urged me to use Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I got six boxes and found so much benefit that I got six more boxes. Before these were all taken I was a new woman restored again to good health. I gained in weight, the cough left me, my appetite returned and I once more had a good color. Better still, I was able to do my household work without fatigue. Needless to say I always recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to anyone suffering as I did, as this will be the means of painting the road toward health to some other sufferer."

To Conquer the Air

Will Be Accomplished When Aircraft Designers Solve Problem of Hovering

Hovering is the greatest problem that faces the designers of aircraft for success in this art the designer would do well to study the bumard, which can remain stationary in the air without any visible movement of the wings for a considerable time When a strong gust of wind renews the upward haiven of the wings are held right back almost at right angles to the body haives of the wings In this way it remains stationary facing a sun gale—a wind which blows most other birds backwards. It is seldom that the buzzard flaps its wings—and it never gives more than three successive flaps at a time while remaining stationary

When man has learnt the secret of the flight of the bumard he will have conquered the air.

Dairy Industry In Canada Is Forging Ahead, Particularly In The Western Provinces

Indications continue to be given of Canada's continued amount to contribute in the dairy industry. British Columbia has just registered another record production year after this honor has fallen in the past to many other Canadian provinces as soon as conditions warranted in the further development. In addition dairy stock has come to be in demand in many parts of the country and the Province of Quebec is now which business is being conducted all over many important portions. Production of dairy products continues to increase, particularly in the western provinces which have an exceptionally made a mark in this industry. The increasing volume of export trade is reflected in the establishment of storage facilities at Canadian ports.

Dairy production in Canada during 1925 according to the final report of the census of agriculture, just issued, amounted to 1,967,857,782 pounds, as against 1,911,722,322 pounds in 1924. The value of dairy products in 1925 was $178,223,327 in the year 1924 and $170,560,000 in 1923. The increase in value and in production continues to increase leading with an output of 447,941,141 pounds (fluid) valued at $31,789,150. The movement of cream and cheese at the Pacific agencies above the single month of July amounted to 5,000,000 pounds. The Fraser agency is credited with 1,778,233

Canadian Development

(By C. W. Peterson)

It would be well for Canada to take stock of herself, her resources and her institutions and consumers to formulate national plans in keeping with her peculiar conditions and limitations. Have we, for instance, an rational idea as to respect to our population requirements? Should we aim at the status of Russia with 15 per cent urban and 85 per cent rural population, or should we strive to reach the standard of the United States with 67 per cent urban and 33 per cent rural population? At what point does the normal equilibrium lie Canada? Obviously, such questions as these must be answered approximately before we can attempt to construct intelligent national development policies. Something of this character a Dominion Commission was created by our Federal Government to give us the answer. It never made a report and died on the job.

Thinking persons can, however, all agree on one point namely that our present agricultural population is absolutely out of proportion to the vast area of our agricultural landcast as well as west. Into it flow net immigrants.

There can be no manner of doubt that this condition must be remedied as promptly as humanly possible. Otherwise we can look to great national tragedy. As was suggested at the last Dominion Boards of Trade conference, Canada's best brains should be commandeered for public service and focussed on considering this unsolved, uncommonly grave situation. Before we can take any lasting prospects until improved agricultural population obtains—at present immigrant-minded industrial, governmental and transportation plants.

There is however a deplorable absence of intelligent opinions in Canada on the vital question of colonization. numerous occupational groups are at present given a blanket benefits to public expenditure in this direction, their judgment being founded largely on superficial premises. The press of Canada has a patriotic task to perform in bringing the actual facts before their readers and creating a vigorous and militant public opinion on this issue. Resolute governments in democratic countries move only in obedience to the will of the people. The initiative, therefore, must come from the great body of Canadian citizens rather than from their governments.

Prince May Open Building

New Canadian Hostel on Paris Is Nearing Completion

A visit of the Prince of Wales to Paris is now under consideration. It is understood he completed the young days that, if possible he would open the hostel which is now almost complete for the accommodation of Canadian students in the Cite Universitaire in Paris. This has been designed to accommodate 150 Canadian students at a cost of approximately $600,000 francs, given for the purpose by Senator Joseph M. Wilson, of Montreal. Building started last French year since 1929.

Following the announced opposition recorded at the beginning of June, there was a further important increase in employment on July 1, when the percentage of 3,804 persons gave an aggregated 450,218 persons, or 20,699 more than in the preceding month. Considerable additions to staff exceed those reported on the corresponding date of any previous year and the index of employment, at 983.7, now stands higher than in any other month since 1930. With the exception of logging, in which there was a seasonal decline, all groups of industries reported improvement, that in construction being the most extensive.

Modern Advertising

Is Much Less Expensive Than Older Methods of Selling

The old indictment that advertising adds to the cost of goods has been quashed by experience. Advertising is a machine to aid in distribution. The public didn't pay for the new machine it would pay for the more costly hand labor. No more is the machine of modern advertising wisely employed, a suspect of query and speculation as to cost. It takes the place of older, more expensive methods of selling and distribution.—World's Work.

Luck may come and luck may go, but real merit hangs on forever.

Notable Revival in Trade

Business Activity in Canada is Maintained At a High Level

Stimulated by the profitable marketing of the excellent crops of 1925 and by the prosperous conditions in the United States during recent months business activity in Canada was maintained at a high level, during the first half of 1926. Construction was especially active from April to June, contracts awarded in May recording a record for all time. Revenue car loadings were also great for in the second quarter volume of lumber is made for seasonal variation. The primary iron and steel industry operated at a comparatively high level of activity with orders from the railways and construction industry. Industrial employment showed significant improvement during the first half of the year, attaining on June 1 and July 1 a higher level than on the corresponding dates of any year since 1929.

Following the pronounced expansion recorded at the beginning of June, there was a further important increase in employment on July 1, when the percentage of 3,804 persons gave an aggregated 450,218 persons, or 20,699 more than in the preceding month. Considerable additions to staff exceed those reported on the corresponding date of any previous year and the index of employment, at 983.7, now stands higher than in any other month since 1930. Huge Production For Population

The density of population in the prairie provinces is only 2.5 persons per square mile, yet these provinces in 1925, produced 360,433,000 bushels of wheat, 223,354,000 bushels of oats, 84,161,000 bushels of barley and 21,545,000 bushels of rye, besides other crops. In comparison, the United Kingdom has 520 persons per square mile.

THE TEN COMMANDMENTS: DUTIES TO MAN

Golden Text: Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself. Leviticus 19:18.

Lesson Exodus 20:12-21.

Devotional Reading: Proverbs 3:27.

Explanations and Comments

The Law of Filial Piety, verse 12. Then shalt honor love and respect—thy father and the mother. This is the first commandment with promise. Eph. 6:2: "that thy days may be long in the land which Jehovah thy God giveth thee." The promise coupled with this command, in common with almost all the promises made in the earliest people of God, applies rather to the nation than to the individual. The people among whom the sacredness of the family ideal is maintained, whose child is under obedience to their parents during the time of immaturity, and always honor them, will be the nation of strength, retaining its hold upon its possessions and abiding.

"The parent who does not secure the allegiance and obedience of the child is as really violating the fifth commandment as the child who disobeys and disobeys him" (Wm. M. Taylor).

Miller's Worm Powders were designed to promptly relieve children who suffer from the ravages of worms. It is a simple preparation to destroy worms and intestinal worms without shock or injury to the most sensitive system. They act thoroughly and painlessly, and though in some cases they may cause vomiting, this is an indication of their powerful action and not of any nauseating property.

Empire First Campaign

Should Be Taken Advantage Of By Canadian Shippers

Canadian shippers to Great Britain should take advantage of the Empire First Campaign being organized by the British Government to have British consumers choose empire goods in preference to foreign products, and should mark all their goods with a label bearing the legend "Empire Goods—Canadian," according to J. Forsyth Smith, fruit representative of the Canadian trade commissioner's service, Liverpool, Eng., and fruit representative for the imperial economic committee.

British Air Officials Interested In Pilotless Air Ram

A pilotless, radio-controlled air ram is said to be the latest deadly weapon which France is preparing to use against her enemies in the future. This steel nosed aeroplane is said to have been demonstrated successfully at Quesqueville, near Cherbourg, and to have given promise that it might in time of war, dash straight at a formation of enemy planes wrecking both itself and the machine which it was chosen as the pilotless "ram" long the loops and go through nearly all the stunts practice of which a piloted ship is capable.

Requires Some Work

It takes 150,000 bees a full working day to gather and prepare a pound of honey which retails for a few cents. Canadian honey is now sold in registered grades, and it is finding ready sale in Europe and elsewhere, where the excellent flavor and grading is being recognized.

FORM A BRITISH PEACE LEAGUE TO END ALL STRIKES

London.—A new organization called the Industrial Peace League of the British Empire has been founded, it is announced, to "take steps to establish good relations between employers and workmen in Great Britain and eventually to establish on five-year truce between capital and labor."

In this war the promoters of the new organization hope to eliminate both strikes and lockouts.

The leading spirit on the Labor side is J. Hamilton Wilson, veteran president of the National Seamen's Union.

Sir Frederick Lewis banker and shipowner, is mentioned for the chairmanship, and Frank Hodges, former secretary of the British Miners' Federation, for the post of secretary. Among the objects of the new organization are to keep Great Britain, the sanctity of contracts, the right to work and the stamping out of the doctrine of class war. It is considered unfortunate for the prospects of the new society that both Wilson and Hodges are now discredited among the rank and file of British trade unionists, since both are regarded as signaling too much to the right.

France To Retrench

Will Cut Down Wheat Importations By 18,000,000 Bushels

Paris.—Cutting down wheat importations to the extent of 28,000,000 bushels this coming year is one of the first economies the government announces as part of the nation's retrenchment programme. In addition Queville, minister of agriculture, told the cabinet that by increasing the percentage of white wheat in flour, the country could dispense with 5,000,000 bushels this coming year. A further saving of 12,000,000 bushels could be effected by the obligatory use of 80 per cent. of other cereals in bread making.

This is the first of a series of measures intended to reduce the French outlay for living to be placed before the cabinet. The similar economies will be considered during this line.

Sowing More Winter Wheat

U. S. Farmers Plan Larger Acreage For This Fall

Washington, D.C.—Farmers are intending to sow this fall an acreage of winter wheat for the 1927 harvest, than sown last fall, which would mean a total acreage of 45,964,000 acres or about four per cent. more than sown last fall, which would mean about 29,274,000 acres for harvest next summer, an increase of 7 per cent.

Toronto.—Twenty-two department stores of Canada with appraised assets of about $10,000,000 are included in a new company, Canadian Department Stores, Limited, which is being formed by the Municipal Bankers Corporation of Toronto, according to The Toronto Telegram.

Within six months, expand and standardize the business, according to the plan, Henri Bourlier, president of the banking company, and M. John Wilson, vice president. The Telegram states.

"This merger of interests is being effected in such a manner that there will be no immediate issue of securities of any kind to the public of this country. Average number of years in business of amalgamated firms is 44 years. Two important boot houses, one in Montreal and one in Hamilton, will be included in the list, but their names are not yet mentioned."

It was one of the rare gatherings of the Shikar Club, an exclusive pet ask which formed some years ago by Lord Lonsdale. Membership of the club is confined to redoubtable Nimrods who have brought down with rifle or gun the edge of extinction.

The king, who has shot more than a score of tigers, is the honorary president of the club.

Cowboys Are Injured

Ottawa.—Three western cowboys were injured at the stampede being staged here in connection with the capital's centenary celebration.

Fire In Swedish Mine

Several of Largest Buildings Destroyed At Kiruna

Stockholm.—The world's most northerly city, Kiruna, in Swedish Lapland, has been swept by fire. Several of the community's largest buildings were destroyed, one fireman was killed, and $250,000 damage done.

The destruction was increased by the explosion of a depot of dynamite, kept for the blasting of Kirunavaara, the mountain nearby, which consists of iron ore.

His lordship is investigating the conditions under which the 2,000 family immigration scheme from Great Britain is working out in this country. He has interviewed some 25 of these families and will see a number more in various sections of the country, and of these he reports that "I have not found a single ineligible." All are highly satisfied with their lot and seem to be thoroughly happy and prosperous in their new surroundings. The Viscountess Clarendon and their three children are touring Canada at the present time.

Says U. S. IS LEADING WORLD INTO A NEW ERA

Roanoke Island, N.C.—Relief that the United States is leading the world into a new era and better way of the that automobile will bring a great spiritual rebirth and thereby usher in a period of unexampled prosperity, were declarations heard by Lou Henry Hoover, wife of the secretary of commerce, here Friday.

Mrs. Hoover, who is touring the historic sites of the Carolinas, was the guest of honor at a luncheon given by the Roanoke Island Historical Association.

"The new message that I think America of today is giving the world is that the lives of men are more than mere goods and that peace and contentment are more than mere wealth. America's great contribution to the world progress is its human policy in industry—the part it has learned the gospel of high wages, as it has been called and you have applied it and showed the world that it works," Mr. Hoover said. The material development of this country was not aided by Sir Edwards "accidental matter."

Passenger Plane Wrecked

Flight From Paris to London Ends in Disaster

London.—Continuing a heavy loss among the English coast, a Paris to London passenger plane, on a flight from Paris to London, was wrecked at Folkestone.

None of the passengers were killed one of them reported to have been Hobart Hughes, Detroit. Mich., who thought he be an Indian.

The Victoria Hospital at Folkestone, to which six injured, six of them United States citizens, were transferred, reported that all of the in all there were 12 passengers on injured were in a critical condition, the plane. None of them escaped injury.

The primary cause of the disaster is believed to have been engine trouble, for, upon seeking lower levels in the fog to find her bearings, the big machine struck suddenly and collapsed swiftly. It struck the top of a barn.

Conditions Quiet in Russia

Polish Minister to Moscow Says Country is Orderly

Warsaw.—Conditions are quiet in Soviet Russia, according to Mr. Kent Cesmuli, Polish minister to Moscow who has returned and later left again for absence from his post. The minister says that stories about conditions in Russia printed in the European press frequently, are far removed from the truth. As to reported conflicts among the Communists, he remarked that the dissensions among the communists are no graver than which is more than 12,000 feet in all divergencies that exist elsewhere in lands. Several Earls and Viscounts ambitions or government parties.

Competitors Of League

Pacts Among European Countries Are Second Line of Defence

Washington.—Mere — Regional agreements have been made between numerous countries in Europe recognizing the authorities of the League of Nations, Dr. Peter J. councilor of the Royal Hungarian legation, told the Institute of Politics.

He suggested these agreements as complementary to the League of Nations. Referring to the agreement known as the Little Entente between Czecho Slovakia, Jugo Slavia and Rumania against Hungary M. Pubenyi said the latter country found it difficult to understand why the first three countries, whose forces were individually superior to Hungary's, should insist in alliance building, in opposition to Hungary.

Recent rapprochement among the central European countries indicate that the new alignments are not necessarily among belligerent Hungary said, but their establishment as a second line of defense in case the league gone smash" hardly indicates a bona fide trust in the efficacy of the league.

Delay In the Mails

Letter Takes 35 Years to Travel 300 Miles

Toronto.—Thirty-five years ago a friend of Mrs J. T. Marshall, wife of the Anglican bishop of Saskatchewan, wrote to her from Glen Roe, Lambton County, Ontario. The letter has just arrived here having taken 35 years to travel less than 300 miles. Evidently it had rested in the dead letter office for the greater part of that time before being opened on the "return to sender" principle.

Mr. Lowe pointed out that Sir William Campbell, president of the South African section of the British Empire Service League, and Hilary Jordan, president of the Canadian section of the league, had opened the the grave, and imparted the government in its flag policy.

"This controversy," he said, "has been greatly exaggerated."

Harvest is with us again. The binders shuttle back and forth in the fields from early morn till sundown. This week will see about all the wheat cut. On the whole the crop is stooking up better than we anticipated. What really grieves our Irish hearts though is the acute shortage of spuds, which seems to be pretty general.

The work on the basement of the church is about completed and promises a very fine appearance. Mr. Elliot of the Fort was the contractor. Services will be resumed next Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Oshaldeston and Mr. and Mrs. Jos Oshaldeston returned last week from a pleasant motor trip to Lloydminster, Kinsella, Vermilion, etc. They report the crops as pretty fair en route.

Mr. and Mrs. Rod Alton spent a couple of days last week visiting friends here. Rod has recently joined the ranks of the Edmonton city police

A number from here attended the Edmonton fair last week and report a good time.

Mrs. Wes Alton has returned from Lamont hospital where she has undergone special treatment. She is somewhat improved in health.

We are glad to hear that Miss Lucy Hosmer is making a good recovery following an operation. She is a patient in a city hospital.

Miss Grace Larson, Edmonton, has been spending her holidays with her parents here.

Misses Norma and Betty Alton have been boarding in Edmonton with their grandma, Mrs. J. M. Alton.

Miss Susie Smith is getting around again following an unfortunate accident, which resulted in a broken arm. Miss Smith declares she is definitely "off" the Fords from now on. We suspect she will specialize in Chevrolets. (?)

Who?
The boy with the bell on!
When was he due to arrive?
About midnight last Friday!

A boy with a bell on went at top speed through some farmers' grain fields, but the joke was on him as the farmers were not deceived. We don't know whether the assembling with the long name had a bell on while eating grass or if the boy with the bell was trying the stunt of eating grass or not. (Nebuchadnezzar was the herbivorous king's name.—Ed.) [Go to the head of the class!]

Does your mother know you're out, little boy?

Yes! But she put a bell on me.

The dance at Agricola on Friday last was a great success, a good crowd being present in spite of the muddy roads. Almost all the school children and their parents were there, as the dance was to celebrate the success of the six Grade VIII pupils.

LEARNING ABOUT ALBERTA

Request for full information concerning Alberta, with suitable illustrations, has been received by the provincial publicity bureau from the chairman of a council of education, which is revising its geographical text book, and wishes to include a generous reference to Alberta. This is one of many indications received recently that greater attention is being paid to securing information about the Canadian west than ever before, by the people across the line.

Poised Like Bird Against Mountains

Miss Lydia Fulcher, champion of the Calgary Swimming Club, has shown Lake Louise, its cyclon, orange and white poppers, its distant, silent mountains and gay tourist throngs, how the swan dive should be done. She is a true mermaid of the Canadian West, schooled in the aquatic art in the Canadian government's great pool, the Cave and Basin, at Banff, where she has many times swum since her younger days.

Miss Fulcher became a champion last year at the Banff Winter Carnival when swimmers lifted into the Cave and Basin, filled with hot sulphur water from Sulphur Mountain, while the temperature outside through the open roof of the Basin was sinking, wishing to venture into the cooler depths of Lake Louise the zero mark. This fancy diver has also demonstrated her ability as a speed swimmer. The above photograph shows Miss Fulcher poised in midair in the most graceful of dives, with an excellent view of Mount Victoria in the distance—some 14 and one-half miles away. With the diver is shown also the glacier as well as the foreground in sharp detail despite the fact that the exposure was timed for the infinitesimal fraction of a second.

The new pool situated at Lake Louise, is one of the most popular on the Canadian Pacific Rockies. It is about 90 feet in length and eight feet in depth at the deepest point. There are springboards at various heights to suit the expert or amateur diver, and the water is warm enough to attract those not quite through the open roof of the Basin as sinking, wishing to venture into the cooler depths of Lake Louise itself.

No Wonder Canadians are Handsome

Canadian men and women owe their good looks and beauty to their country, says Fan Chang Fass, of Shanghai, who Dean Paul C. Fass, of Dalhousie, believes that environment is the chief factor in the evolution of the human species. On the whole, this young Chinese philosopher thinks, Canadians considered collectively, are much better than the Chinese because of their healthier and more beautiful surroundings.

"This is a very old theory," said Mr. Fass in a recent interview, "and a very well-founded one. He pointed out the fact that the inhabitants of the vast opium areas of China were an ugly people, while a native of the Province of Kiangsu, the most fertile and beautiful of Chinese provinces, could be recognized anywhere for their great beauty.

"Take your country beautiful, and the rest will take care of itself."—that is Mr. Fass's recipe for good looks. Canadians, he says, have carried out this theory unconsciously with the result that their country has not only great natural beauty, but many fine cities, and thousands of acres of beautiful farm land. The Canadian Pacific Railway with which Mr. Fass has been connected for the past two and a half years has played a great part in beautifying Canada by encouraging tourist travel and by the establishment of chateaux, as well as assisting in the country's development in many other ways.

Paul C. Fass, who has been in Montreal in a graduate of Chinese universities, the son of a Manchurian, and just 30 years old. For two and a half years, under an arrangement between the Governments of China and Canada, he has been making a study of the Canadian Pacific Railway System with the idea of acquiring practical knowledge that he can apply to the railroad problems of his own country. He and several other young Chinese students arrived in Montreal in December 1923, and since his stay in Montreal, Mr Fass has been employed in the Angus shops and various departments of the Railway in Windsor Street Station, Montreal. He has also been a student at McGill university where he took an M.Sc. degree, and is at present working for the degree of M.A., which he hopes to receive in the Fall, before returning to China in October. Mr. Fass leaves the Canadian Pacific Railway Company at the end of this month and will travel through Canada during the summer. The building in the photograph is the Windsor Street Station, Montreal, where Mr. Fass worked most of his Canadian Pacific railway training.

He's not such a bad bird at that.

Joanna was not in the mood to discuss Neil Morrison—not even herself worth, who had protected her to call him Bobbie without another word, by Gissing, Kitty went down to the lobby to telephone Jack to come to London and America was as well known to Georgie as any other gold piece in the Pandora—some one liked and one-half miles away. With interest aroused, Georgie was disturbed, her rusting eyes engaging her attention with ever new splendors emerging out in the sheen on the rim or the drape of one of the new things hanging about the room. Woman Suffered Nearly a Year. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Brought Her Health

Moose Jaw, Sask.—"I am going to try to tell you what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for me. I suffered very badly with dragging-down pains and inflammation, also pains in my right side over my hip and down my whole side into my leg. I had it nearly a year when I went to a doctor and he said I would have to have an operation. But my mother said to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound as it saved her life years before. I took two bottles and I found I was better, so I kept on taking it and also used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash. I have had two more children since then and am perfectly well. I used to have to lie down two or three times a day, and now I do all my housework without trouble. I always keep the Vegetable Compound in the house as I find a dose now and then helps me. I am willing for you to use this letter any way you see fit, and I will answer letters. If I can help any other woman I'd be only too glad to try."—Mrs. Ernest Hounsom, 712 Athabasca W., Moose Jaw, Saskatchewan.

Brandon drew her to him, until she could quite close. It was the prelude to a kiss.

"You have the most disconcerting way of not finishing what you start to say," Eagleston protested. He spoke absently, with more of the old sense in his voice that had been there a moment before Joanna realized that she could penalize no evasion with the first man.

"I think I meant to say someone who will show me how to enjoy my money," she said ironically "You see, you nor Mr. Graydon nor Mr. Brandon will give me any advice. I don't know what to do. I feel there I, so much I could do and should do I tried to win a prize one time by shining at hat I'd do if I had a thousand dollars. I know all sort of things. I think I built hospitals and started schools for girls to learn how to be Mary Pickfords, and even then I didn't win the prize. Now that I've all that you say is in the bank for me, I can't really think of a thing. I guess I want a little fun too badly. So I'm going to learn from one who knows."

"Just a little fun, as you call it. But you can buy a lot of pleasure with the money you have. Won't it pall on you after a while—"

"Perhaps. I don't know. I'm a little bit afraid I don't know much of anything, you see. So I want to learn. It's a lot of responsibility somebody has put onto my shoulders, isn't it?"

For a time he didn't answer. When he did he asked her abruptly, "Who is your confidante going to be?"

"I don't suppose you know her. Miss Coutant, Yvonne Coutant. She's very famous, you know, and has heaps of money of her own. Men are always in love with her. She's thrilling."

Again he was silent, and then Joanna thought there was something cold in his voice. "Yes, I know of her. I fancy almost everyone does. Let's see—is she divorced now or married—"

"Divorced. But that doesn't make any difference, does it."

"Not the slightest." He spoke

A Western Programme

On September 14, through the medium of the ballot box, the electors of Canada will decide one all important issue but in so doing the will deter mine several really important matters. In the first place, they will make it clear to the men in whom in whom they repose confidence as their can didates representatives in the next House of Commons. In only a few isolated cases, do candidates seeking the suffrage of the electors stand upon it as exponents of their own personal views and policies in the vast majority of cases they likewise represent a political party or group, and their election means approval of the leader, the principles and the policies of that party or group. Thus the individual voter in marking his ballot has another double obligation, of the person they desire to represent them in Parliament for the next five years but they express their opinion as to whom should lead the Government during that period, and render their verdict as to the policies which should prevail in dealing with the major questions now before the country.

Parliamentary rules in order that in matters of government the will of the people may be made to prevail. It is through the choice of members of the House of Commons representative of the views of a majority of individual voters that the popular will is made known and made effective. Thus, where a majority of the voters, in any constituency in Canada believe that their best interests will be served and advanced by a high protective tariff, they will naturally vote for a candidate who himself believes in that policy and is standing in support of the party which is pledged to such a policy. It is right and proper that they do so, nor is there anything sectional nor disloyal to Canada in so voting. As five electors they are recording their will in like manner the people of a constituency who do not believe that tariff protection will benefit them, nor that it is in the best interests of the Dominion as a whole, will support that candidate and party whose policy is one only a moderate tariff consistent with the revenue requirements of the country and who favor reductions when and wherever possible. This is not sectional, nor antagonistic to the rest of Canada, but is again a right and proper expression of the people's will. Proportionately as these are voting for themselves and what they consider best for Canada; equally so, low tariff electors are voting for what they regard as in the national interests.

It is only on that the popular will of all Canadians can be reconciled and find expression in Parliament. When the representatives on these issues are able in Parliament all views will be presented and the majority must prevail, although in the interests of all they must be compromises effected.

This is the case in but of the atomic inquiries which are going to think straight, see clearly, and vote strongly for those men, that party, and those principles and policies best calculated to give expression in Parliament and to initiation to a programme designed to advance the real and permanent interests of their constituencies.

Now there are certain things that Western people, whether Liberals, Conservatives, Progressives, independents or Labortites, know this country needs in order to bring about development, increased population, and permanent prosperity. There may be some few in the ranks of each of these groups who hold contrary opinions, but, in general, Western people are united, regardless of party affiliations, in believing:

1. That the Hudson Bay Railway should be completed and put into operation with the least possible delay.

2. That a well remembered system of Rural Credits should be inaugurated in order to provide for the needs of the agriculturists of the West.

3. That Canada should come into line with Great Britain and other advanced countries and provide pensions for the old and infirm who have done their share in building up the Dominion, or failed to accumulate a competence for their declining years.

4. That a sound and vigorous immigration policy and administration should be maintained, and, to that end, that policies should be the into effect designed to make settlement of Western lands attractive by making the profession of agriculture a profitable one.

5. That, in order to make farming more profitable than hitherto, it is essential that transportation charges be kept as low as possible consistent with the maintenance of our transportation systems, and that, in this connection, the Crow's Nest Pass statutory rates be maintained.

6. That lands sold to soldier settlers be re-valued and justice done these men and their families. Western people, who are personally informed regarding the circumstances under which many of these settlers now labor, have no two opinions regarding this.

7. That, inasmuch as it is impossible to protect all industry in Canada by means of the tariff, and usually as in the case of agricultural products and livestock, the general tariff of the Dominion should be made as low as possible, advantage taken of every opportunity for making favorable trade arrangements with any and all countries, and tariff preferences further extended to all parts of the Empire.

8. That the Government and Parliament of Canada encourage and seek to develop co-operative undertakings in every legitimate way.

The above outlines a Western Programme with which an overwhelming majority of the people of Western Canada will be found in agreement. They would like full effect given to it. It is the duty, therefore, of each individual elector in the West to honestly examine the past record and present policies of the outstanding parties and candidates in the election culminating on September 14 and go to the polls and mark their ballot accordingly.

Western voters in favor of the Hudson Bay Railway must decide whether they consider the completion of the road will be most aggressively carried on under Charles A. Dunning, of Regina, of W. A. Black, of Banff. Electors in favor of, must decide whether the Rural Credits Bill, the re-instatement of soldier settlers' lands, the provision of Old Age Pensions, all passed by the last Parliament under Mackenzie King, but which failed of assent before dissolution, are more likely of attainment under a King or a Meighen Government.

Western electors in favor of Crow's Nest Pass rates must give consideration to the fact that the Crow's Nest Pass lower freight rates were provided for under a Liberal Government; that they were abrogated by a Conservative Government; that they were restored by a Liberal Government; that Mr. Meighen in this campaign is denouncing all statutory freight rates, and has stated that the railways need the money of which they are deprived through the Crow's Nest Pass Agreement. Do the C.P.R. shareholders or the C.N.R. with its steadily rising revenues, need this money worse than do the farmers of the West?

Canada needs stable government. Mr. Meighen is appealing for support on the ground that he will provide stable government. Either he or Mr. King will be Premier after September 14, but neither Mr. Meighen nor Mr. King can guarantee stable government. The voters alone can determine that by giving one party or the other a working majority.

Superiority Of Canadian Bred Fowl Shown In Competition With Southern Reared Birds

It is anticipated that the World's Poultry Congress to be held at Ottawa in the summer of 1925 will bring between 3,000 and 4,000 delegates including friends-probably in toto a people all told to Ottawa from all parts of the world. These parties will come the country in all directions. This is will be seen that the as a longer hurry Canadian born not only aid-greatly to the annual production of the nation, but to also making known the extent of Canada's poultry industry to the different countries of the world," says F. C. Elford, Dominion poultry husbandman, in an article showing that Canada leads the world in many phases of the poultry industry.

Superiority of the Canadian-bred and raised domestic fowl, as shown particularly in competition with birds in other countries and in the results of egg laying competitions in countries countries is in line with the general superiority shown by the more northerly developed strains of plants and animals as raised in vitality and quality over those developed in more favored climates. He also points out that Canada's natural conditions are such that the best is a native of no section, the turkey, partridge, prairie chicken, the duck and the famous Canada goose are indigenous to this country. The two latter are, of course, migratory, but when domesticated, thrive exceedingly well here as year round.

Hardy, robust and Prolific, the climatic conditions in Canada have done much to encourage poultry raising in the Dominion. Practically all the birds raised on all the Central Experimental Farms, Illinois and all 7 branch farms and all subsidiary stations are Canadian bred. Practically all the large egg laying competitions are organized by the poultry division of the experimental farm service, which has established the Canadian Record of Performance and Registration of Poultry in all which develop how to lay eggs and increase production of the whole country.

As a result of the combination of blood, climate and concentrated efforts to increase and improve the poultry population, the actual number of birds on the farms and in towns in Canada has increased threefold in a quarter of a century, and that realized egg production per hen has increased considerably since 1921

Wage War On Weeds

Estimated That Saskatchewan Farmers Will Lose $30,000,000 This Year

Weeds will cost the farmers of Saskatchewan more than $30,000,000 this year, according to F. C. Nellis, provincial commissioner for the Saskatchewan Government.

Mr Tullis states that weeds throughout the province have been exceptionally bad this year, the mustard, wild oats and sow thistle having been the principal trouble.

The field crops branch is making a strong effort to arouse public opinion in the agricultural districts of the necessity of putting up a strenuous fight against the ever-growing weed pest. To raise the grain of Saskatchewan, says Mr. Tullis, it is imperative that "a province wide movement for clean farms be started. Weeds are a menace to chemical action of moisture in the soil and the farmers of Saskatchewan."

While there be of small comfort to the farmers of this province, the field crops commissioner says that weeds are worse across the border in the Northern United States, where, in some cases, weed legislation has never been enforced, with the result that the a ready purchase of grain is impossible.

Reindeer in Barren Lands

Experiment Conducted By Hudson's Bay Company Not Yet Successful

The Hudson's Bay Company experimental herd of reindeer, established by the late Vilhjalmur Stefansson, its explorer, to introduce reindeer in the northern barren lands of Canada with the idea of beginning an important meat industry, has failed

This admission is made officially by the Hudson's Bay Company in its annual report made public by Charles H. Sale, governor of the company.

The experiment has been a failure, but it will be continued according to Mr. Sale who has hopes of ultimate success. "With the close of the war," he stated, "we realized that progress demanded a closer association with the northern countries and we decided to continue a development board. Just about the same time we were approached by Stefansson with a project for introduction of reindeer in Baffin Land about the bases which had been established by Admiral The project was one which had the active support of the Canadian Government and while the first step should be undertaken by our department in the interests of Canada

"I regret to say that so far the new venture has been a failure but in this as in other things failure taken in the right way is but a stepping stone to success, and we do not intend to abandon the experiment until we have proved to our own satisfaction and, if possible to the satisfaction of the Canadian Government that success is not attainable."

Canadians Leave

Returning to Their Homes Where Wages Are as High as in Maine

Everything is prosperous, newly-returned from the northeastern part of the state Canadians who have been employed in lumber and railroad operations are leaving for their homes where it is claimed they can get as high wages as they have been receiving in Maine So great is the exodus that is to feared that industrial progress in that section of the state will be hampered

It is claimed that competition for labor is just as strong on the Canadian side of the boundary as in Maine.—Lewiston, Maine, Daily Sun, August 19

Arrangements for the export of large quantities of British Columbia seed potatoes to California have been made this year by a potato grower of that state The British Columbia potatoes are desired in California for seed purposes because they introduce new strength into the southern strain. Experiments were made with Canadian potatoes two years ago and the yield and growers were well satisfied with the results.

Crate Feeding Poultry

Best Method to Follow For High Gains in Trade

Table poultry intended for birds these trade should be properly fleshed before being marketed. Fleshing not only increases the weight of the bird, it also greatly improves the quality. The results in a month by any person possessed of ordinary intelligence. Fleshing is best accomplished by crate feeding for from two to four weeks, depending on the condition of the birds.

A bulletin on the subject of poultry production has been distributed by the Publications Branch of the Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, which tells in detail how to make crates and how to feed and care for the birds, while in those districts where birds are plentiful and cheap the bulletin, medium sized birds, belonging to the general purpose breeds give the best results, in the writer. The birds should be of strong constitution and give muscular as over

When the birds are fit for the crate they should be fed regularly for several days after that a mash feed as the will take a clay should be given. The use of sour milk in this crate feeding is desirable. Any high quality is the object in view. Fed with fairly ground grain in about the proportion of three pounds milk to two of grain, and all the birds will eat should be given in from three to four days. Any mash left over should be removed immediately after feeding, before the birds have the grains generally soaked in the mash, and they should always be freely ground. A good mixture consists of equal parts of corn oats and barley, by weight. Buckwheat screenings, a by-product from the elevators, given in small quantities, are usually cheap. It is fed with oats milk in the usual manner

Age Of Queens In Brood Production

Colonies Wintered in the Cellar and Outside Packing Cases

The project started by the bee division of the Dominion experimental farms in 1924 to determine the average daily egg production of young queens and queens was continued in 1925 Two of the colonies used were wintered in the cellar, one with a queen in the fall of 1923 and the other with a queen in the second year The other colonies were wintered outside in packing cases, one of which in a similar way. Counts were taken every seven days from May 16 to July 25 Very full statistical data in the report of the foreman appears for the first year give the results in 1924 and 1925. These show that the best egg production was obtained in the outdoor colonies the highest egg production during the earlier part of the year where in mid-season the report which can be had as no cost on addressing the Publications Branch. Department of Agriculture, Ottawa. Both breed producers will be of vital importance, especially in localities where the main flow comes early, such as fruit bloom or clover The condition, however, the reports show, was reversed in the colonies wintered in the cellar.

Canadian Cattle Clips Thumb Jersey Products Need Protection

The Canadian Fat Cattle Association, considering the copyrighting of the name "Jersey" when used in connection with any dairy product. The matter has been at a great deal of trouble and expense to secure a quali fied Jersey article and has secured for so far that many consumers of dairy products are willing to pay practically double for the Jersey article what they are willing to pay for any other sort of milk The result is that a great many "shrewd" people are trading on the name Jersey. If their cow is a grade several removes from the pure bred strain, they will sell their milk as Jersey milk and the public are misled The result is that much milk low in real Jersey quality is passed off on the unsuspecting consumers Really pure producers are really qualified Jersey milk are the sufferers The aim of the Jersey men is to see that only producers of the really qualified Jersey article shall be allowed to use the name Jersey That is no one all life herd has been inspected by a duly qualified examiner satisfactory to the club and passed upon as satisfactory not only to the club, but to the consumers This is a splendid move and one that deserves earnest consideration

Alfalfa and Rye or Brome Grass

The Most Economical and Profitable Way For a Good Hay Mixture

It having evident that alfalfa and timothy or brome grass make a good hay mixture as the superintendent of the Dominion experimental farm at Indian Head (W. H.) thought, in his last report, the question naturally arises what is the most economical and profitable of these to use

Table giving the results from thirteen tests presented in the report indicates that a mix of 6 pounds of alfalfa and eight pounds of rye grass per acre (no even four and eight) is a safe farmer.

A table is also given in the report of the results at substituting western rye grass with brome grass in a mixture with alfalfa. In general, the results are similar but, says Mr Gilboon, after the first crop there is a big difference in favor of the brome in considerable range up to six or seven weeks of age, it is recommended by the Dominion experimentalist that these should be mowed before the plants begin to form heads or joints. Within range or weeks of age, the crop is cut by the time they are in bloom. The deadings will by this time have developed vig orous digestions able to take care of the large quantities of feed that their appetites crave Not being able to run or swim off the flesh they make, the calves have no feed from day to day and the flesh put on will be tend er and of excellent flavor The feed recommended is the "Alberta Dairy Feeding" distributed by the Publications Branch of the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa, and consists of one part bran two parts shorts, three parts ground corn, two parts ground barley and about five parts of ground oats. In proportion should be mixed together about a bulky grass feed such as chopped up clover and timothy or vegetable The mixture is moistened to a crumbly state with

Mrs. Wilson's Experience a Guide to Women Passing through the Change of Life

Hamilton, Ontario. "I have taken several bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I cannot speak too highly of it as I was at the Change of Life and was all run-down and had no appetite. I was very weak and sick, and the pains in my back were so bad I couldn't do anything more. I got very sad at times and thought I had not a friend on earth. I did not care if I lived or died. I was very nervous, too, and could not get out very much. A friend advised me to take a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I did. I am a farmer's wife, and always worked hard until lately, and was not sick for two months. I began to feel like a new woman after the first bottle and I recommend it with great success, also Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills. I am willing to answer letters from women asking about your medicines, as I cannot speak too highly of them."—Mrs. Sarah Wilson, 471 Wilson Street, Hamilton, Ontario.

The Country And Its Consuming Population

By C. W. Peterson

With comparatively few exceptions the country towns of Canada have been going down hill or have barely held their own during recent years. Various reasons have been ascribed to this disturbing phenomenon chiefly improved highways and the general use by farmers of automobiles, which enable them periodically to do their trading, and, incidentally, indulge in recreation, in the cities, thus cutting off an enormous volume of farm labor employed and, consequently, the consuming population tributary to the country town. Rural mail delivery has largely cut out the visit to the post office and to family.

But new possibilities are opening up for the smaller centres. It is a fundamental fact that organized life passes through crises and, normally, all almost, out of them again. Every spell of depression in human affairs is just the bitter period which precedes the dawn of spring. While old kinds of business have disappeared, new kinds of business have appeared in the towns. There are the sales agencies for automobiles and trucks. Every town has them. The man in charge is related also to thousands of others like him in a wonderful system of salesmanship in a line which was absolutely unknown in the town twenty years ago. Parts manufacturing has also led to larger and better equipped garages, tractor agencies and filling stations.

The towns are also organized better than they used to be to look after their products. Here's a piece of fourteen thousand people, where there have sprung up a big garage and a grain shipping centre. A modern building, properly arranged and ventilated, with well equipped office rooms, a good warehouse, ample elevator room from the main line of the railroad. Carloads of poultry shipped direct to the city. "Do you hear it?" Who says that the town is not coming back?

The farmers are shipping the cream out from the towns, through local separation, and getting cream checks, but a co-operative creamery operated from the outside world—crushing their checks at the local banks and spending a big slice of the money with the local merchants.

It's true there was a time when city high schools sucked the young people away from the towns. But during the past decade the towns have organized their own high school buildings. As one travels across Canada, he is impressed with the fact that towns everywhere have gone into the high school business. The local pulling paths are being at home and going to school. That is making a new social life in the towns, such as was not known previously.

From the cities they are doing something that is helping the towns to return. Certain railroad commissioners have made regular stops from the big city centres out to small stations points. Automobile associations also make the rich of labor troubles, and motors service stations for repair work.

In the east, there's a notable tendency to scatter industrial plants. This has become more marked than at any examination in the United States has recently made surveys and published the results of the influence of home industries upon the rural areas through which they have been scattered. In a journal published for factory executives I recently appear a series of articles, entitled "What We Moved to the County." They told the personal experiences and impressions of managers who had taken their industries out of the city centres into the country. And they said, and the press in my back were so bad I couldn't do anything more. I got very sad at times and thought I had not a friend on earth. I did not care if I lived or died. I was very nervous, too, and could not get out very much. A friend advised me to take a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and I did. I am a farmer's wife, and always worked hard until lately, and was not sick for two months. I began to feel like a new woman after the first bottle and I recommend it with great success, also Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills. I am willing to answer letters from women asking about your medicines, as I cannot speak too highly of them."—Mrs. Sarah Wilson, 471 Wilson Street, Hamilton, Ontario.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

THE TENT OF MEETING

Golden Text: Jehovah spake unto Moses face to face, as a man speaketh unto his friend. Exodus 27:11

Lesson: Exodus 33.

Devotional Reading: Psalm 51-7.

Explanations and Comments

The Place and Purpose of the Tent of Meeting.—verses 7-11.—These verses describe the customary way in which Moses performed his high priestly service during the wilderness life, before the tabernacle was erected. At every new encampment Moses "used to take the tent," a special tent which he called the tent of meeting, and have it set up by it self, far from the camp. Similarly, after the settlement in Canaan, the tent sanctuaries were beyond the towns and villages. This tent was especially sacred because in it Moses as priest obtained answers from God for any inquiries who came there with his perplexities. When his duties were over, Moses returned to the camp, but the tent was constantly guarded by his attendant, a young man named Joshua, verse 11.

When Moses started for the tent, the eyes of all the people followed him until he entered it. When he had reached it, Moses' friend, the people had complained to Aaron that "as for this Moses, the man that brought us up out of the land of Egypt, we wot not what is become of him," and the new arrangement was better for the wayward people. When they saw the pillar of cloud, the symbol of the divine presence, descend and hover about the door of the tent, each man sitting and watching at the entrance of his own tent would rise up and worship, and Jehovah spoke with Moses.

Tube Train Was Forgotten

Current in London's Underground Switched Off By Mistake

A tube train was delayed twenty minutes in the tunnel near Chelsea Farm, England, because the station staff thought that the last train to Hendon had gone through and had turned off the current in the section.

The train had almost reached the station when it stopped. Its ordinary lights went on, and then the emergency lights came on.

The staff at the station notified the road department that something had gone wrong with the line, but before it could be rectified, word had to be sent out that the tunnel was dangerous and that a staff of engineers would have to be brought down to make an inspection.

CHAPTER XIII.

Yvonne Coutant

Yvonne Coutant was one of those women, coming in bands and lure but old in the lure of all else that is one of whom it was the fashion to know much but of whom one knew much. Her appearance on the scene while hatless, set off to simple and finished with linked cuffs. The Model No. 1064, is in sizes 34, 35, 36, 38 and 42 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 2¼ yards 36-inch plain material, with a half contrasting collar. The flared skirt, No. 1288 is joined to a body lining, and is in sizes 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust. Her appearance on the scene while hatless, set off to simple and brought hands together and curtsied, eyes that had grown warm in their arrogance to pierce the blue haze that shrouded the distant Sphinx. Her arrival at Nice, or Cannes during the season of the Mi mosa—for a visit in the Villa Rose at Monte Carlo and echoed from villa to villa among the whole Riviera shore if some evening she whispered that she framed herself in the purple curtains of the exclusive Embassy club in London, or stopped to drop her cloak in the lounge of any other fashionable supper rendezvous. Mayfair knew of it long before it greeted the dawn with a final brandy and soda. Only the favored few knew whence she came, or what were to be the high lights of her play.

For Yvonne Coutant was a creature of high lights—Roddy Kenilworth replied them "high spots." Teddy Burmeister, of London, Paris and New York was born a lord with none of the snobbishness supposedly attached to such high estate, maintained a continuous argument with Roddy as to whether or not it should be "spot" lights. Bessie Ann Englishman, Lord Teddy was a stickler for exactness. "Spot" or not neither way this was as good an example as any of the controversies Yvonne Coutant fomented, and quite as sensible She guarded her mysteries, her past and her future, and danced to melodies of her own making.

Undoubtedly born in France, she she married an American and an Englishman. She had been in both when they announced that their affections for her were serious, and laughed at them both when she decided that as has been found there was room enough for three men in public sentiment over a sentiment. Divided there was room enough for two. Roddy Kenilworth was the only person in Nice who knew that Yvonne Coutant had been actress at Drury Lane—and he would have given much to have denied that distinction. Yvonne was a child born of the footlights and there is no greater love in the world must ever enter them.

It is probable they would willingly do their child share and share alike in the golden sheen on the butterfly wings that had fluttered for them

The latter one of those had been Yvonne's child. Her mother died before him, however. Yvonne Coutant had been one who helped, with her father's help, to make her daughter's charm, to give romantic color to the affairs of that circle of aspiring American businesses who in themselves can hardly be called gentlemen, who were without a sense of humor left desperately in love with her She h. child's share and share alike. Yvonne was without a sense of humor left desperately in love with her She h.

Roddy Kenilworth might have sold a dozen deal mines almost Yvonne Coutant than the sum of these things. If he wished. So might Brandeon. Of the two, Roddy probably had the safer income across you. Like them, in a Hindu Temple of Gold, or behind the altars hung some 7-ath of Anapicondas now, I should feel the urge to make a sacrifice to you—of a maiden widow, or a first born girl-child, or something of that order, possible you do not.

The Rhea at each corner of her flip deepened, and her soft, silvery laugh seemed to blend into the winter garden.

"Admirable, Roddy," she exclaimed merrily. "Your overture is magnificent. I am all prepared for the Wedding Finish your highball, pour yourself another, fix one for me, without ice and water, and then you may tell me the evil you are going to accuse me of pondering."

His expression didn't change He observed the first of her injunctions and emptied his glass. When he had also filled it with ice and water and her, which she motioned him to put aside, in reserve, he remarked, "I reserve to be sure."

"Then you really have some new accusations" In it very serious, this time, Roddy?"

"I am afraid," he insisted, "that even if you do spoil my carefully thought out approach, I shall not be deterred from getting my information in my own leisurely way. Let us talk of something extraneous—of the girl of last night, for example Extraneous any situation, isn't it? Smothered by money and doesn't know where to turn for breath?"

"You are quite nearly so good now, Roddy, as you were before!" Yvonne Richod him with the tuft of her lip ourtsable smile, and then prodded him deeper. "It was the girl you were thinking about when you came in—I don't think she's been off your mind since last night. And if there's any evil in store for her you want to pro-

LUNAN DENIES RUMORS ABOUT U.F.A. CANDIDATE

With regard to the article on the front page of last week's Record stating Mr Lunkowich, U. F. A. candidate, was retiring from the field has brought a lengthy letter from Mr Lunan denying that. Lack of time prevents us publishing Mr Lunan's letter in full but condensed, it amounts to this:

It appears that a trivial incident which occurred while Mr Lunkowich was writing his law examinations, that of looking at notes he had himself made, was reported to the Law Society for their consideration, and that body deemed it to be of so little consequence there was no question raised of disciplining him or preventing him from practising law. That's that, and shortly after Mr. Lunkowich, but some person with a motive in view related this incident, and as it passed from one to another it grew wonderfully, as most things do in this prolific province, until the crimes alleged by Dame Rumor to have been committed by Mr. Lunkowich have assumed such proportions he is liable to be hung, drawn and quartered instead of elected.

These rumors Mr. Lunan declares to be "absolutely false in every particular."

Over 50,000 railway cars which if placed end to end would stretch more than 400 miles are now available on the western lines of the Canadian Pacific Railway to handle the fall traffic in grain and live stock. The combined capacity of the 41,316 box cars for the grain crop which will be transported to the head of the lakes, is 570,040 tons. These are capable of carrying 20,350,000 bushels of grain each trip. Estimating that the cars make five trips between the grain fields and the head of the lakes or Vancouver the Canadian Pacific Railway Company is in a position to handle more than 200,000,000 bushels during the four months of the grain rush.

Here and There

Whaling operations off the coast of British Columbia this year have been very successful, and to the end of July the fleet had caught 183 whales. There are only six steamers operating this year, while last year the number was eight. The weather has been good to date and very little fog has been encountered.

Five chiefs representing the six bands in Montreal and various others by canoe left over the Canadian Pacific lines about twenty strong for Winnipeg recently to attend the annual convention of the Dominion Association of Fire Chiefs, which was held August 24th to 27th. The Association is made up of over 250 chiefs from all parts of the Dominion.

Nearly 2,000 racing pigeons, owned by pigeon racing devotees in Montreal, were shipped through the Canadian Pacific Express yards at Montreal recently to various points in Quebec and Ontario where they were released by the agents at the points to which they were shipped to fly back to their home roosts in Montreal Practice races of this nature have been carried on through the summer months.

Thomas Meighan arrived in Winnipeg recently and will remain prior to beginning work on his next picture, "The Canadian". The wheat fields of the Canadian West will be the background for this picture. The location men and other members of the troupe passed through Montreal earlier on their way to the west where they were joined by Thomas Meighan, and they are looking over the Calgary district for a suitable location.

On a good ear of corn one encounters no detour.

TO THE ELECTORS OF THE VEGREVILLE CONSTITUENCY

The campaign is now drawing to a close. Owing to the shortness of time and the size of the constituency, and to the conditions of travel, I have been unable to see even a small percentage of the electors. I have held meetings in the principal centres, but in many cases owing to the condition of the roads, the meetings were not largely attended. I therefore take this opportunity of again reminding you of the necessity of each and every elector going to the, not only his vote on election day, but his active support and influence up to that date.

I am appealing for your support on my personal record among you for the past 34 years. I do not believe that anyone in the constituency will deny the fact that I am by all means the best fitted to be your representative. I have had the experience firstly in farming so that I know the needs of the farmer, secondly by business so that I know how to carry out the business of the Government, the greatest business in the Dominion of Canada; and thirdly, in Parliament, so that I know how to carry on the work as your representative in legislation and law-making as well as the other branches of government.

As to my integrity I leave it to you to decide on my record among you in the Legislature of Alberta as your representative. I submit that these are questions which you should consider in electing a representative to the House of Commons of the Dominion, the highest position to which you are called upon to elect a man

As you all know I have been nominated by the Liberal party of this constituency. I submit that the Liberal party is deserving of much credit for the very favorable legislation which it has given to the people, especially of Western Canada. I need only mention in this regard the reduction in taxation from $62 per capita in 1921 to $31 per capita in 1925. I would also remind you of the reduction in freight rates on our grain from 38 1-2 cents per bushel to 15 cents per bushel. I might also mention the reduction in the public debt, the businesslike methods of management of the Canadian National Railways, the reduction in the various taxes such as Income Tax, Customs Duty, Stamps Tax on cheques, and the Penny postage, and many other similar economies for the benefit of the people of the Dominion as a whole.

I submit that the Liberal administrations, unsurpassed in the annals of Canadian history. I submit also that in that record the Liberal candidate deserves your entire support in this campaign. However, I submit that party is not the all important question to be considered by the electors. There are many questions of policy, there are many questions of principle, and there are many questions of the ideals of the people and of the candidate to be considered. I believe that my ideals in support of such questions as those of Old Age Pensions, the Soldiers' Re-establishment, Long Term rural credits, lower tariffs and lower freight rates on our produce, confer with the ideas of the majority of the electors of this riding. I also believe that my ideas on questions of principle such as rum-running, bootlegging, and dope smuggling conform also with those of the more serious minded people of this constituency, especially those here as I have the responsibility of a family.

LIBERAL CANDIDATE ADDRESSES LARGE CROWD

J. S. McCallum, the Liberal candidate in the approaching election, held a meeting in the Memorial hall on Thursday evening when he received an attentive hearing from the largest and most representative audience that has faced any political speaker here for a long time.

T. A. Walker was the first speaker, dealing briefly with the question of freight rates and its importance to the West.

Mr McCallum then spoke for about two hours and in a very convincing manner dealt with the issues before the electors in this campaign. The audience by a hearty round of applause gave evidence of appreciation of the speaker's interesting address.

Note Report of this meeting in this issue was made possible by delay in publication due to mechanical trouble. —Ed.

Farmers Suffer Enormous Loss

According to a bulletin recently issued by the Saskatchewan Department of Agriculture, weeds will cost the farmers of the Province more than thirty million dollars this year. In the decreased yield due to weeds, in the increased cost of harvesting and threshing their grain, in dockage and freight on weed - clogged grain at Fort William and Vancouver.

This year when conditions have been so favorable for the growth of grain, they have been equally favorable for the growth of weeds, and sections of Saskatchewan have many square miles of crops grown on some of the richest soil in the Province which have been so rubbed with mustard that hardly a blade of wheat could be seen. Wild oats have been worse than ever this year, scarcely think of steadily widening the area where it is a thorn in the side of the farmer, and stink weed is flourishing like the proverbial green bay tree.

If on a thirty million dollar loss for Saskatchewan alone, the losses for Manitoba and Alberta are added, the total loss, for the three Prairie Provinces will be between fifty and sixty million at least, easily constituting the heaviest charge levied on Western agriculture. Hail losses have been heavier than usual this year, but they do not begin to approach the losses sustained by farmers through weeds.

For a quarter of a century or more Western farmers have been waging a battle for lower freight rates. They have won notable victories in this regard, not the least of which was the obtaining in the Sec. Instances of the Crow's Nest Pass rates on grain and their restoration after they had been abrogated during the war. But the estimated savings to the farmers of the three Prairie Provinces through the Crow's Nest Pass Agreement, running as they do into millions of dollars annually, do not equal the losses sustained by the farmers of Saskatchewan alone through weeds.

A reduction in the Customs tariff on agricultural implements and machinery, or on any one of the many articles necessary to the farmer, is hailed with pleasure as a great relief to the agricultural producer. The practical taking out of the Income Tax so far as farmers are concerned, the reduction of the postage rate from three cents to two, and other legislative enactments reducing the handicap of taxation, are rightly regarded as important factors in making farming and all industry more profitable. But these savings are small in comparison to the millions of dollars that would be lost in the pockets of Western farmers through a vigorous, persistent, successful fight all along the line against noxious weeds.

The whole country gets stirred up in an election campaign where tariff reduction policies are an issue. Farmers unite and organize to place candidates in the field pledged to tariff reductions, reduced freight rates, Rural Credits, and other measures calculated to advance their interests and prosperity. But all too many who wage battle for these lesser gains appear quite indifferent to the weed menace and its resultant heavy losses to themselves and the country at large. Many farmers who are enthusiastic, and organize and fight for those things which they can only obtain in co-operation with the other Provinces of Canada, yet display the most astounding apathy in dealing with a problem which is all their own, and the solution of which rests solely with themselves, working in co-operation with their next door neighbors.

The Saskatchewan Weed Bulletin just issued contains valuable information and guidance for farmers in dealing with their weed problem. It is written in clearly understandable, non-technical language. And every Saskatchewan farmer who has a weed problem on his hands should send to the Department of Agriculture, Regina, for a copy, of the Bulletin, while farmers in Manitoba and Alberta should likewise communicate with their Provincial Departments of Agriculture for similar literature.

The Saskatchewan Bulletin states that the greatest source of the weed trouble is found in dirty seed, and it has been proven that quite a large number of farmers who cultivate their soil carefully in destroy weed seeds already existing in the soil, are annually returning the same plant robbers to the soil through weed seeds contained in their seed grain, thus rendering all their toil and labor for naught, perpetuating the problem, and heaping up the loss.

Co-operation amongst Western farmers in accomplishing great things for them and for Canada, and co-operation in endeavoring to subdue any great evil or things in the years to come. Possibly in no one way can more be accomplished than by each individual farmer enlisting in the war on weeds, and waging it aggressively in season and out on his own land, and in co-operation with his neighbors and municipal officials throughout the whole district in which he resides.

Unlike other wars, which always end in losses for both victor and vanquished, a successful war on weeds means great gains and larger profits throughout; the years to come. Let's fight!

Subdivision of Rural Land Values

By C. W. Peterson

No public issue has been the victim of more platitudes than that of immigration on platforms and in press. In Canada there seems to be no intelligent public opinion on the question, and our economic groups are consequently hopelessly divided on the issue. Added population merely spells further unemployment in the labor groups, and increased taxation to the farmer. Hence, we frequently find our great rural organizations unfriendly and even officially antagonistic towards any effort to augment Canada's population.

Public Apathy

An intelligent study of the population question leaves one in no doubt that lasting agricultural prosperity is impossible without the steady, progressive colonization and development of our extensive vacant areas by real agricultural settlers. The realization of such a programme would, however, involve a constructive and forward-looking colonization effort of a magnitude as yet unattempted, could safely contemplate today. In view of the apathetic state of average Canadian public opinion on the subject. The supreme task confronting Canada at this moment, therefore, apparently is not to find some better own citizens of the wisdom of regarding the population question as the cornor stone of all public policies, which, indeed, it is.

Agricultural Unrest

We have for almost a decade been confronted with the demoralizing influence of steadily shrinking real values all through Canada. This was the outcome of a combination of circumstances, but the chief cause is due to the cessation of immigration, coupled with the modern spectacular drift to the cities. Land values today are real and vast, over a decade ago, and many farmers have thus seen their chief asset shrink to such an extent that their substantial gains have in some instances totally disappeared, representing the loss of the fruits of years of labor on the part of every member of the family.

The Agricultural Credit Structure

Land represents the principal borrowing money of the farmer. Any substantial value lie in the foundation of rural credit is practically all his farms. When land values become demoralized the whole agricultural credit structure is undermined. Credit of all sorts is curtailed and interest rates increased. When land values break down as an economic axiom, that is prosperous agriculture and a contented rural population are both things impossibilities with rounding and unstable land values. The decadence being either in hand upon the farmer of the progressive shrinkage of his chief capital asset, is bound to overwhelm the most unfortunate followers upon his state of mind and his outlook.

Restoring Agricultural Confidence

There is today a vast area of vacant lands on the market in the prairie section of Canada and improved farms are offered for sale in other provinces comparatively at bargain prices. The demand for such properties is shrinking, apparently with the drying up of the stimulating flow of immigration some years ago. The settlement of the provinces of Canada dates back as far as that of the Middle West of the United States. Yet land values in Iowa, Illinois and elsewhere are today and three times as great as in Eastern Canada. Why? The Canadian farmer should be keenly interested in overcoming a normal market for rural properties. A comparatively limited demand for land would quickly be reflected in strengthened values all round and the moral effect would be electrical. Urban business would automatically benefit through a restoration of agricultural confidence. Our farmers have, therefore, a vital interest in the adoption of vigorous and comprehensive policies by the various governments and railways designed to promote the actual colonization of vacant agricultural areas.

Important Part To Be Played By Canada Following The Rapid Increase In Population

The population of the world is increasing at the rate of 10,000 a day, according to an article by Prof. Edward Murray Hood, of Harvard University, published in a recent number of "Current History." Prof. Hood says that, taking the world over, there are on the average 250,000 births and 150,000 deaths in a day, making a net daily gain of 50,000. Prof. Hood places the present population of the world at 1,850 millions, and says it has many times doubled since the beginning of the nineteenth century.

Statistics are accumulated to show that as population in any country reaches a certain density the rate of increase falls off, until it becomes practically stationary. This has already happened in China, and has at some time about in India. Prof. Hood quotes authorities to show that the population of the United States will become stationary at about 200,000,000 and that this figure will be reached in the present century.

An important factor in the population development of the North American continent is Canada, which, it appears has even greater than that of the United States, and has at present about 8,000,000 inhabitants. Prof. Hood finds that population in Canada is increasing rapidly, the birth rate being more than double the death rate. The death rate for Canada is 11.7 per thousand compared with 11.9 in the United States, and the birth rate in Canada is 36.7 per thousand compared with 23.5 in the United States.

Prof. Hood's calculations do not include the effect of the recent large immigration. This has been a big factor in the United States in the past, and promises to be equally important in Canada in the near future. The constantly increasing demand for food, and Canada, with only one-fifth of its arable area as yet under cultivation, is destined to play a large part in supplying that demand.

Immigrants From Norway

Farm Laborers Will Come to Settle Vacant Lands

Investigation of the streams of immigrant farm labor from the United States to Saskatchewan and Alberta will be recommended by Arne Kildal secretary of the International League of Norwegian Farmers, who is due to arrive from Norway. Mr. Kildal, who is on his way back to Norway after a tour of investigation of possibilities for the settlement of his countrymen in Saskatchewan and Alberta, said the surplus population of Norway, especially country born labor, must find a market. He said that the enormous unsettled ground possibilities for immigration in western Canada was a live subject.

Representing the Government of Norway and Sweden, a delegation of practical Winnipeg recently is investigating conditions of land settlement, immigrants, price of land, conditions of employment, co-operative marketing of grain, and the Canadian system of money re-establishment. As a result of these investigations it is probable that there will be a settlement in Western Canada of 12,000 Norwegians per year in the future. The party is in charge of P. Myrvold, representative of the Canadian Pacific Railway at Oslo, Norway.

Canadian Pacific Express Company

Dominion Express Company Now No Longer Known By That Name

After forty-four years of operation during which it has grown up with the country and contributed in no small way to Canadian development the Dominion Express Company will no longer be known by that name. After September first that great transportation agency will be known as the Canadian Pacific Express Company. In all parts of Canada and the United States and throughout the civilized world signs on the windows of the many hundreds of branch offices will be changed, and then will be forged a still closer link with the great parent company whose railroad, steamships and hotels are known around the world.

To mark the change of name the company has issued an attractive little booklet giving a short history of its career and a synopsis of its present widespread activities. The Dominion Express Company was incorporated in 1873, but it was in 1882 that Mr Van Horne, then president of the C.P.R., took it over as an operating part of the Canadian Pacific Railway. M. G. A Kirkpatrick, later Sir George Kirkpatrick, LL.Gen. of Ontario, was its president, and Mr W. S Stout, a young but thoroughly experienced express man, was its first superintendent. Mr Stout is today president and has for many years guided its fortunes in that capacity.

For many years the Dominion Express has had a hard and uphill fight. They not only moved traffic, but helped create it by finding Canadian and foreign markets for Canadian products, and by scientific rate making encouraged the farmer, fruit grower and others whose markets were far away. The growth of the company over those many years is an interesting story and it is an important chapter in the commercial history of this country and its present position where it is daily engaged with hundreds of millions of dollars in goods and treasure by the public, business institutions and the government, is a matter for justifiable pride. The booklet is handsomely illustrated and is being widely distributed wherever the company operates.

Miller's Worm Powders prove their value. They do not cause any violent disturbance in the stomach, nor pain or griping, but do their work quietly and painlessly, so that the destruction of the worms is imperceptible. Yet they are thorough, and from the first dose there is improvement in the condition of the sufferer and a cessation of manifestations of internal trouble.

Explanations and Comments

I. The Call For Contributions For the Sanctuary, Ex. 35:4-20.—Moses assembled the people and addressed them, probably from a raised platform. He reminded them that it was God's desire to have a sanctuary where he might meet them and they might offer him their worship. He called for voluntary contributions of materials and labor for the sanctuary and its equipment and the vestments of the priests. There was one restriction: the giver of gifts must be "willing-hearted," and the laborer "wise-hearted." The people hastened and quickly went back to their tents.

"You might have wondered whether they would return, since so little had been said to touch their emotions and arouse their enthusiasm. How different this person to the methods in use today to extract money from reluctant hands!"

II. "An Old Subscription List," verses 21-29.—This heading in the heavy line which Dr. Alexander Maclaren gives to his exposition of this chapter. The people began according as he hath prospered in his heart," wrote Paul to the Corinthians; "not grudgingly or of necessity, for God loveth a cheerful giver." The men and women on this old subscription list fulfilled that injunction of Paul's. They came—a great crowd of willing givers, "every one whose heart stirred him up, and every one whom his spirit made willing," laden with gifts needed for the building of God's house and for "the holy garments," the garments consecrated for use in the sanctuary.

New Ones Issued Carry Severe Penalty For Violators

New commandments have been issued by Ibn Saud, leader of the strict Wahabi sect of Moslems and now master of a big Arab kingdom which includes the holy cities of Mecca and Medina. Attendance at the prayer services on Friday the Moslem Sabbath is made compulsory, while violators of the temperance laws are liable to six months' imprisonment. Severe punishment is to be meted out to distillers or vendors of strong drink, a second offence being punishable by deportation. The use of tobacco is also an offence punishable with imprisonment, and anti-religious agitators will be severely dealt with. Public security officials have been given full authority to enforce these regulations.

"There!" the woman on the rock boss, exulted. "You are delightful again, as you always are when you're trapped. Now I shall nip my girlish, if I may, while you attend to your crew examination. See! I am rareless of my wits; I expose them to the same hazard."

"Native becomes you, wonderfully," he said regarding her as with a deep sense of appreciation. "Something a master will have to parody the Madonna with you as his model, and give the world a new masterpiece. Your hair are put right for him now. Presently I shall drink a toast especially to everything that hasn't Mediterranean about you, since I could do that better than paint. Meanwhile, I admit to being curious. Mind you, only curious. What are you going to do with—or to—the girl?"

"In you think an impulse at last night, born of my own thrill at the riot that must be going on in her mind, must necessarily be so definite as that? With some hidden motive behind it?"

He did not at once reply. His thoughts seemed to have wandered off for a moment. When he spoke again his tone had lost all veneer of banter. "I do not believe you ever surrendered to an impulse in your life," he said, his words uniformly measured. "There can be nothing to common between you and this girl who has no other interest than her own natural vividness. She's more likely to be a thorn than a foil. So you have a motive as clearly defined as the pretense you are trying to bring into your eyes."

"Which I shall hide to her silvery laugh and would have interrupted him, but he went on, calmly; "Brandon is to be your victim. And I am convinced that he knows where her money came from and why, despite his wife's protests. And I am convinced, too, that you do not, yet can do. Hideously spin a web for the girl and play spider to the fly. Why?"

"Jove," young Cornelier exclaimed, "what a pretty girl!"

CHAPTER XIV.

Across the Threshold

If he thought to provoke the woman he cross examined, Kenilworth was disappointed. She studied him coolly. "I'm not so sure my whimsy studied your wife after all," she observed. "You argue beautifully. I shall give you your triumph. I have you know. I fancy you'll not long displace it. As for the girl herself, I shall probably like her tremendously, though that is of no importance. And it doesn't follow, necessarily, that my motive flouse evil to her. That will be up to her."

"Which ought to be quite a bit put up to her, I should imagine," Kenilworth agreed. "You simply give her an added problem. How does Brandon associate in your plotting?"

"Now, Reddy, I didn't guarantee to go into details. There aren't any, yet. You may be unperturbed, however. Brandon wanted me to ask her to come to tea. He doesn't know yet. You may be unperturbed, however, until you discover for yourself. Now then, I'm going to escort my legs and come out of my female Hindu garden pose. It's becoming uncomfortable. So I shall be pondering evil no longer. You observe I do not ask you what your intentions are toward my ward, as I should, but that is because I'll see for myself. I know your procedure perfectly."

He gave her his hand and helped her to her feet. "I have a sense of being completely baffled," he remarked, ruefully. "I learn only what I already know, and nothing more, except—"; suddenly his tone altered. "Except that you would torture every living thing and wreck every ranie that was ever built in the air if Brandon would hold out his hand to you."

"That" she retorted to the high ball. Perhaps I had better change my brand of French alley ale." But when Kenilworth had gone Yvonne dropped into the nearest chair. Had he returned and studied her, at any time during the last half hour, he would have concluded that there could be no doubt about it this time she was deceived.

It was late in the afternoon when Walker stood behind his mistress who was serving tea to a small company of men and women around the same stone table, in the sister garden, on which Kenilworth had perch himself earlier in the day. The mademoiselle who is reported has arrived," the butler murmured.

Yvonne rose at once. "I shall be back in time for a cigaret at least," she added to her cronies. She crossed to her drawing room, from the garage into the winter garden, just in time to see Teddy Dorminster, the one who was born a lord but could persuade no one to consider the ordered care seriously, come to a standstill before the slight, girlish figure that stood directly in his path from the reception hall, where he had just turned over his coat and stick to Walker. Across the room in the garden, Teddy Dorminster kept none of his secrets or his enthusiasms to himself. He brought a new store of bad on his daily droppings in at Yvonne's—her's was, in a measure, a continuously open house where she was in town.

The newcomer stared into Joanna's face frankly. He fumbled in his pocket and produced his eye glass, which he carefully screwed into his eye. Then he servo raised her again, afterly obstinate to her equally amazed stare in turn.

"Jove!" young Dorminster exclaimed. "What a pretty girl!" Yvonne was in time to hear Joanna's reply:

"How in the world did you ever happen?"

CHAPTER XV.

Across the Threshold

Both Joanna and Lord Teddy were startled by Yvonne's peal of laughter. "Now, Teddy, you know what everybody thinks when you're around," she declared. "You must be the silliest ass who ever came to." Turning to Joanna, she informed her: "He's not always so bad-mannered, you know. I fancy you'll agree presently. I'll present him as Lord Dorminster, but you must just call him Teddy—it fits him better." To the man, she struck Joanna as something of an overgrown youth, she added: "This is my new partner, one I'm going to be very fond of—Miss Manners. After awhile you'll be calling her Joanna."

Lord Teddy was all embarrassment and contrition. "Oh, I say!" he fumbled, "I thought it would be someone else—oh—you were having to sing or dance, or do something like that, you know tomorrow night perhaps! Didn't know she was a friend. "Sorry, truly!"

even a Teddy, sort of one, scrambled desperately for what she would have termed, concisely, the right somehow. She was disturbed, too, by that apology for supposing her as one who had come to sing, or to dance, "or something like that. It implied something she didn't know what, but something about her that was not as it should be. Yvonne shot a frown at Dorminster and went to her rescue.

"Run along now, Teddy," she commanded. "There's tea or alcohol, whichever you prefer, in the garden. You know everybody in there. Miss Manners will remember, anyhow, that you were perfectly in earnest despite your rudeness."

He wanted to add something to his apology of straighten it out, but Yvonne bustled him off unceremoniously. To Joanna she said

"He's a dear, is Teddy. He follows me around the world. He says wherever I am some husband's wife needs consolation and it's his duty to be on hand. And he does it perfectly, I'm sure. Richard's perfectly sincere about it."

Laws For Pedestrians

Punishment For Vienna Citizens Who Violate New Rules

Under modifications in the municipal laws of Vienna, persons who talk, whistle or sing too loudly in the streets may be fined 20 cents. For repeated offences jail terms are prescribed.

If a person is detected reading a newspaper or book while walking along the street, thereby "impeding pedestrian traffic," he may be subjected to a similar fine.

Stopping a friend in the middle of a roadway, carrying of packages under arms and using bad or unseemly language are among other punishable offences.

Little Helps For This Week

Be still, and know that I am God.—Ps. xlvi. 10.

Fret not, poor soul, while doubt and fear

Disturb thy breast;
The pilot sees the way who can see
How calm thy wild regret must be,
Say, trust and rest.

Strive not, nor struggle; thy poor might

Can never avail
The meanest thing to serve thy will,
All power is His alone;
And trust, and rest.

—Adeline Anne Proctor.

Do you know what Luther said? "Suffer and be still, and tell no man thy sorrow; trust in God. His help will not fail thee." This is what Scripture calls keeping silence before God. To talk much of one's sorrows makes one weak; but to tell one's sorrows to Him who knows all, and can help, makes one strong and calm.—Thomas.

A Child's Logic

Just at the time when Phoebe's auntie, who was expected on a visit, should arrive, a boy with a telegram did so instead.

The telegram read: "Have missed train. Shall start at same time to-morrow."

"What a silly auntie he!" she presently observed.

"Why, darling?" queried the mother.

"Well, if she starts at the same time tomorrow she'll miss her train again."

The Old-Fashioned Grandmother

London Newspaper Finds There Is No Such Person Now

A one-day's search by a London newspaper for the old-fashioned grandmother who is usually pictured as sitting quietly darning socks by the fireside, failed completely. The inquirer compiled a list of seven grandmothers, and then set out to find out what they were doing.

No. 1 was in Paris buying frocks.

No. 2 had recently acquired a two-seater automobile and had driven up into the Midlands to see her son's sons.

No. 3 had gone into the country to make a political speech in her son's constituency.

No. 4 had gone to a matinee.

No. 5 was out buying some new valves for the radio set.

No. 6 was out getting her hair shingled.

No. 7 had gone to a tea dansant at a big hotel.

KEEP CHILDREN WELL DURING HOT WEATHER

Every mother knows how fatal the hot summer months are to small children. Cholera infantum, diarrhoea, dysentery, colic and stomach troubles are rife at this time and often a previous little life is lost after only a few hours illness. The mother who keeps Baby's Own Tablets in the house feels safe. The occasional use of the Tablets prevent stomach and bowel troubles, or if trouble comes suddenly—as it generally does—the prompt relief they bring the baby safely through. They are sold by mothers using them or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

A man isn't necessarily worthless because his wife happens to be worth more than he is.

FORT SASKATCHEWAN DISTRICT SCHOOL FAIR

Apart from a shower which descended the clothing but not the order of the children the weather at the Fort Saskatchewan District school fair held last Thursday was reasonably fine. The shower delayed the sports but otherwise the programme was carried out as arranged.

The attendance was gratifying, but, as usual, there was a dearth of farmers. This non-attendance of the country population is not occasioned by lack of sympathy with the work of the School Fair association, but by reason of the necessity of cutting the grain while the opportunity exists. The farming element, we have learned from several conversations on the subject, heartily endorses the work and but for the fact the fair must be held at their busiest season, would be present in large numbers.

Judging of sewing, cooking and flowers was undertaken by Mrs. D. J. Christie and Mrs. J. Clements of Edmonton, and judges of livestock, vegetables, field crops, noxious weeds and bird houses were Mr. Fuller and Mr. Stevens of the department of agriculture, and Mr. Young, weed inspector. Mr. Lord and Mr. McLeod were judged the school work, assisted by Miss Inkster and Don Sutherland.

In the opinion of the judges the exhibits were not as numerous as last year, but with the exception of the vegetables, of a superior quality. The vegetables were affected by the disappointing growing conditions during the summer.

Rev. J. Hoffman had charge of the sports and handled all the events in his usual capable manner. Prizewinners are as follows:

40 yards dash, boys 7 and under—Joe Farley, Carl Buchanan, Orville Robinson, Earl Hoffman.

Girls ditto—Evelyn Cranston, Dorothy Oppelt, Cora Moodie, Iris Buchanan.

Full Steam Ahead

Within a few days of the writing of this article the electors of Canada will journey to the polls in order to select their representatives in a new House of Commons and thereby also determine the political complexion of the Government. Before this article appears in print the verdict of the ballots will have been rendered.

Whatever that verdict may be, and at the time of writing it is very decidedly in doubt, it is to be hoped that it will be sufficiently decisive one way or the other to give the successful party a fair working majority in the next Parliament. It is in the interests of Canada that stable government be re-established and unquestionably the great majority of the people wish it.

Economic conditions throughout the Dominion are very satisfactory at the present time, business is good and promises to be better, industry in all its branches is active, trade is rapidly expanding, and increased prosperity is everywhere apparent. What Canada now requires is not only maintain but to further advance those conditions, is a removal of the sex of doubt and indecision in government which has existed as a result of the stalemate in

Sleep is impossible, the sufferer becomes nervous and irritable. Usually, when the attack passes, is left in unnerving state. Mrs. Annie E. F. D. Kelly's Asthma Remedy is a wonderful remedial agent. It immediately relieves the restricted breathing which the disease can testify. It is sold by druggists everywhere.

Worms in children work havoc. Worms parasites attack the tender lining of the intestines and, if left to pursue their ravages undisturbed, will sicken and destroy the child as well, because those worms are of the most variety other than food upon the intestinal surfaces. Miller's Worm Powders will not only exterminate these worms, of whatever variety, but will serve to repair the injury they have done.

Lloyd George Says Few Helped Britain in Great War

Former Premier David Lloyd George, at the summer school of the Inter-Jewish Federation at Bangor, revealed that Dr. Chaim Weizmann, Zionist leader, helped to save the nation during the war by his discovery of an essential ingredient of high explosives.

"What I asked what honor I could recommend him for he replied: 'I want no honor, but I would like you to do something for my people,'" Lloyd George said.

Lloyd George paid a tribute to Jewish war services, saying that no class responded more readily to the call than the Jewish people in every country. He declared that few were true to the country in which they dwell and that it was a great mistake to imagine that a man which true international could not be national too.

Medical Secretary to Lager Mission Optimistic About New Treatment

Dr. Hadley C. Cochrane, who has not yet 30, has just returned to England after a 60,000 miles tour of the world's principal leper stations.

In his capacity as medical secretary to the Mission for Lepers, he has recently visited every centre in Burmah, India, Siam, Borneo and the Philippines.

For four months Dr. Cochrane lived among lepers at one of the stations, spending his time attending to them and investigating their cases. He is very optimistic about their future.

"If you can get them early on in their trouble," he said, "many patients can be treated as outpatients, and in those early cases there is a great deal of hope. Medical advancement in treatment of the disease has been considerable in the last six years. It is necessary to recognize the disease early, then with efficient treatment the overspreading of old cases, the scourge will be put under control.

Cases visiting realize that with these treatments the disease can be arrested there will be no difficulty in getting them to come forward to the stations. At the end of this month Dr. Cochrane will return to the mission field, with the help of right measures, he considerably re-

The Poisons We Love

Every healthy man, woman and child looks forward to the pleasure of appetizing breakfasts, tasty luncheon and delightful dinners, but how many without giving a thought to the time when such table delights will, for them, no longer hold attraction. If the reader will recall the many propper symptoms with which he was acquainted, who no longer continue to meet him at the breakfast table, he will not fail to be struck by the fact that among every one of such friends were fatally stricken when they should have been in the midst of their years. And if the actual cause of their decease be investigated, the fact that the cancer scourge laid them low should give the reader food for candidly personal self-examination.

The refined foods, rich sauces, highly concentrated vegetables and fruits, white sugar and white flour foods all of which the last three of health-giving potassium and other salts have been deprived, Mr. F. J. Shaw, Selkirk Road, P.E.I., has proved the value of Dr. Williams's Pink Pills in a severe case of indigestion and relates his experience for the benefit of other sufferers. He says:—"I suffered from indigestion for a number of years. My case was so bad that words fail to describe it. My appetite was gone, constipation was present, and my nerves were all on edge. I could not sleep well at night, and the world was a dark spot for me. I tried a number of remedies, but without any benefit. Finally Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were recommended, but I had no faith, after so many failures, I decided to try them. After taking them a few weeks I noticed a change for the better. Then I got three boxes more and found I had a genuine remedy. I continued the treatment, took moderate exercise, could take plain food without trouble as formerly, and proved that these pills make good blood, and that this good blood will restore the stomach and nerves. Anyone suffering from stomach or nerve troubles will make no mistake in giving Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a fair trial."

ARE YOU AFRAID OF YOUR MEALS?

Proof That the Stomach is Weak and Needs Toning Up

Are you one of the many sufferers who dread meal time? Hungry, and then afraid to eat, because of the pain, and discomforts that follow? When the stomach is out of order the whole system suffers, and as the blood becomes thin and watery it becomes increasingly difficult to digest the digestive disorder. There is no taste for the stomach that is not a taste for the whole body, thus a blood-building tonic such as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, not only relieves indigestion, but adds to the general health. Canadian Grown Seeds Enjoy A High Reputation Under The Canadian Standardization System

"Northern-grown" seeds are much sheltered by farmers and gardeners who do not live in the north. The term has come to imply unimpaired vigor, early maturity and productiveness. Canadian-grown seeds enjoy a high reputation because of these qualities and because there has been established in Canada a system for standardizing seeds under grade names designated in the Seeds Act. The Inspectors of the seed branch of the department of agriculture inspect seed crops for purity of variety at a rest of fifteen acres per acre in the harvest. The threshed and cleaned seed is again inspected by the same officers, and if of superior quality is graded, registered, and sealed in the sack for commerce.

The quantity of registered seeds has been low, but the grades of improved seed grain produced in Canada is much in excess of domestic requirements, and large quantities of seed oats, barley, wheat and rye are offered for export under seed inspection certificates. By means of barley or hemp is also available in the domestic market the cereal crops in Canada during the past fifteen years have become graded by improved with fewer varieties and, the general use of seed that is true to a desirable variety.

While grass grown in Canada runs into the world's prices for that commodity The rich, moist, clay loam soils of Canada produces alsike seed of a quality unequalled by any other place in the world. The world's greatest, cleanest and alsike seed production is probably Victoria county in the province of Canada.

Under the seed branch service of field crop inspection, a Health seed production has increased in twenty-five years from nothing to three thousand bushels annually. Our exports from last year's alsike seed crop amounted to approximately one million bushels. Ontario Variegated and the Alberta Grimm varieties of alfalfa seed are sought after in large quantities because of their growing winter hardiness and superior quality for forage crop purposes.

Grass seed production includes many kinds: Timothy, western rye grass, brome grass, and in recent years, that of awnless brome grass, to-day. Twenty-five thousand pounds of seed of the latter grass was produced in 1925 from the Saskatchewan Experimental Farm from imported seed crops, and it is anticipated that this amount may be increased this year to fifty thousand pounds. Seed of No. 1 grade will yield approximately a dollar per pound. The No. 2 grade and other inferior qualities equal or superior to the imported stocks of the same species will be sold in competition with them at prices commensurate with the quality.

From the bromo grass seed crop five hundred pounds of seed of the superior was secured in the seed fields and a seed crop secured from the planting of one-fourth of a pound of seed. Experiments on the basis of an insertion worthiness, as distinguish ed from a type sample certificate, would seem to be highly satisfactory to seed merchants.

Thus far the greater part of Canadian requirements of field root and garden vegetable seeds have been imported. Fifteen years ago a start was made by the seed branch to encourage the home production of these seeds. The work on such crops was attended with success but was discouraged during the war. About thirty-five farmers and gardeners who have made a specialty of growing seed of one or more kinds of these crops have continued throughout, and during the last few years these have steadily increased in number. The province of Ontario offers numerous local climates, and under ideal soil and moisture conditions the best quality of field root and garden seeds in the world may be economically produced in quantity for commerce.

The development of this industry will necessarily continue to be slow because it requires many years of special training on the part of the seed grower. Horticultural plant breeders at the various experimental stations in Canada have undertaken to provide

Export As Big Crop As Last Year

Returns Would Indicate Above Average Crop For Western Canada

In the latest crop report, issued by the Manitoba Free Press, based on information received from over 300 correspondents throughout the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta it states that "taking into consideration the increased acreage in the western provinces, the outlook would appear to be for a yield as big as last year."

The question asked the correspondents included one as to the estimated yield, and counting on the answers to this question, the report says: "We believe these will put aside the idea of a poor crop in Canada this year." Last year's wheat crop in Canada totalled 411,871,700 bushels from 31,078,172 acres of which 262,9.0,000 bushels were grown in the three prairie provinces—Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. The average yield of wheat for the Dominion in 1925 was 13.7 bushels per acre.

The total production of oats in Canada last year was 313,384,000 bushels from 10,... acres, with an average yield of 31 bushels to the acre. Barley yielded 112,660,500 bushels from 4,913,... acres, an average of 27.7 bushels per acre.

Last year's wheat yield was the second largest on record in Canada, the record being the total being 474,... bushels in 1923. Other high yields were 399,784,000 bushels in 1922, 474,... bushels in 1921 and 393,... 442,000 bushels in 1915.

Discoveries By Plant Wizards

Important Results Obtained By Experiments in Plant Breeding

Since Dr Charles Saunders originated Marquis wheat, which for 15 years has won the world's wheat prize at the International Show at Chicago and is the most popular spring wheat among Canadian farmers, several other important discoveries in agriculture and horticulture have been made by the plant breeding experimentalists at the 27 Canadian Government experimental farms. The discovery of Marquis wheat, which is regarded as one of the most notable in agriculture, was made at the Central Farm at Ottawa.

Ripening in the same farm that J. P. Newman, Canadian Government cerealist, originated Garnet wheat, a variety of spring wheat that matures from seven to ten days earlier than Marquis, stands dry weather and rust better, is somewhat better in quality, and some from the danger of rust than any other wheat and because of its earlier ripening advantages will extend the wheat growing area of Canada 100 miles further northward and open up for wheat growing an area of over 200,000,000 acres.

Important work in plant breeding, in fruits, vegetables and flowers is now being carried on in connection with 200 varieties of apples have been originated at these experimental farms Most of the old varieties grown in North America originated in Britain or Europe, but many were proved unsatisfactory in the colder provinces, and in order to obtain hardier varieties the best Russian apples were crossed with well-known American varieties, but the quality was poor. At one of the experimental farms in Quebec 76 different strains of tomatoes are being tested out.

The outdoor rose of highest excellence, the Agnes, according to the American Rose Society, is also another product of the Canadian Government Farm at Ottawa. This rose was recently awarded the Walter Van Fleet medal, the most coveted award of the A.R.S.

In addition to experimental work the experimental farm system is concerned with the control of fungous and other plant diseases, and laboratory tests have been established at various points with this end in view.

Lethbridge Irrigation Trust

Crop This Year is Expected To Be Very Large

The Lethbridge Northern Irrigation Trust, opened for settlement a couple of years back, is, according to the Lethbridge Herald report, proving prosperous to the farmers operating there in 1925 the total production of the tract was valued at more than $600,000. This year it is expected to reach $2,000,000. New towns are growing up following the extension of the railway and fine homes are being built.

If a man amounts to anything in a small town he soon begins to think that he would amount to more in a large town.

College Students With Harvesting Outfits

Here is a group of over 40 husky lads from the Wye Agricultural College, Kent, England, and from Oxford University, photographed at the Canadian Pacific Railway station at Wilkie, where they arrived from England recently to do harvesting in the prairie provinces. The boys have been placed by the Women's British Immigration League, one of whose representatives are here photographed with the group. The young men came from all parts of the Mother Country, and are members of prominent families there. The object of such a group is only another indication of the type of men who are scattered throughout the west on harvesting duty. Besides affording them the opportunity of building up physically, these young men realize that in no better way could they become conversant with agricultural conditions in the Canadian west. They will return to their school in England at the end of October.

Reward Wheat

New Variety of Wheat Being Tested Out At Ottawa

A new hard spring wheat which gives promise of being, even better than either Marquis or Garnet, is being tested at the Canadian Government experimental farm at Ottawa.

The name of this new variety, it was announced in "Reward" which, according to tests made in recent years and are still being carried on, will ripen two days earlier than Marquis it is also believed "Reward" will have equally as good milling qualities and will give even heavier yields, because of the heavier weight Meanwhile bushels of "Reward" which have been grown in Ottawa weigh as high as 66 pounds.

Cerealists believe that if successive tests demonstrate up as well as those of recent years have done, the chief obstacles, now evidently offered the onward movement of American Department of commerce officials were inclined to believe, they said, that the troubles experienced by American tourists in France have not discouraged other travelers from plans to take their vacations abroad

It was pointed out that whereas England in 1925 paid only $117,000,000 in principal and interest on its debts to the United States, American tourists that year spent there at least $140,000,000, according to figures prepared at the department of commerce

The expenditures of Americans tourists to Canada as reported from official and semi-official sources show of roughly a 10,000,000 increase over 1924 Approximately 2,000,000 tourist cars carrying 5,000,000 people entered Canada from the United States in 1925 These tourists probably spent $165,000,000 in addition to $45,000,000 estimated to have been spent by Americans motoring through by rail and steamer.

"The total spent by American tourists in Canada, Europe and elsewhere comes to $630,000,000 To this may be added $30,000,000 for expenditures of Canadian residents abroad more or less permanently."

Wonders Of Plant Life

Believes Plants Have Their Own Hours of Sleep

Plants are said to have their vices, vanities and regular hours of sleep, but some possess a stealth sense as well, according to Sir Jagadis Bose, one of Britain's greatest scientists and authorities on plant life

The Indian scientist has devoted his entire species to a mysterious force which permits them to detect minute changes in the intensity of light, and which may account for the human eye

The mimosa plant responds to life in a peculiar way. A single ground is between 1 and 2 inches in and consists of about 20 leaves. Touching about one second will cause the leaves to close and the stem to droop.

Sir Jagadis has perfected a new wireless photo of apparatus which gives plants a chance to demonstrate a questioning shock every hour or in day and night and records the answers

Members of Hopi Tribe Stage Annual Dance For Rain

Washes that seemed but harmless sand depressions in the desert, as the dryness of visitors hastened toward the weird ceremonial of the Hopi Indians' snake dance at Flagstaff, Ariz. soon became raging torrents of muddy water within two hours after this year's prayers to the gods for rain were rendered.

The dance comes annually after eight days of preparation

Last year when Indians followed the dance and several motor cars were washed

WORLD HAPPENINGS BRIEFLY TOLD

Official statistics show that 3,371 persons have already been killed this year in 86 United States cities on the result of motor accidents.

After having been in Brazil for several weeks giving lectures and in other cities, Mme. Curie, ex-discoverer of radium, sailed for her home in Europe.

What was apparently a meteor startled the north mideland counties of England when a mysterious explosion was followed by a sudden blaze of light.

At their home in Ottawa, Right Hon. W. S. Fielding and Mrs. Fielding recently celebrated their golden wedding anniversary. A large number of congratulatory messages were received.

Mrs. Annie Clarke, aged 90, is receiving the plaudits of all Donegal. She completed the mowing, tying and stacking of an acre of oats, the bulk of it in six feet high, completing the task in a week.

Preparations are being made at Toronto's great rat and dog cemetery, wherein repose the bodies of more than 20,000 pets, for the annual ball and ceremony at which Pandelian prayers are said for their spirits.

United States' citizens settling in Canada in the last 12 years brought with them cash and effects to the value of $162,176,853, according to the department of immigration and colonization.

The government is now investigating the reindeer industry in Alaska, with the object of increasing this animal into the northern part of the Mackenzie district, which is the home of a considerable portion of Canadian Eskimo population.

Four hundred Mennonites are expected to reach the west before the new flies, according to Bishop David Toews, chairman of the Mennonite colonization board and land settlement board. Most of the newcomers will be placed on the land immediately on arrival.

A Famous Hilma

The originator of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery for the blood, as well as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for women, was Dr. R. V. Pierce, a practising physician in Buffalo, N.Y., who not only served in Buffalo, but also conducted The Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute there. It is not up his home record in the World's Dispensary, where they were originally prepared from roots, barks and herbs, and are now sold by druggists all over the U. S. and Canada.

For over half a century, Dr. Pierce's Discovery, for the blood, has been sold on its merits, and has a larger sale than any other medicine. It is a tonic in its effects on the stomach and digestive organs, and a blood purifier in that it gives the blood, liver and skin. It banishes pimples, eruptions, boils, salt rheum and other blood, stomach and liver troubles, from the common pimple to the worst case of scrofula. The "Dead Point" In Canadian Progress

By C. W. Peterson

The Great War and its aftermath of economic misery in Europe demonstrated the dire social effect of an population in highly developed communities. Nature, however, has a way of effectively compensating for such conditions, and we are now witnessing the operation of this corrective process in the rapidly falling birth rate of the most advanced countries of the world. It is, however, an open question whether this corrective population brings in its train greater economic evils than under-population in an undeveloped country of such enormous extent as Canada.

A young country of vast natural resources obviously has difficult problems of administration. Such resources lie dormant until the magic touch of man and capital render them available. And until they are made available and contribute to the national wealth they cannot be taken seriously as an asset. All this involves the opening up of the country, with the concomitant in terms of great expenditure on transportation facilities of various kinds, and providing such amenities as will attract the home-builder and capital investments and manufacturers will be consequently faced with perpetual demands on their credit and re-sources, all of which add to the burden of taxation. If this, in turn, becomes too high, it acts as a serious deterrent to capital and immigration.

New countries, therefore, normally gravitate "between the devil and the deep, blue sea," until they successfully overcome the "dead point" in the proportion of progress through reaching a population and general development sufficiently large to absorb the abnormal overhead inseparable from the earlier stages of pioneering con-ditions. Canada just now is definitely above in the doldrums of this difficult period, labor busily carrying the burden, public revenue adequate, and every sort of modern facility, to accommodate a population at least four or five millions greater than it is to-day. So the outstanding problem to Canadian public policy just now is how to encourage a greater agricultural population. Compared with this, all other issues are insignificant.

History has always been a depressible tendency on the part of Canada to follow blindly in the administrative footsteps of the United States. This was never more apparent than when, following under extreme sentimentalism, she adopted, under entirely different conditions from those existing in the United States, the Monroe doctrine, originated from any such necessity until her population exceeded a round hundred millions and she was on the verge of local organization of foodstuffs. We cannot possibly escape the conclusion that the United States is a great, prosperous nation, whose citizens enjoy a standard of living far above that of any other, except their Canada. In the eyes of almost the entire world this country really represents the modern Eldorado. All this has been accomplished largely through the "open door" policy. If we in Canada could attain the same degree of material success within a similar period, we would apparently have reason to be amply satisfied with ourselves. That we can accomplish this through immigration policies proceeding in the opposite direction to those that made the U. S. great is, however, open to serious doubt.

Experimental telephone lines between the capitals of Canada and connecting foreign cities have proved effective time-savers in operation of the trains, according to officials of Canadian railways.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

SEPTEMBER 12

OBEDIENCE TO LAW (TEMPERANCE LESSON)

Golden Text: Drink no wine nor strong drink, thou, nor thy sons with thee. Leviticus 10:9

Lesson: Leviticus 24.

Devotional Reading: Proverbs 23:29-35.

Explanations and Comments

Promises of Blessings to Those Who Obey the Law, verses 3-13. With these verses compare Ps. 23:30-33 and Is. 28:1-13. Baron was right when he declared that "Prosperity is the blessing of the Old Testament." If Israel is faithful, if she keeps the law, she is here promised the blessing of fertile land—the products of the ground, the fruit and the grain shall be hers.

"A truly modern mind scorns the idea that the fertility of the soil can be affected by immorality. Yet there is the whole of Mesopotamia to show that misgovernment can make a garden into a desert. Where towns and populations once covered the country with fruitful gardens—and his-torian cities there are now in the land of the Tigris and Euphrates a few handfuls of people, and all the fertility of the country has disappeared. Irrigation channels which made all this live have been gradually filled with drifting sand, and one of the most populous and fertile countries of the world has become a desert.

"In Palestine the same thing may be seen. Under Turkish domination the character of the soil changed, in many places, where in ancient days the hills were terraced to the top, the sweeping rains have had their way and the very soil has been carried off, leaving only rocks to glitter in the pitiless sun" (Andrew Harper).

The Oil of the People.—Many oils have come and gone, but Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil continues to maintain its position and increase its sphere of usefulness each year. Its sterling qualities have brought it to the front, and kept it there, and it can truly be called the oil of the people. Thousands have benefited by it and would see no other preparation.

Growth of Wheat Pool

The capacity of pool terminals in 1924 was 870,000 bushels; in 1925, 2,370,000 bushels; and today 17,650,000 bushels—not including leased terminal space on the Pacific coast. For the week ending August 31st, 500 farmers in Saskatchewan decided to pool their wheat and signed up 76,157 acres. In addition, 125 new contracts and contracts were received, covering 9,612 acres.

BRITISH MARINES ARE KILLED BY CHINESE TROOPS

Shanghai.—Three British naval officers and four seamen were killed and two officers and thirteen seamen wounded by Chinese troops of Wu Pei Fu's northern armies at Wanshien on Czechuan province, 1,250 miles above the Yangtze River. The British gunboat Cochaher rejoined the fire, doing considerable damage to Wanshien, a city of 150,000. How many Chinese were killed or wounded is not known.

The conflict was begun when a British naval party of forty men on a river boat attempted to release two British steamers, the Wanshien and Wantung, seized by the Chinese in reprisal for the alleged drowning of fifty-six Chinese soldiers August 23, when the British steamer Wanhsi, in attempting to escape from Chinese capture, upset and sank.

The British killed were: Commander F. P. Harley and Lieut A. H. Kingsley, of the gunboat Dispatch; Lieut. C. F. Ridge of the gunboat Cockchafer and Seamen Parmiter, Hasham, Marrott and Partow.

The Chinese troops were commanded by General Yang Sen, an adherent of Wu Pei Fu, war lord of the central provinces, who was at Hankow, hundreds of miles distant, preparing himself against Cantonese forces. Yang's men had seized the British steamers and refused requests that they threatened to fire upon the officers of the gunboat Cockchafer.

The British retired but the next day, September 4, the small river steamer Kiawu, with forty men of various British gunboats aboard, succeeded in rescuing the officers of the steamer Wanhsien before the Chinese fired on the hulks of the river steamer.

The British party, under fire, attempted to approach the steamer Wantung but twenty-two of the forty men of the British party were killed or wounded. They stood by, however, with their unprovisioned wireless hoping for a peaceful settlement of things overboard and rescued all of them, from the water except Chief Engineer Johnson, who was wounded or drowned.

Would Take Drastic Action If Necessary

British Government Is Ready To Assist Mine Workers

London.—The decision of the mine-owners to refer to the various districts the question whether the executive shall be given power to negotiate with the miners for a national agreement is a result of Churchill's threat that the government having given a guarantee of fair play in the miners, would, if necessary, take drastic action against the owners if they persisted in their die-hard attitude.

The official report of the proceedings of the conference, as issued by the government, was carefully edited for public consumption, but it is understood that Churchill during the meeting addressed himself with force and emphasis and told the owners that it was impossible for the government to allow more stoppages, even on their part to prevent a settlement if the miners were willing to make reasonable concessions as it seems they are prepared to do.

Working On Bay Line

First Train Into Kettle Rapids Expected About Sept. 20

Regina.—The Hudson's Bay Railway, according to information received here by the On-to-the-Bay Association, is being pushed on. Mayor Burr, of Le Pas, states in a letter to the association that bridges are completed at Livingstone and Athabaska, and the first train into Kettle Rapids, which is the present end of the steel, 92 miles from the bay, is expected toward September 20.

Canadians Serve On League Committees

Representatives Have Been Appointed On Six At Geneva

Geneva.—Canada secured representation on all the committees of the League of Nations assembly.

Sir George E. Foster serves on the first committee, which deals with legal and constitutional questions.

Sir George is also a member of the ninth committee, along with Jr. A. Riddell, personal representative of Canada at Geneva. The sixth committee deals with political questions.

Mr. Lapointe is one influential address said that the traditions and sentiment keep Canada a part of the British Empire, but that as time goes on, he pleaded, what Canadians should most develop an individuality. It was not necessary, urged Mr. Lapointe, that Canadian institutions should be slavishly imitations of either British or American. In a number of ways Canadians have already shown ways ably to develop their own institutions.

Interchange of speakers and visits of club members have been instituted, said Mr. Cowan, as the policy is considered effective in discouraging racial and territorial jealousies.

Too much is being said, Mr. Cowan went on, quoting the remark of a recent writer, of east and west, of Ontario and Quebec and not enough to being heard of Canada.

It was announced that preparations are being made for an adequate celebration next year of the sixtieth anniversary of Confederation through the Dominion. There will be a celebration in the capital, said Mr. Cowan, and also throughout the provinces and the Canadian Clubs will be urged to take definite steps in that connection.

Report Is Encouraging

Selected Immigrants Making Good Says Overseas Representative

Winnipeg.—Under the selective plan of immigration, the families being brought to Canada from Great Britain are proving themselves willing farmers, and are making good, according to Miss Dilys Jones, overseas representative of the British settlement service.

In connection with the activities of the service in Great Britain, Mr. Wilkins stated that lack of interest and lack of money were the two great difficulties to be met, as was evidenced by those needing to attract immigration of a desirable character to Canada. He considered that the former problem would be met gradually as those who have immigrated made good, but that the money problem is one of economics which can only be adjusted by some form of legislation for the betterment of conditions that is not apparent at the present moment.

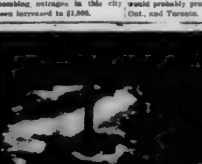
Drumcollogher, County Limerick, Ireland.—The first message ever exchanged in the fire which swept a flimsy wooden structure where a moving picture was being shown, and which buried in the burning ruins



Belfast, Ireland.—For the first time in history a message of sympathy has passed between the two Irish Governments.

Finance Minister Hugh Pollock, acting in the absence of Premier Craig, telegraphed President Cosgrave, of the Free State executive council, expressing Ulster's profound sympathy with the survivors in the cinema tragedy at Drumcollogher.

A Handsome Bequest

Lady Strathcona Contributes Last Montreal Hospital $121,500

Edinburgh, Scotland.—The will of the late Baroness Strathcona, who died on August 18 last, which was filed at Register House here, is dated November 17, 1925, and includes, among other public bequests one of $25,000 (about $121,500) to the Royal Victoria Hospital, Montreal.

Baroness Strathcona was a daughter of Lord Strathcona, a former high commissioner for Canada in London, and succeeded to the title upon the death of her father in 1914. She was married in 1886 to Dr. Robert Jared Hiles Howard, of Montreal, who predeceased her in 1923.

Trying To Cap Volcano

Managua, Nicaragua.—German engineers are engaged in the unique task of trying to put a cap on a volcano, Momotza, which is near the town of that name. They seek to close the crater so that its poisonous gases will not escape and damage the crops.

WOULD DEVELOP A DISTINCTIVE CANADIAN SPIRIT

Ottawa.—Canadian club members should do their part to develop a distinctive Canadian spirit, urged H. G. Cowan of Ottawa president of the delegation of Canadian clubs in addressing the delegates on the opening session here of the 17th annual meeting of the association.

Mr. Cowan in his presidential address said that the traditions and sentiment keep Canada a part of the British Empire, but that as time goes on, he pleaded, what Canadians should most develop an individuality. It was not necessary, urged Mr. Cowan, that Canadian institutions should be slavishly imitations of either British or American. In a number of ways Canadians have already shown ways ably to develop their own institutions.

Interchange of speakers and visits of club members have been instituted, said Mr. Cowan, as the policy is considered effective in discouraging racial and territorial jealousies.

Too much is being said, Mr. Cowan went on, quoting the remark of a recent writer, of east and west, of Ontario and Quebec and not enough to being heard of Canada.

There will be a celebration in the capital, said Mr. Cowan, and also throughout the provinces and the Canadian Clubs will be urged to take definite steps in that connection.

Canada Not A Candidate

Will Not Ask For Seat On League Council Says Sir George Foster

Paris.—The Paris correspondent of Excelsior, a daily paper of Paris, states that some of the British South Africa delegates have left for London to report on the league council, but he adds that Sir Austen Chamberlain, British foreign secretary, is not in favor of their departure, the correspondent says, are not in favor of the proposal.

Sir George E. Foster, in reply to a query at Geneva, said that Canada was not a candidate for one of the nine seats on the non-permanent council of the council.

Edmonton, Alta.—Rewards for the discovery and conviction of the person or persons responsible for the recent bombing outrages in the city have been increased to $1,000.

Oppose Wage Increase

Railway Companies Present Their Case in Wage Dispute

Montreal.—Maintaining that the present cost of living and the rates of pay now in existence as they affect conductors, trainmen and yardmen on the C.N. and C.P.R. do not justify an increase in wages, representatives of both railways presented their case to Mr. Justice Hugh T. Kelly, of Toronto, and his two colleagues on the board of arbitration and conciliation now sitting to inquire into and if necessary settle the wage dispute between employees of the two railways and their employers.

The railways point out that the existing rates were re-established by a board of conciliation in 1921 and that since that time the railways have suffered substantial reductions in passenger and freight rates and the cost of living has also decreased somewhat. The existing wage scale, they point out further, is the outgrowth of conditions developed during and subsequent to the war.

With regard to the present appli cants who, the railways claim, are among the highest paid classes of railway employees in the Canadian service, the joint statement of the companies points out that the application is identical in all respects with those already submitted to and declined by the United States roads.

Trouble In Spain

Unrest Is Spreading That Revolt Is Only Subdivided

London.—Unconfirmed dispatches from Spanish correspondents of some of the London morning papers have sent the trouble in Spain rather as a limited than abdicated than definitely overcome by authority.

A dispatch to the Daily Express from Barcelona reports that the army in Spain has been split in two, that there have been mutinies throughout the country and that the navy is exhibiting unrest.

Hundreds of apprehensive Spaniards are said to be flowing into France to insure their capital there.

Continue Customs Probe

Inquiries in Maritimes Finished and May Be Resumed in Vancouver

Montreal.—The royal commission investigating the administration of the customs department has now finished its inquiries in the Maritime province and will probably proceed to the business of next month to Vancouver, it was stated by H. L. Calder, K.C., counsel for the royal commission.

After Vancouver the commission would probably proceed to Windsor, Ont., and Toronto.

Isle Dances to the Waterfall

The wonderful setting of the little waterfall known as the Giants Steps, Paradise Valley, near Lake Louise, apparently inspired this nature-dancer with the spirit of life, and with the song of the water and the soft whirling of the lord-like atmosphere in the blue sky reside. She was photographed while dancing to the music of her soul.

Miss Banks is from Portland, Oregon where she is a pupil of Denishawn. She is spending a few weeks at the Canadian Pacific Railway hotel, the Chateau Lake Louise, from where early every morning she saddles a pony and rides to those hills where she can dance undisturbed, with only the blue sky and wild-eyed birds to see her and marvel at the rhythm of her movement.

GERMANY NOW IS A MEMBER OF THE LEAGUE

Geneva.—Germany, with impressive unanimity was elected a member of the League of Nations, and was thus bidden to enter the portals of Geneva institution of peace.

Without a discussion, save also Germany was designated "for all time" as president Nischitch put it, a member of the league council, and will thus sit as the equal of France, Great Britain, Italy and Japan.

Germany has accepted the terms of the league, for Sir Eric Drummond, secretary-general, received a telegram from Gustav Stresemann, the German foreign minister announcing the departure of a German delegation for Geneva, and by this acceptance remained to be submission to all the obligations and responsibilities under the covenant of the league, which was fashioned to outlaw war.

The assembly also ratified the recommendation for the admission of the number of the non-permanent members of the council from six to nine.

Another incident compelling international attention was India precipitating with no faltering voice for admission to membership of self-governing country, like Canada or Australia. Speaking first in perfect English, then repeating his own address into faultless French, the Maharajah of Kapurthalie, attired in the most resplendent garb, gave the lie to one of the awakening India, voicing the united and self-governing country like Canada or Australia.

He related India's progress in the social and hygienic fields and announced the delegates that India's 300,000,000 inhabitants were represented at Geneva by a delegation ready and eager to do its share in the betterment of the world.

Now that Germany's advent into the league is assured, statesmen are concentrating their attention on the question of the Reich's probable political activities at Geneva. Leading delegates remarked that that Germany will not act brusquely but will feel her way gradually toward a solution of outstanding problems, such as the restoration of her colonies and the evacuation of German soil.

Wrecked German Express

Two Unexpected Men Cooked Death Of Twenty-two Passengers

Berlin.—Two men, Otto Schlesslanger and Willy Weber arrested on suspicion of having caused the disaster to the Stettin-Berlin express train, which left the rails near Angermunde, on August 28, with the loss of twenty-two lives, have confessed to the crime.

The prisoners told the police they rose up the train with the intention of derailing the train, but when the wrecked express they were disappointed by the scarcity of the booty they had expected, abandoning the chance to plunder the coaches.

Plans Visit To Palestine

Prince of Wales Will Dedicate War Cemetery Next Year

Jerusalem.—The Prince of Wales will visit Palestine during April of next year, to dedicate the war cemetery on Mount Scopus, it is learned here.

General Sir George Macdonogh, Sir Frederic Kenyon and Lord Arthur Brown have inspected the war area on behalf of the British war graves commission.

Encourage British Emigration

London.—In a letter to the Morning Post, Lady Aberdeen suggests a plan to encourage British emigration to Canada, namely that brothers and sisters of all classes should go out together, claim their land grant, take service with neighboring farmers and learn farming and the customs of the country while watching over the education of their house and the preparation of their farm.

Ends State of War

Madrid.—King Alphonso signed a decree ending the state of war which was proclaimed throughout Spain in consequence of the insurrectionary movement in the artillery corps.

Ancient and Modern Meet in Rockies

Upper—Lastiae spring coach used to travel in Rockies, before the motor car age.
Lower Left—Modern eight-seeing cars of today.
Lower Right—Motor car on the Banff-Windermere Highway.

A the crossing shadows engage in lengthen across the Bow Valley in the Canadian Rockies on the last day of May, a diminutive time-worn, rust-laden two cylinder motor car of 1909 vintage chugged through the portals of the Rockies into Banff, there to join the throng of motor cars on Banff Avenue and unwittingly form a historic pageant indicating the developments in motor transportation during twenty-four years.

As it loomed at each times, the shades of the past arose to refresh the memories of old-timers and bring forth reminiscences indicating the progress made within recent years. And so with the shades of the past evoked by one of the first "horseless carriages," mingling with its glittering brothers of the modern age.

When the two glittered with newness the mountain ways knew not the odor of gasoline and the ordered roar of the exhaust, the old-timer shrewdly said: No fine pavements such as at present grace the streets of the famous mountain resort, smoothed out the irregularities. The dirt surface of Banff Avenue knew only pedestrians, saddle and pack horses and the iron tired wheels of the lumbering leather spring coach, used as the first sight-seeing vehicle in the Rockies.

In 1916, the Canadian Government opened the park gates to motor travel. In 1925, the motor sightseeing chugwonk, used to carry passengers by motor through the Rockies from the Banff Springs Hotel to the chain of other Canadian Pacific railway hotels and bungalow camps, numbered a hundred motor cars and sight seeing busses.

In 1926, the system carried 225,000 passengers a total of approximately a million miles in three of Canada's mountain national parks. Thirty-six thousand motor cars, carrying 150,000 holidayers, passed through the gates of the Kootenay and Banff National Parks during the same season.

On June 16, the new Lake Louise to Field Highway was opened to the motorist, uniting the three national parks by motor road and increasing the grand total of modern highway mountains to approximately 230 miles. But when the diminutive motor vehicle was the latest creation in automobiles, the mileage of roads in the mountains could be counted on the fingers of both hands.

The day following its arrival in Banff, J. Stacey, Keno, Washington, filled the gas tank of the 1909 car and set out over the Banff-Windermere Highway enroute for home. He is driving the car from Edmonton, Alberta, where it recently won the first prize in the light car class of the old car contest conducted by the Edmonton Journal.

In crossing the two summits on the highway, a modern car was called into action to aid the ancient vehicle over the top. By afternoon it reached the Bungalow Camp at the south end of Kootenay National Park, where the owner added it a day after covering ninety miles.

C.P.R. Opens Public Golf Course

The Canadian Pacific Railway hotels' golf course at Banff, which covers 100 acres of the mountain resort land, and the approximate length of which is 6,400 yards, was officially opened on June 26th.

There is a fine club house on the grounds which cost $12,000 and is equipped with all modern conveniences. Lockers are provided for the accommodation of golfers and there is a large lounge room with a huge open fireplace. Adjoining the lounge is a dining room which will seat 100 persons. The building is surrounded by a wide verandah on which tea will be served during the afternoons. The course is a par 72 and is a very interesting one. The fairways are wide and the greens are large and true. The course is open to the public and the charges are very moderate.

The Banff golf course is the highest golf course in the British Empire, with the exception of the new South Vancouver course, which is 1,000 feet above sea level. The Banff course is 4,500 feet above sea level. The Banff course is 4,500 feet above sea level. The Banff course is 4,500

THERE ARE OTHERS

If times are hard, and you feel blue,
Think of others worrying too;
Just because your trials are many,
Don't think the rest of us haven't any.
Life is made up of smiles and tears,
Joys and sorrows, mixed with fears;
And though to us it seems one-sided,
Trouble is pretty well divided.
If we could look in every heart
We'd find that each other had his part,
And those who travel Fortune's road,
Sometimes carry the biggest load.

Here and There

The Provincial Government of the Canadian Pacific Railway issued at Montreal for the seven months of 1926 ending July 31st, shows the large increase in the net profits of $4,031,701.52 over the net profits for the first seven months of 1925. The gross earnings were $71,828,207.11, as compared with $67,796,505.75 for the first seven months of 1925.

Unofficial estimates prepared by the authorities of the Department of Commerce, Washington, estimated that Americans visiting Canada this year would spend approximately $150,000,000. This estimate was thought to be very conservative and it still was more than likely that the amount would exceed the $200,000,000 mark.

Announcement was made recently of the appointment of F. N. Todd, former traffic manager, Canadian Pacific Railway, of the appointment of H. A. Wanklyn as Industrial Commissioner of the railway, with offices at Montreal. Mr. Wanklyn succeeds Graham W. Curtis, who has resigned to fill the position of general manager for Montreal Rail and Water Terminals, Limited.

Otto H. Kahn, chairman of the board of directors of the Metropolitan Opera Company, accompanied by a party of internationally known figures of New York, visited the National Exhibition at Toronto recently. Mr. Kahn, who is perhaps the best-known art and music patron of the United States, addressed a luncheon of the directors of the Exhibition on September 2nd, the day of the Exhibition, which was set aside as "Music Day."

It is understood that purchases in Canada of 3,000 railway cars may result from the visit of the engineering expert, Mr. Vanderpluldt, and the Transport Commissariat's representative, Mr. Barensky, who have been delegated by the Soviet Republic to investigate the possibility of securing this number in Canada. They have also been instructed to make a study of the organization of the Canadian railway shops and the repair methods in general.

Three wolf cubs were caught recently near Lake Doucette in Northern Ontario by Arthur Beauvais, well-known driver of the Chateau Frontenac dog team at Quebec, and will be trained by Beauvais for the harness. He is confident that by mingling the wolves with husky puppies for several months they will lose some of their wolfish nature and make an attractive addition to the Chateau team. Beauvais states that, while wolves have endurance, they have not the "heart" of a husky dog.

Two world's swimming records were established at the Crystal Gardens swimming pool at Victoria recently, when Ethel McGorry, of New York, swam 880 yards in 12 minutes and 41 seconds, or nine seconds better than the previous woman's record for this event; and when Agnes Geraghty, also of New York, dipped five and two-fifths seconds off the previous record for 220 yards, by completing the distance in three minutes and 13 and three-fifths seconds.

Celebrating the change in name of the historic Dominion Express Company to that of the Canadian Pacific Express Company, a street parade in Montreal was held September first, the day of the change in name, consisting of every description of Express vehicle, new and old. Sam Nightingale, a driver of 32 years' service, headed the parade seated in a wagon of 1860 vintage, and hauled by "Baba," a horse that has been in constant service with the Company for 19 years. Similar parades were held at Toronto, Winnipeg and Vancouver.

Golf may be a problem for the sport, but it certainly does wonders for the vocabulary.

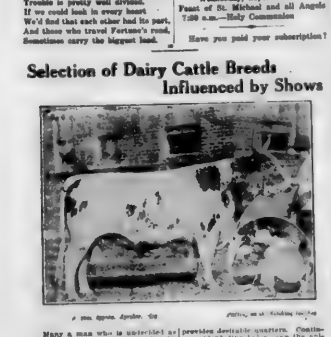
Selection of Dairy Cattle Breeds Influenced by Shows



Many a man who is interested in the breed of dairy cattle that he will select has been influenced in making his decision by the animals of a particular breed that he has seen in public.

The individual breeder accrues a great deal of advertising as the result of exhibiting at fairs, or in offering good animals at public sales, but it gives people a chance to see and know the kind of stock which a man is breeding and gives the cow testers business.

It is essential that special care and attention be given dairy animals that are in advance of the time that they are to be exhibited in public. Exhibiting or selling animals publicly in their every day clothes is poor advertising and puts them at a disadvantage in the competition in town, unless several weeks is put on a dairy animal in good show condition and what applies to fitting for show applies as well to fitting for sale.

It is important that the dairy animal to be exhibited or sold be in good flesh. A good covering of flesh adds to size, increases smoothness and indicates that the animal is healthy and in good health. Dairy animals being fitted need extra feed.

Stabling and blanketing are great aids in putting the hair and hide in condition. By stabling in summer, the animal is protected from the flies, sun which makes the hide harsh and stiff to the touch. A roomy box stall that is kept clean and well bedded provides desirable quarters. Continuous blanketing helps to keep the animal quiet and to hide from the public the fleshing qualities and keeps the hair lay to the body. The blanket need not be excessive but it must be tied on securely.

Every dairy animal that is to be exhibited should have the hair clipped from the entire body about three weeks previous to the date of the show or sale. This will get rid of the old hair and allow a new, even growth to develop which will greatly improve the appearance and increase the selling value of the animal.

A point often overlooked in the preparation of a dairy animal for show or sale is that of training to lead and stand properly. An untrained animal or one display its best points to advantage if it resents the efforts of the attendant to exhibit it properly. A little time spent each day in training to handle properly will save effort and embarrassment at the time of sale and increase the financial return.

While in the show or sale ring, the man in charge of an animal should have some definite object in view, namely that of showing the animal to advantage. By this is meant that, when it stands, its feet are properly placed, back straight and head alert. Any movement on the part of the attendant or animal should be as graceful as possible. Until the ribbons are placed on the successful's halter fails, take no chances.

What Trade Treaties Mean To Canada

The result and the shouting is over, the ballots have been cast and counted and the standing of the two major political parties in the House of Commons has been reversed. Whereas in the last short lived Parliament the Conservatives held 116 seats and constituted the largest group, in the new Parliament Liberals have, at the time of writing, 116 seats and are the largest group. In addition there are 11 Liberal Progressives elected pledged to support a Liberal Administration.

In other words in the new Parliament, unlike the old, there is a clear majority of members returned in support of one particular leader and who are pledged to stand in the hands of convictions of the Liberal party. That is, the complexion of the new House of Commons make, possible a more stable form of government than existed in the last Parliament.

There now and always, the clear cut majority of the Liberal and Liberal Progressive united in support of a Liberal Administration, numerous Progressive Independents, Labor and United Farmer members, practically all of whom represent Western constituencies, can be depended upon to give hearty conscientious support to a Government pledged to the carrying out of Liberal policies.

Now that the battle is over, and the general verdict of the electors obtained, even those who would have preferred to see Mr Meighen and his party in opposition, will find a degree of national gratification in the fact that the recent has been fairly decisive and the stalemate, which has prevailed for so long to the disadvantage of the whole country, broken. It is what both of the major political parties desired and asked for, and what it has been demonstrated a majority of the constituencies wanted.

And now to business. Let everybody settle down to the task of assisting the Canada to overtake such ground as may have been lost owing to the uncertainties of the situation in the past and grasp the splendid opportunities which are open in the Dominion.

In this column last week the view was expressed that whatever party was placed in power it should devote its energies to the further promotion of the policy of negotiating trade treaties with other countries, and particularly with all other sister nations within the Empire, and then open to Canadian products and manufacturers larger and more profitable markets. We now desire to repeat and to emphasize that declaration. Since it was written a week ago, evidence has accumulated to demonstrate its wisdom.

On the day of the election a large display advertisement not of political character was inserted in Canadian papers by one of the largest automobile manufacturing concerns in the Dominion. It was headed: "The Milk Runs Gained by Export are Millions Saved for You," and it went on to point out that it was owing to the rapid increase in its export business that it was able to build here made possible in Canada, because of the enormously greater volume of production and consequent increase in efficiency and in lower production costs. It was not a tariff shutting out competition which had brought increased prosperity to this firm, but the spreading of new and wider markets abroad through trade treaties, and leading to greater production, larger purchases of materials in Canada, and the employment of many hundreds more of Canadian workers.

More evidence of a similar nature is found in an article by the chairman of the British Columbia Division of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association who tells us how that of both direct and indirect benefits accruing to Canada from the recently negotiated treaty with Australia, and which he estimates means the gain of a $70,000,000 market for this country. This Manufacturers' Association official makes a strong plea for a continuance of this policy of negotiating trade treaties, and, above all, that a stop be put to the muting of a political football out of such matters.

It is right and proper that such treaties should be carefully examined and fully discussed in Parliament and the people of Canada, but when they have been approved and put into effect the efforts of petty politicians to try and create party capital against the Government of the day by seeking to arouse race and religious against the treaty because of some one particular item in it, and another act because of some other item, instead of viewing the treaty in all its various side aspects, should be frowned upon and resolutely opposed.

Canada produces a surplus of nearly everything raised in this country. If Canada is to prosper and grow greater, and employment found for an ever increasing number of people, that surplus must be profitably disposed of in world markets. In order to obtain entry into these markets on the most advantageous terms, Canada must offer some concessions in return. This is only business, and the same principles must govern in international business as in private and domestic business relations.

Manitoba supplied to the world its champion wheat grower last year, when L. P. Yates, of Plimball, in that province, captured the title at the International Grain, Hay and Stock show in the autumn in Chicago, but Canada does not intend to be the home country south of the international boundary if its farmers can drag it north. This international competition was inaugurated fifteen years ago, and Canada has taken the blue ribbon thirteen times. Seager Wheeler succeeded in hooking top place five times. Nobody else touches Mr. Wheeler's record in this prize-contest, although Mr. Mitchell has won three times.

Railroad trains, soon to be able to compete with aeroplanes in speed when [illegible] do need on coaches, engineers assert. To make such high speed safe, the rails must be set in a solid roadbed and several miles of this track is to be built at Detroit for experimental purposes. Invention Of Russian Scientist

Now Method to Extract Many Products From Coal

From 100 tons of coal a Russian scientist would extract, by a new method which he has invented and which is being generally considered in Great Britain, the following products

2,000 gallons of gasoline
6,500 gallons of benzene
3,000 gallons of lubricating oil.
12,000 gallons of carbolic wax.
20,000 pounds of phenol
45,000 pounds of pitch.
12,000 pounds sulphate of ammonia.
12,000 pounds of sulphur.

And even after that he would have over 871 tons of coalokoke but that would give a greater heat than coal by Paul Invention, the inventor of this process, he said to have interested British financiers and engineers in the project New York World.

WORK WHEN PEOPLE

Find New Health By Improving Their Blood

If you feel run down, it means that your blood is thin and watery, that your nerves are starved. You cannot be well and are tired when you rise in the morning. You should improve your meals and are flatless and depleted at your work. You have no energy to enjoy yourself.

Thousands of men are run down by diseases of work. Thousands of men are broken down by their home life, and, with the feelings which it brings with it, hosts of girls are pale, listless and without energy. It all means the same thing—thin and watery blood. You are run down, anaemic, poor appetite, palpitating heart, short breath

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will build up and enrich the blood, while doing away with "many thinking people" believe the United States has taken the wrong course in the matter of international debts, she was not "discouraged by national or international mistakes." Claim Nichol and Cobalt Benefits Cases of Diabetes

Professor Gabriel Bertrand, director of the biological chemical laboratory of the Pasteur Institute, Paris, is the authority for the announcement before the American Chemical Society that experiments with nickel and cobalt have produced encouraging results in the treatment of diabetes.

Experiments conducted by Prof Bertrand and associates, he stated first with nickel or cobalt alone and then with a mixture of the two have met with results sufficiently encouraging to cause continued experiments.

The biological expert stated that they have found cases of diabetes far below, excluding the consumptive type, could be benefitted, sometimes to the extent of the complete suppression of the sugar output.

The two metals, the professor said, had been found present in the human body especially the pancreas gland

To Build Mills In Canada For The Manufacture Of Artificial Silk From Pulpwood

When we gaze on a great forest tree it is not easy to visualize it in terms of rich cloth and silken raiment. And yet that not content with silk, cotton, wool, linen and a number of heavy materials, the human family now employs wood for the manufacture of the latest textiles artificial silk or rayon, as it is called by the trade.

The basis of all artificial silk is cellulose, and cellulose is the principal constituent of wood

As long ago as 1639 Count Hilaire de Chardonnet produced artificial silk commercially, but it has taken many years of inexpensive labor to bring the process process to that stage of perfection which is now still in comparatively its infancy. That the industry has now become a great undertaking is shown by the fact that the world's production in some has arisen from 1,500 in 1909 to an estimated 100,000 for this year

The general principle underlying the manufacturing methods, in the treatment of the cellulose with chemical reagents to give a gelatinous solution which can be forced through a number of minute nozzles into a bath of solution for to one process into silk. This solution causes the cessation of the liquid emerging from the nozzles and thus creates the actual filaments of artificial silk, though the material has to pass through several other stages, varying with the process, before it finally emerges as a thin silk-resting transparent gossamer to which we are now so accustomed, but which would be amazed many a nineteenth century grandmother.

The possibilities for rayon manufacture in Canada, with her vast pulp wood areas are enormous. She controls also the chief power resource which is necessary for the industry, however, were not those which possess much raw material but those which already had the organization, the equipment and the markets for a big textile industry. Thus, shortly before the war, France already predominant in the manufacture of artificial silk, and then had followed by Switzerland. Now the big producers and exporters are the United States, Great Britain and the countries of Central Europe that are prominent in the natural silk trade.

For a good many years Canada has supplied much of the cellulose pulp used for that purpose in these countries. In 1922 the natural resources intelligence service of the Canadian department of the interior published a report drawing attention to the unusually favorable conditions for the development within the Dominion of artificial silk manufacturing in its entirety. The following year Courtaulds, Ltd., largest manufacturers in the United Kingdom, sent engineers to Canada to investigate these representations, with the result that a plant was established in Cornwall, Ontario, in 1924, at a cost of $3,500,000.

This would appear to be but the preliminary of many others. Canadian Celanese, Ltd., capitalized at $7,000,000, is now constructing a plant at Drummondville, Quebec, and the Howard Smith Paper Mills have formed a subsidiary company called the Canadian Cellulose Company, which will be operated at Cornwall, Ontario. A new concern, the Canadian Rayon Silk pany, is erecting at a $2,000,000 rayon plant at New Westminster, B.C. The B.C. Pulp and Paper Company, formerly the Whalen Pulp and Paper Company, operating pulp mills in British Columbia, has been carrying on chemical research for some time in the utilization of hemlock for the production of cellulose and certain results and conclusions have been reached which, it is stated, may determine the company to proceed with installation of a new plant for the manufacture of this sort of pulp. Many other companies are busily engaged from the Maritime Provinces to the Pacific Coast are also taking steps or considering means to enter this field which is so profitable, so large, and which demands no resources, both of wood reserves and natural power supplies, are particularly adapted to support.

Add Billion To Income

Products Of Farms of Western Canada Add to National Wealth

In a recent dispatch to the Toronto Globe, W. L. Smith, special correspondent of The Globe, and a former editor of the Farmer's Sun estimates approximately $1,000,000,000 will be added to Canada's income this year directly and indirectly, from the products of the farms of Western Canada

Last year's record crop was worth $600,000,000 to the growers, and if the fruit in the prosperity column Mr Smith believes it is a fair assumption that this year the returns will not be less Western Canada is going into general farming more fully than in the past, and livestock, poultry dairy products and vegetables will pile up the money returns at every point of handling Altogether a round billion is let's right, states Mr Smith.

The prospect is encouraging in one basis of Canada. Last year the field crops of the country had a value of $1,112,691,000 the exact this year will again increase materially the west's contribution to national wealth

Take Drastic Measures

United States Mail Clerks Go Gringy To Shoot To Kill

"Shoot to kill" orders have been issued to 22,500 railway mail clerks in a drastic means of protecting the precious postal treasure from bandits the United States post office department has announced.

If this method of defensive warfare against the lawless world proves inadequate, post office department authorities indicated the United States Marines could be called in again to guard the mails, as they did in 1925.

The command not only applies to railway mail clerks, but to all postal employees, and is intended as a warning to bandits who make a business of robbing mail trains. The order instructs all employees to defend mail property even at the expense of their own lives.

The recent Chicago hold-up, when $135,000 in currency was stolen, is said to have hi-pired the order. Postmaster-General New levied the command after a sudden conference with postal experts.

A Little Miss and a Big Man

Though her proximity to a life belt might seem to indicate certain fears of the broad beams of the Atlantic on the part of Miss Mary Ferguson Lawson, aged 8, of Winnipeg, you would be wrong in supposing it, since the young lady has masterly taken up this pose for the purpose of photographs.

Like many more experienced travellers, Miss Lawson chose the Canadian Pacific liner Empress of Scotland with which, of course, are included her commander, R. H. Latta, and her purser, J. Walker Barbet (the full name)—as the most satisfactory means of cross-Atlantic locomotion for a young and unaccompanied voyager. For all three, the ship the shipper and the purser, have seen most of the great ports of the world, as well as many of its seas and ocean corners on numerous cruises, and have traversed the Atlantic many a time.

Mary was born in Winnipeg, but lived with her mother in England. Now her mother is dead and she is going to live with an uncle, H. W. Ferguson, at Woodstock, Ont.

The Value Of a Farmer

By Chas. W. Peterson

There is no subject which should interest the smaller towns all over Canada than the development of the rural trading areas to the greatest possible extent. A study of the value to Canada of a farmer is illuminating. It is shown that over 163 million dollars have been brought to this country in cash and effects by immigrants. This new wealth has played its important part in the development of the country. Prof. Irving Fisher calculates that the productive value of the next individual to the state is $2,000. The average farm child has a money value of $95—the value increasing to $4,000 by twenty years, and dropping to $2,500 at fifty years of age according to accepted calculations.

Canadian railways are chiefly interested in securing the traffic value of a settler. Some years ago able statisticians obtained as a basis, the percentage of their whole freight traffic derived from agriculture (horses, cattle, sheep, pigs, wheat, oats, barley, flax) coal, and in and out of coal passenger traffic, and divided the number of settlers into the figures given. Employing statistics of the Canadian railways commission the start percentages of each of the railways above worked out, based on the total grain tonnage for the years between 1st of September, 1915, and the 31st August, 1916. Total for the three prairie provinces for the four classes of revenue above referred to was $153,516,318. In 1916 there were 218,162 farmers in these provinces and the division of one man by the other places the settler's value at $746.73. Assuming therefore, that a settler is worth $750 to Canada, another, that sum is the average amount each farmer put into the revenue of the railroad. $746.73 capitalized at 5½ per cent. being interest government is paying on its Victory Bonds, gives a figure of $13,583.63 the value of each average farmer to Canada.

It is explicable that portion of the revenue amount manner is attributable to human effort it is found to be from six to eighty times all property value. The total annual revenue, therefore, is regarded as an excellent national business investment. The immediate beneficiary is the small town

Yvonne rose, and rested the fingers of her right hand on the table. "Perhaps I can help you. I have had a little experience in accepted calculations."

Joanna looked at her. She was puzzled, as if she had been confronted by some intelligence that masked a strategy. LOCAL NEWS

E. Staples, Calgary, has been transferred to the local branch of the Standard bank in place of Miss Hickmott, who went to Lacombe on account of the serious illness of her father.

A meeting of the Fort Saskatchewan Red Cross Society will be held on Wednesday, September 30, at 8:30 p.m. This is the beginning of fall work and all members are asked to be present.

A curio supposed to be a dinosaur's tooth, weighing nearly three pounds, has been presented to the Edmonton museum by A. R. Patterson, of Fort Saskatchewan. It was found some time ago on the banks of the Sturgeon river, near the location of old Fort Augustus.

The best news we have to relate this week is that after resigning ourselves, editorially speaking, to an enforced absence from the Alberta and British Columbia Press association convention being held the latter end of this week, we have suddenly decided to go. Through the kindness and courtesy of the C.N.R. and the C.P.R. the editors of both provinces are given free transportation to Victoria, B.C., where the convention is being held this year, and it is an opportunity to mingle with our brothers of the fourth estate, to see the country and enjoy a brief holiday we scarcely relished having to let slip by.

PRESS CONVENTION HAS INTERESTING SESSIONS

The joint convention of the Alberta Press association and the British Columbia and Yukon Press association was held at Victoria, B.C. last Friday and Saturday. A more beautiful and appropriate place for a convention would be hard to find and the courtesy and consideration of the C.P.R. in placing their magnificent "Empress" hotel at the disposal of the members of these two associations will not be easily forgotten. In providing free transportation for the members both the C.N.R. and C.P.R. assisted greatly toward the success of the convention, making it possible for some to attend who otherwise would not be able to. Their generosity on this and other occasions is much appreciated.

STERILITY IN COWS & HEIFERS

(C.H.G., Fort Saskatchewan)

Many complaints are received from dairy-men and stock-raisers regarding sterility or barrenness in cows and heifers. The fact that such animals do not breed, or on the other hand, do breed but do not carry their calves to the full term of pregnancy, in other words, they abort, means a twofold loss:

1. Impossibility of building up and of keeping up a dairy-herd.
2. Diminished milk production.

All of which renders the dairy business a questionable one from the standpoint of profit.

Modern veterinary science has given that matter a great deal of attention and it may be stated without exaggeration that methods of treatment have been developed which, if properly applied, can eliminate the above-mentioned condition almost in its entirety.

As to the cause or causes of sterility in the female, the intelligent breeder who knows that more than one organ play important parts in the production of the offspring, will readily conceive that abnormal conditions in any one of them might result in inability to breed. Whereupon it is readily understood that there cannot exist one single treatment for sterility, but that same will have to be chosen according to the abnormal (pathological) conditions of this or of that organ. Fortunate to say, the bovine generative organs are comparatively small and their anatomical position almost exclusively in the pelvic cavity enables the experienced veterinarian to manipulate all of them by hand through rectum or vagina and to discover and even demonstrate to the livestock owner to what extent ovaries, tubes, uterus, etc., are diseased.

Treatments consist of surgical procedures such as removing pullow tumors from one or both ovaries, crushing cystic ovaries, removing strictures or other obstacles in the neck of the womb or vagina, irrigating and syphoning the uterine cavity with specific solutions, of hypodermic or internal medicinal administrations, of correcting sanitary or dietary disorders, and, last but not least, of gland-grafting or transplantation of whole ovaries from young, healthy animals into those which are unable to breed and which have even been considered to be incurable otherwise.

These methods of sterility-treatment have been most successfully carried out during the past years in dairy countries such as Switzerland, Holland, Denmark, and in parts of the United States. For various reasons, they have not been rendered ac-

Possibly not—with a few exceptions, probably—in the Alberta dairy-men and stock raisers. It would be in the interest of these men to make themselves available of the advantages of such up-to-date treatments which mean a most satisfactory solution of an important economical problem. Instead of allowing the crude manipulations of intrusive quacks who pretend "to be good in opening them up," or instead of "waiting for the signs—supposed to be moon and stars—to be right," etc., a little co-operation between dairy-men and veterinarian would accomplish a great deal to maintain the breeding faculties of, as well as to avoid abortion possibilities amongst, cows and heifers.

FIRE PREVENTION WEEK OCTOBER THIRD TO NINTH

By Royal Proclamation, His Excellency, the Governor General of Canada has designated October 3rd to 9th as Fire Prevention Week. During that week, lessons on fire prevention subjects will be given in the schools, public meetings will be held in many of the larger cities, towns and villages, and the owners and occupants of property everywhere in Canada will be counselled to give special attention to the removal of fire hazards from their premises.

Fire waste is one of the most serious economic problems confronting Canada at the present time. The public in general is vitally affected by the tremendous losses annually incurred by fire and the enormous expenditures rendered necessary to adequately protect life and property from its ravages. At least seventy-five per cent of all fires are caused by carelessness and can therefore be prevented.

Immigration, Work and Prosperity

Notwithstanding that one of Canada's greatest needs is a larger population, the amazing fact is that whenever immigration shows a substantial increase, and it becomes apparent that the tide of settlement is setting in strongly Canada-wards, an outcry is raised by Labor circles and Indianapolis are brought to bear to discourage immigration. Nor is organized labor alone in voicing objections and offering opposition. Frequently church bodies, and sometimes national societies, adopt the same attitude.

This opposition to immigration sometimes finds expression in an attempt to induce the Government and other agencies interested in immigration to discontinue, or greatly curtail, their efforts to induce immigration to Canada. At other times it is revealed by a campaign of the most misleading, misleading and, not infrequently, absolutely false statements regarding Canadian conditions, a most unpatriotic proceeding.

Most of this opposition is the result of ignorance or the acceptance of half-baked theories on the part of those who seek to prevent or restrict immigration. Some people object to anybody being allowed to enter Canada unless they speak the same language, dress in the same fashion, and worship at the same altar as they themselves do. Those timid souls are fearful that they may be swamped, and they insist on Canada being regarded as a special preserve for themselves set aside in the world by an all-wise Providence with "No admittance" signs against people from other lands. They refuse to recognize the fact that all the great national groups of today, including the British, are the result of a fusion, an assimilation, of races.

Organized labor, on the other hand, opposes immigration because a majority of Labor Union members entertain the mistaken idea that by maintaining a scarcity of labor, the opportunities for employment of those already in the country are enhanced, and that higher wages will thereby prevail. The economic and industrial history of the world proves otherwise.

A Melbourne, Australia, man writing in the London Daily Mail declares that progress and development in Australia are being stifled, and held back by the excessive cost of labor. One of the crying needs of Australia to bring about permanent prosperity is the carrying out of irrigation schemes on a large scale. The recent drought has proved conclusively the old lesson, and it is known that under the benign skies of Australia simple the lack of irrigation like those practised by the peasants of Lombardy would produce astonishing results. But the problem of Australian irrigation is said to be like a hundred other problems there. It is easy to point out what might be done and what should be done, but much more difficult to get it done. The high cost of labor makes it impossible. As a result the farmer and his family scrimpage along as best they can with rude skill and appliances, but with low efficiency, postponed improvements, and backwardness of agricultural development.

The Labor Unionist looks on immigration as threatening his employment and as a menace to the established standard of wages. He refuses to see that a still greater menace lies in the retarded development of his country, but which development would bring increased employment and good wages for all. He overlooks the fact that immigration, upon a scale which Australia will almost certainly never experience, had little or no effect upon the standard of employment and wages in the United States; rather did it maintain that standard by incessant expansion. The one thing to keep up, or augment, wages in Australia, or in Canada for that matter, would be great area of development. Compared with what it might be the pace of present development is slow.

The most prosperous period in Canada in the experience of the present generation was during those years following the introduction of an aggressive immigration policy under Clifford Sifton, and when immigrants were pouring into the country. Following the depression of this after-the-war years Canada is once again experiencing better times and an increasing measure of industrial activity and prosperity, with employment plentiful and wages good, and at the same time immigration is less by then at any time since the outbreak of the war, with an increase of 48 per cent over last year.

And because of this increase immigration, once again the cry is raised to put a stop to it. Canadians as a whole are tasked by one section of the population, and for purely selfish and utterly mistaken reasons, to kill the goose that is laying the golden eggs for the foundation of the present day, while at the same time being productive of a greater development of and more prosperous future.

Peace River Coal

Millions of Tons Superior to Highest Grade American Coal

There are millions of tons of very high grade bituminous coal in the Peace River district of Alberta, of a quality superior to the highest grade of American coal, according to D. H. McDougall, former general manager of the Dominion Iron and Steel Company and vice president of the Empire Steel Corporation, who is in Halifax after a visit to the Alberta coal deposits, about which he has prepared a report.

Mr. McDougall said he did not think the development of these coal fields would affect the coal industry in Eastern Canada, as this coal would always find a ready market along the Pacific coast of the United States.

He described Peace River as the district destined to be the "greatest in Canada" and said they were available for mining at the lowest operating cost.

Seed Treatment Of Wheat To Control Smut And Other Diseases Gives Larger Yield

That crop losses caused by parasitic organisms such as fungi and bacteria, amount in many millions of dollars annually is the statement made by the Natural Resources Intelligence Service of the Department of the Interior at this time. The remedy is seed disinfection.

Dr. Clayton Roberts Gorman, Professor of Plant Pathology at Pomeroy, Ohio, who is engaged in research along this line and has been able to trace the spread of plant diseases through seed distribution in many cases. Through the sale and distribution of infected seed, parasites have been widely distributed through out the production areas of the north some parasites such as the rusts of cereals are known to be of tremendous importance as crops are grown.

Seed treatment of wheat, oats, barley, etc., will control smuts and other diseases and result in a yield increase of valued greatly in excess of the expense involved. For seed disinfection, formaldehyde, copper sulphate and substitute have been generally considered standard, but much loss in fertility has been recently noted and studies have come to the attention of scientists stating the problem of seed disinfection. These appear to be superior to any formerly used, and, giving as wide a range of safety in parasites and a much wider margin of safety.

Headquarters are beginning to show interest in seed treatment and it is predicted that in a few years much disinfected seed will be sold as seed produced under such conditions as to be relatively free from seed borne parasites.

Tankage for Nursing Sows

Provides a Useful Part of the Ration, As Shown by Tests

Tankage has been proved at the Brandon Experimental Farm to provide a useful part of the ration for sows raising litters. A test was made with three sows with litters of twenty-seven pigs, and three with litters of twenty-eight all approximately of the same age. One special ration fed one group was made up of oat chop two parts, barley chop one part, bran one part, and skim milk one part, with three per cent oil cake meal added. The second group was fed a similar ration but including five per cent of tankage. Seven pounds of meal per sow per day were fed in each case. The extra cost of feeding the sows with tankage for twenty five days was 62 cents. The sows receiving the tankage lost 23½ pounds less than those in the other lot, while the litters of tankage-fed gained 13½ pounds more than those in the check lot. This test is reported in the Dominion Experimental Farm report for 1925, available at the Publications Branch of the Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Okanagan Fruit Crop

Estimated That Apple Crop Will Be Heavier This Year

It is estimated by the Horticultural Department of the Provincial Government that the apple crop of the Okanagan district will reach a total of 2,217,000 boxes, as compared with the total crop last year of 1,553,649 boxes. The crab apple estimate is for 111,555 boxes, as compared with 114,233 boxes last year; pears 180,000 boxes, compared with 16,464; plums and prunes, 215,250 boxes, as against 77,598 boxes last year.

European Wheat Crop Less

The wheat crop of Ingo-Slavia is officially estimated at 77,370,000 bushels as compared with 78,646,000 last year, according to a cable received by the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa. The total wheat production of Northern European countries is 908,-69,000 bushels against 1,033,135,000 last year, a decrease of 63,000,000 bushels.

Succulent Annual Pasture

Palatable and Profitable Green Feed for Livestock

There are three succulent annual pastures particularly grown in this country. These are rape, kale and cabbage. The last named is not often referred to as regards its quality as a forage plant, but as stated in a recently issued pamphlet by the Fodder Crop division of the Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa, the stock very relished leaf and immature stems of the cabbage make a succulent, palatable and profitable addition to the annual pasture. Experiments in the cultivation of these crops have been conducted for several years at the Central and branch farms and stations throughout Canada. High returns may be obtained from crops but also it is possible for a variety of kinds, cattle, sheep, pasturing or feeding.

In the pamphlet mentioned a table of the Publications Branch of the Department of Agriculture outlines the cultivation of these crops, as carried on at the Central Experimental Farm and also considers these reports received from different farmers and stations in the provinces, showing the suitability of these annual crops for a wide range of soil and climatic conditions. In Prince Edward Island rape has proved good pasture in the fall for steers. In Nova Scotia it has proved valuable for hogs. Brandon Manitoba results indicate that rape is an important pasture crop for cattle, sheep and hogs. It grows quickly and is frost resistant. Harper, especially, known for its resistance to frost, is a valuable pasture for lambs, brood sows and growing pigs.

Kale is grown extensively in the Fraser Valley and on Vancouver Island and has proved one of the best available green feeds for poultry and for milk cows.

Homestead Entries In West To Date Are Reported Greater Than For The Entire Year 1925

B.C. Honey Yield

A Wide Variety of Flavors in Good Province Product

British Columbia, apparently, is the only province where the honey yield is expected to approach normal, and even in this case the crop is described as spotty. However as high as 22 cents per pound is being bid for the product from the Pacific Coast, and despatches indicate there will be no difficulty in disposing of any surplus over home requirements in the Prairie Provinces.

While there is a wide variety in the color of honey in any section, because bees gather the nectar from many different sources, that made in British Columbia, on account of the great range in climate seems to be distinctly from any other in the Dominion. The honey coming from apiaries located in the mountains has a particularly delicate flavor in most cases, but just what plant is responsible for this is not altogether known. Bees may be a few minutes, much a mile up the mountain side that is almost inaccessible to man. Prospectors have reported finding bees working over a plant, locally known as false heather which grows on high, rocky ledges.

Four hundred thousand additional acres in the province have been signed up for the 1926-27 year, according to an announcement made by officials of the Alberta Wheat Pool. The Alberta Pool expects to handle sixty per cent of this year's crop.

Too rainy men try to adjust their condition so fit their business

Homesteading on Government land in Canada showed a large increase for the first seven months of the present year, says a Canadian Pacific bulletin. In this period a total of 2,330 homesteads were filed on in Western Canada, as compared with 1,948 in 1925, an increase of more than 1 per cent. Every province showed a substantial gain, the largest being in Manitoba, where the number was 488, as compared with 353 in 1925. Other filings were Saskatchewan, 1,711, against 921; Alberta, 1,347, against 996, and British Columbia, 80, against 76.

The bulletin says that these filings accounted for the settlement of 618,-800 acres of land, and that if only half of this acreage were seeded to wheat and produced the average yield of last year, it would have raised the production of western wheat by nearly 6,000,000 bushels. The bulletin continues:

"The homestead entries for the first seven months of 1926 are greater than for the entire year 1925, and apparently equal to the entire filings of the year 1924."

Over One Million Persons in Receipt of Poor Relief

On one day in July of this year 1,090,846 persons were in receipt of poor relief in the mainland of Great Britain While this is 3.7 per cent less than the previous month, it is 18.3 per cent greater than in July, 1925. According to returns just received by Bankers Trust Company of New York from the British Information Bureau, there are at present 19,000 of the estimated population were in receipt of aid in July of this year compared with 814,000 June and only 321 in July of last year.

Of the above total of 1,090,846 946,915 were persons in England or Wales and of this total 114,751 received indoor relief and the balance, 791,261, received outdoor relief in Scotland the total receiving aid was 121,903 of which 9,644 received indoor relief and 112,419 outdoor relief

Under the terms of the policy, Eastern Live Stock Branch will pay the reasonable travelling expenses of a farmer from Eastern Canada who purchases one or more carloads of stock at the Western sales to be brought back East for feeding purposes

"Daddy" Blair of the Wild and Woolly West

S. Clem of the Canadian Pacific Railway, Blair, at one age of 94.

A world-weary Old Timer, one of the pioneers of the Canadian West, died recently in Edmonton at the age of 94. Was known as "Daddy" Blair, but his real name was Judge Peter Alexander Blair. As a scout, soldier and adventurer he carved the Hudson's Bay Company flag into the foreign corners of the West for half a century, finally leaving his sturdy shoulders before the ravages of age. Since the Incorporation of steamboat as various cities in the West, he was always one of the first to attend no matter how much he felt the weight of his years. He made his last effort in 1920 when he attended the Hudson's Bay Parade in Edmonton at the age of 90.

Dad was only fourteen years of age when he left the old homestead near Montreal. The glamour, the gaiety, the romance, and the immensity of the open life, the charm of the performers, the unendless applause of happy pleasure-seekers, lured him. Then the dust bit into his blood and away went Dad around the world with Barnum's circus.

One day in London, Daddy was driving one of Barnum's eight-horse teams. A little girl ran suddenly into the street. There was a shout, a shriek from one of the spectators, and before anyone knew what was happening Daddy had wrenched the reins almost completely around, saving the child's life by about two inches. As the mix-up Daddy fell into the muddy street, ruining his clothes. Her Majesty Queen Victoria, for half a century, fondly bowing his sturdy shoulders before the ravages of age. Dad was only fourteen years of age when he left the old homestead near Montreal. The glamour, the gaiety, the romance, and the immensity of the open life, the charm of the performers, the unendless applause of happy pleasure-seekers, lured him. Then the dust bit into his blood and away went Dad around the world with Barnum's circus.

One day in London, Daddy was driving one of Barnum's eight-horse teams. A little girl ran suddenly into the street. There was a shout, a shriek from one of the spectators, and before anyone knew what was happening Daddy had wrenched the reins almost completely around, saving the child's life by about two inches. As the mix-up Daddy fell into the muddy street, ruining his clothes. Her Majesty Queen Victoria, for half a century, fondly bowing his sturdy shoulders before the ravages of age. and he died more satisfied than many another man would have been.

In his early years, in the shadow of his life, Daddy was a familiar figure on the streets of Edmonton with his silvery patriarchs mustache and soldierly bearing. But he ended up as a caretaker for buildings, and finally, when the old man could work no longer, he was taken care of by Miss Chatham at the Beulah Mission. Then Daddy's eyes began to grow dimmer. On sunny days he would sit pleasantly, "Why is it so dark. Doesn't the sun come out to play any more?" So it grew darker, the quest from grew weaker and weaker, and the tired old feet which had carried their brothers through a glorious, sometimes life of adventure, turned towards the Happy Hunting Grounds where they will have to trudge over no feeble needs no more.

A SMOOTH RUNNING SYSTEM.
When a system can do all that the Wilson Counter Check System does, but when it is used by a man who is not a system man, but who is a good business man, it becomes a wonderful system. It means what we have always claimed for it, a system that will get right into the face of the business, and show up every leak, every error, every overcharge, every undercharge, every loss through carelessness, every loss through dishonesty, every loss through inefficiency, every loss through lack of knowledge, every loss through lack of right system. It means a system that will get right to the point of every transaction, and show up the exact condition of that transaction. It means a system that will show up the exact condition of your business at the end of every day. It means a system that will show up the exact condition of your business at the end of every month. One of these days the citizens of Fort Saskatchewan will rush to look the stable door—after the horse has gone. A meeting of the fire brigade was called for Tuesday evening and the attendance was woefully small. A little new blood was on hand but present members were absent, if you get what we mean. This important department is being neglected and in doing so the people of the town are making a mistake. We all of us hope, of course, there will not be a fire, but hoping there will not be one will not prevent one from starting, nor will wishing it was out put one out should one start. Some interest should be taken in this department by everyone, for who knows but what it may be your own place of business or your own house which will be the scene of the next large or small conflagration.

Indian Potentate Pays First Visit to Canada

Exhibits from India at Chateau Frontenac.—Inset, The Divan

Divan Bahdur Sir T. Vijayaraghavacharya, distinguished Indian representative of the Madras Presidency in the All-India Legislative Assembly, and a former Prime Minister of the Cochin State of Southern India, who arrived for the first time in Canada, on the Canadian Pacific liner Montcalm, opened the National Exhibition at Toronto on August 30th.

The Divan was a picturesque figure on the streets of the various cities he visited, wearing a native turban of crimson and silver. He anticipates crossing the continent on a lecture tour and visiting the Canadian Rockies. Sighting the Laurentians from a vantage point on the hotel at Montreal he exclaimed: "Surely these aren't the Rockies!" During his trip across Canada he is making a study of conditions, for he believes that a complete understanding between India and Canada could only be reached through a knowledge of each other.

At Quebec he was a guest at the Chateau Frontenac and showed great interest in the display of Indian inland and lacquer work which was sent over to Canada by the Indian Government at the Diamond Jubilee of the Province of Quebec. Many of the exhibits for the C.P.R. who met him in Quebec, that he would see that the effects of which were on his return to India. Before the Divan visited the Canadian Pacific liner Montcalm for Quebec he was skeptical about the preparation of his favorite Indian dishes.

"I am a vegetarian you know," he said, "and as a matter of fact my Indian curries and rice were better prepared on board the Montcalm than is generally the case on Indian steamers. I was agreeably surprised at that."

The great length of the distinguished visitor's name, his second up in the Divan, bore a stumbling block wherever he went. In England he said they hit upon the helpful expedient of referring to him as "Divan". In a letter to Canadian officials recently he remarked, "Such a contraction is strictly in accordance with Indian etiquette and will be quite in order."

When he was satisfied of his observations—which occupied hardly more than a brief minute—Lord Teddy moved closer to the cushioned divan only the knee, which was crossed and pointed at his way halter him his voice when he spoke, was a little above a murmur:

"Please," he pleaded, "don't be exasperated. It's much nicer not to, really. You do it splendidly but you could do it wholly more useful. When a woman has had an unkind, ungrateful enough you know, on that a man knows there's nothing new under either the sun or the moon to be done, she has to pretend that she hasn't yet learned that everything is what it is and not what it is not books. If she didn't she'd be too forbidding for us to know she's serious, about it that when a lovely girl makes bolo—she doesn't understand everything and everybody we know she's just mewling Because she misses she does, anyway. Don't you?"

Joanna regarded him elaborately, frankly imitating his own examination of her a moment before. "Yes," she said, her whole smile playing for him on him. "Then you have a way with you—as a teacher I suppose you've had a great deal of experience at the thing like that" His rueful laughter bubbled through his mask of serious best.

"Only experience, my lovely Joanna," he said, finding her hand among the cushions and taking possession of it with both of his. "My experience will have to be your guide, and yours my ambition" When he had finished he gave a long, fragile fingers a confidential pressure, and looked into her own shining eyes with a deep earnestness in his. He seemed to be concerned about her hand. She even moved her knee, a little, to help him out down the space between them She said, then:

"We seem to be making a bargain of some sort. When you happen to think about it, tell me what it is won't you? The best I can get out of it is that you want to be my guide and you've ambitions of some kind I like ambitions tremendously, it's so much fun flattering them out!"

"Yes," he admitted. "You'd flatten out almost anybody. I should imagine. You wouldn't be afraid of missing anything. That's why I'd like it awfully if——" She nodded at him "I know," she finished for him. "If I'd give you my other hand, too, and let you fill up the rest of the distance between us. Then you could tell me just how pretty you think I am, and how you've always been crazy about hair like mine and you'd like to run your fingers through it, and maybe you'd have something new along that line that I'd never heard before and then you'd end up by saying I was just made for somebody to love a lot and you're somebody. Have I forgotten anything?"

"Not a thing," he declared. "When do we begin?"

This time they laughed together buoyantly. Joanna decided she was going to enjoy this fair haired, ebullient young man whose chief aim in life, according to Yvonne, was consoling neglected wives. He was amazingly handsome, as easily read—to her—as an open book, and she was convinced utterly harmless. Yvonne's picture of him puzzled her. She concluded he would be really in his element, but already she was becoming accustomed to rather more than her fastidious taste had been John always had appeared older to her than any of the other things she knew, although he wasn't in years. She was astonished secretly, at her own ability to be interesting to boys who must have formed many apprenticeships at more dazzling shrines than hers.

She was still disturbed by that ready suspension of his at the end of a meeting earlier in the afternoon She reminded him of it again and declared that the situation is satisfactorily with him until he had made satisfactory explanation. He was not abashed.

"You were such a serpent," he assured her. "Not at all like the usual girl one sees about, in places I'm fearfully fed up, you know, on girls, most girls. I mean. They're the daughters of the crowd that has other does, you know Funny, but it has always struck me that when a woman gets a show dog her daughter goes to the devil Really doesn't go to the devil you know, but tries to act like she had a dog to him and found him too old-fashioned to be amusing Now you're different. As soon as I saw you I was sure there were no shows in your family Are there?"

"My friends," she called to them "I'm in a daring mood tonight.

"Not having any family, there aren't any," she said, quietly.

"Right!" There's a reference for you. You see I'm always right when women. You're a flapper without a show background. There's a heap of difference. If I were a literary chap now, I'd put that in a book, or something. As it is you'll have to figure it yourself. It's deeper than I usually go. I thought you must be something different, and I couldn't think of anything but singing girls and dancing girls. As a rule they're not sense, anyway. The debutantes that imitate them haven't—by the same rule. Now am I forgiven?"

"I never forgive a man anything," she declared promptly. "It always makes him dangerous."

"That's your difference," he discovered eagerly. "The kind of girl I don't like, the kind that isn't sure so daring as you are, is the one who's always trying to forgive. They say it adds to excitement."

Yvonne's voice interrupted. She stopped into a chair and surveyed the pair on the divan. "You two seem to be hitting it off quite satisfactorily," she commented.—"No entangling confidences, I hope." Of Joanna, she asked: "She's relieved himself of his own admiralions for his pan at Doris and Pon, I suppose?"

"We'd just started on them when we cut all preliminaries and got down to outsiders." Tedd, assumed her in nationality. "We're made progress, I shall be here again presumably all to four continue matters."

You will not!" Yvonne corrected him. "Miss Allen, you know what they have you made it 'Joanna yes? I see that you have"—Which Joanna has a day mapped out. There's some important things to attend to And you can run along now, Teddy if you will. You may do yourself a drink on your way out."

When he was gone Yvonne and Joanna took up the important matters of the morning: the automobile, its chauffeur—"I'll find you one," Yvonne agreed and a descent upon a fashionable jewelry house.

"There'll be a crowd here tomorrow night," Yvonne explained. "That's what Teddy was referring to. I'm making it a big crowd in your honor I'd already planned a night or so, but I've elaborated for you. You'll meet everyone and the 'll meet you. I'll have an ambassador a senator and two married ones, without their wives; a few exiled Russian princes, and a smattering of their princesses. You'll like the Russian girls. Some South American who will make you think always, of sapphires or black silk mends, and everybody who's in love with me or wants to be. That'll make a representative party I'm keen to know how you'll like it—the crowd I mean. Between Brandon and Randy, to say nothing of Teddy, you'll be well presented. I fancy you'll be properly polished."

Joanna looked up sharply at the mention of Brandon and Kenilworth. She detected a change in Yvonne's tone as she pronounced the names. She wanted to ask her about these two, for she knew Yvonne shared with Brandon, at least, some intrigue concerning her. But she thought better of the impulse. Her thoughts went back to John.

"Have him come to you here, by all means," Yvonne insisted, shrewdly. "I fancy he is a young man who will require handling. If you continue to be concerned about him, Hazel can be much concerned about him."

The subconscious of the challenge caught Joanna off her guard. She dropped her eyes. All at once she was conscious that her lips were quivering, and that she was concerned It wasn't quite straight in her mind, but she had put away something Teddy Dunsinater had said for later consideration, and it came back to her, now, a little confusedly. "She was enthusiastic. But a flapper without a show dog background. And you haven't been spoiled."

She wondered why John had not understood as well as Teddy Dunsinater, who decided she'd find out, soon'

"I shan't be so much concerned," she said to Yvonne, "that I'll go around hunting and music."

WHEN YOUNG GIRLS GROW PALE AND THIN

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Should be Taken to Enrich the Blood.

When girls grow weak, pale and thin, parents should not neglect these symptoms, or to do so needless danger. The girl in her teens cannot develop into robust womanhood without a plentiful supply of rich, red blood in her veins. It is the lack of this that is the great trouble with nine girls out of ten. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have achieved world-wide fame for their remarkable blood-making properties. In these pills there is vigorous health, with glowing cheeks and sparkling eyes for every weak, pale girl. The value of the pills in cases of this kind is shown by the statement of Mrs. Winnifred Rutty, Barton street west, Hamilton, Ont., who says:—"About two years ago my eldest girl got into very bad health. I took her to a doctor who advised having her tonsils removed, saying this was the root of the trouble. We had them removed, but it did not help her any. She seemed to have absorbed so much poison from the trouble that she did not pick up at all. She could neither eat nor sleep, and what food she did take did not digest. Then she developed a cough that kept her awake at night, and went down in weight to 87 pounds. A neighbor said to me, 'You had better try some things why not try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.' I got some and before she finished the second box she began to look improved. She continued the use of the pills for some time and is now in the pink of condition, able to work and play, and can sing about with all her old-time vigor. These statements can be verified by neighbors who watched her restored from ill health to perfect health."

If your medicine dealer does not keep these pills you can get them by mail at 50c a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

CARRIED WIFE TO BED

Suffered So She Could Not Walk. Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Minesing, Ontario. "I am a practical nurse and I recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to suffering women. For three months I was almost helpless and could not sit at the table long enough to drink a cup of tea. Many a time my husband carried me to bed, I would be so weak. Then he read in the paper of a woman suffering as I did who got better after taking the Vegetable Compound, so he went and got it for me. When I had taken three bottles I was just like a new woman and have had splendid health ever since. When I feel any bearing-down pains I always take it; sometimes a half bottle or whatever I need. It is my only medicine and I have said many a one about it. Any one wanting to know more about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, I will gladly write to her. I do all I can to recommend it for I feel I owe my life and strength to it." — Mrs. Neal Bowron, R. R. 1, Minesing, Ontario.

Do you feel broken-down, nervous, and weak sometimes? Do you have this horrid feeling of which so many women cause be women when they are not well? Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is excellent to take at such a time. It always helps, and if taken regularly and persistently will relieve this condition.

Western Canada Wheat

"The Wheat of Western Canada is unsurpassed anywhere in the world" writes the "Free Press" editorially, and adds: "Those who visit Western Canada, and witness the tremendous development of recent years, of course, have been the creation of the wheat—the most ambitious undertaking which has resulted from the co-operative movement of the Western farmers."

Painless and perfect in their action, Miller's Worm Powders are always a safe and reliable remedy for children who show symptoms of worms. These symptoms are easily recognizable in a feverish restlessness, frequently ending in convulsions. A point of notable importance is that after Miller's Worm Powders have expelled the worms, the stomach and bowels are toned up into a very healthy condition.

The meeting of the fire brigade called for Tuesday evening was very poorly attended and beyond a few discussions no business could be done, as there was not even a quorum of active members.

The usual monthly meeting of the senior W.A., St. George's church will be held in the parish room October 7, at 3 p.m. Tuesday. All members are requested to be present as there is important business to transact.

ected with the profession occupied the time Friday morning and afternoon. The ladies of the party were entertained in the afternoon by Lieut.-Governor and Mrs. Government House. In the evening a banquet, was tendered the members and their wives by the two daily newspapers of Victoria. Speakers during the evening included Lieut.-Governor Bruce, Premier Oliver, Acting-mayor Marchant and others.

Saturday morning the convention was addressed by the Attorney-General of British Columbia, who delivered one of the finest addresses the writer has had the pleasure of hearing. Briefly, it was a request to publishers, from one public servant to other public servants, for a more sympathetic handling of the affairs of public life and a greater understanding of the difficulties of men in public office; to think less of obtaining sensational headlines, irrespective of their truth or falsity, and to make sure they are making truthful statements before going to press.

The closing session in the afternoon was mainly taken up by election of officers and other business, leaving the members free during the remainder of their stay to visit the famous Crystal Gardens, the equally famous Butchart Gardens, the second largest observatory in the world, and other points of interest.

THE STORAGE OF VEGETABLES FOR THE WINTER USE

(Experimental Farms Note)

Each fall and winter a greater number of requests are received at the Scott Experimental Station for information regarding the storage of vegetables for use during the winter months.

The average prairie home has a dug-out or cellar underneath the dwelling where large quantities of perishable high priced vegetables may be stored. If a furnace is in the cellar it is advisable to partition off a store room to avoid excessive heat about the vegetables. A single thickness of lumber is sufficient for this partition. By opening a door into the furnace room the temperature may be raised during cold periods. When merely an earth pit is underneath the dwelling the temperature may be kept sufficiently high to protect from frost during severe weather by the use of a lantern or a single burner coal oil stove. For most vegetables a temperature ranging from 34 to 38 degrees F. is most favorable. Root crops such as carrots, parsnips, beets

The Calgary Albertan says: "Despite all the many criticisms, Alberta autumn weather is unequalled. None other can compare to it. A day in real Alberta October weather surpasses for charm weather at any time in any other part of the world."

We could not say it more prettily ourselves so will let it go at that. Suffice it to say it is agreeing wonderfully with local farmers and business is going forward with all the speed attainable. The crop is proving to be much better than we at one time anticipated and we in this district seem to have little cause for complaint.

In a recent dispatch from the west, W. L. Smith former editor of the Farmer's Sun, estimates that approximately $1,000,000,000 will be added to Canada's income this year from the products of the farms of Western Canada. Last year's field crops were valued at $1,112,691,000 in the growers and it put the west in the prosperity column. Mr. Smith believes it is a fair assumption that this year the return will not be less.

An interesting estimate of Canada's per capita wealth has been made by the League of Nations, with comparative figures of 22 years ago. In 1923 the per capita wealth in this country amounted to $2,604, as contrasted with $1,160 per capita in 1902. Out of the 16 nations listed, Canada ranks third, the United States showing $3,218 and Great Britain $2,650 per capita, respectively.

With a view to obtaining financial assistance of some kind with which to aid the emigration of Austrian farmers to Canada, Dr. Heinrich Mosler, an Austrian Government official, arrived in this country recently on board the Canadian Pacific S.S. There are 10,000 Austrian farmers who would emigrate to Canada, stated Dr. Mosler, all of them practical farmers, but they do not possess sufficient funds to pay their passage to this country.

FOOLISH PEOPLE

"I have heard that there are a few people so foolish, but I have never met one," declared Lord Darling, the eminent British judge, when asked Sunday as to whether he had found in his Dandelion-Who hour any which in Canada to resign her position as one of the constituent parts of the British empire. "Canadians are at present absolutely free under the British flag, which, in my opinion, ensures more freedom to its peoples than any other," he declared.

FALL AGREEMENT WINTER

(Experimental Farms Note)

The early fall is the best time to thoroughly clean and disinfect the hen house. Earth floors should be levelled and fresh earth added if necessary. All necessary repairs to the house are best made before the pullets are housed for the winter. If the house is not equipped with a dry mash hopper and bin for hard grain, the fall is a good time to install them. A dry mash hopper is an essential in feeding pullets for egg production and the small bin for hard grain in the house saves labor in winter. Since it is not necessary to feed older birds the same ration as pullets during winter it is a good plan to partition the house in order to provide separate pens.

Growth Of Wheat Pool Movement

The farmers of Western Canada in less than three years, have established the largest co-operative organization of its kind in the world. The Canadian Wheat Pool, with its three units in the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, now has a total membership of 135,000 farmers, who control 12,320,000 of the 21,000,000 acres sown to wheat last year in the three prairie provinces. It is handling the sale of the greater part of the wheat production of Canada, and Canada already exports more wheat than any country in the world.

The first of the three wheat pools commenced business in the province of Alberta in October, 1923, and at the close of the first pool year on July 31, 1924, had handled 24,500,000 bushels of wheat shipped by its members.

Meanwhile Manitoba and Saskatchewan were organizing pools, in the fall of 1924, they had perfected provincial organizations and the three provinces then merged their selling strength into one giant marketing organization, known as "The Canadian Co-operative Wheat Producers, Limited." This agency is incorporated under a Federal charter, with very wide powers. Its function is to take delivery of the wheat from each of the respective provincial pools and to place it on the markets of the world in such a manner as to secure a price commensurate with the natural law of supply and demand. Each of the three provincial pools is responsible for gathering the wheat of its own members and placing it at the disposal of the central selling agency, which is controlled by a board of nine directors composed of the president, vice-president and one director of each provincial pool.

The largest proportion of the wheat is sold by the selling agency to importers and buyers in different countries of the world, for the agency has direct selling connections with every wheat importing country and its own representatives in 51 parts of the world. The handling charges on the wheat sales are disbursed to the members of the three pools. This method of handling wheat provides a huge volume through one agency and reduces the cost of operation to a minimum.

It is difficult, if not impossible, to estimate in dollars and cents the actual increase in the price of wheat attributable to the operations of the wheat pool, but the Pool, controlling as it does over 60 per cent of Canada's exportable surplus, has the opportunity of preventing those periodical slumps in wheat being rushed on to the market and creating a glut which inevitably forces prices down. The strength of the Pool lies in its stabilizing power and in its facilities for selling in great quantities and in all countries.

This vast co-operative organization of farmers grew out of the experience of fined prices that wheat established by the Canadian Government during the war, regulated by an official body known as the Wheat Board, which came into active the war the farmers of Western Canada urged the Government to maintain the Wheat Board, but as it had been brought into being and had functioned under a War Measures Act, the machinery for its maintenance automatically passed out of existence with the signing of the Peace Treaty. The wheat producers of the Canadian West, learning that the Wheat Board could not continue, began to realize the necessity of an organization of their own to handle the marketing of their wheat in a way that would prevent a too wide fluctuation and secure a better stabilization of prices.

Through the Pool the wheat is handled at cost and therefore, at a saving to the farmer. The Central Selling Agency with its direct connections is able to eliminate some of the handling charges between producers and consumer that are incidental under any other method of marketing. Moreover, the Pool relieves the farmer of the necessity of guessing the right time to sell his grain and assures him of the average price for the year on all wheat it sells. This orderly marketing avoids the disastrous effects of the flooding of the market in the fall which prevailed under the old system.

The Wheat Pool in Western Canada is a notable example of the co-operative movement, made by the farmers of this country. It has shown the possibilities and advantages of co-operative marketing. Under the old system the farmer sold his wheat and took what the market offered. In the Pool system he delivers his grain when convenient and obtains the average price of the selling period, together with the saving in the handling costs. The Pool price to every member is the price at Fort William, less handling charges and freight charges. The latter, of course, vary, according to the length of the haul.

With the development of Canada's agricultural areas, only one-fifth or which are as yet under cultivation, the growth of the Canadian Wheat Pool may reach a magnitude never before conceived in co-operative marketing.

Germany Now Thinks War Is Calamitous

International Study in Insanity as a Wholesale Basis

It was the fashion, only a few years ago, to glorify war and to create in the minds of young men an impression of its necessity. Germany was particularly eager to give its youth a strong martial spirit and to hold before them military ideals. If Stresemann speaks for his countrymen—and there is no reason to doubt that he does—the Germans have had a complete change of heart. The appalling sacrifices of the war have brought them, as they have taught other nations, that war is one glorious, but ultimately calamitous, international warfare is insanity on the wholesale scale. It is of course, natural and right that young men should go to the defense of their country when it is threatened; it is unable to lay down a one's life in a just patriotic cause, but if wars can be prevented as they can, if the proper state of mind is cultivated, it is the duty of every young person to help the movement along.

RHEUMATIC SUFFERERS

May Obtain Relief by Enriching the Blood Through the Use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills

In the days of our grandfathers rheumatism was thought to be the unavoidable penalty of middle age and old age. Almost every elderly person had rheumatism, and it was rare among young people. It was thought that rheumatism was caused largely by cold and dampness, and it was treated with liniments and hot applications which sometimes gave relief, but which very rarely removed the trouble. In these days when we know more of the basic origins of these medical ailments we know that rheumatism is the outcome of the blood and that with good blood rheumatism is unknown, or at any rate only rheumatism. There are many elderly people who have never felt a twinge of rheumatism, and who feel that they owe their blood in good condition to the fact that they who have conquered it by building up their blood with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. Here is a case in point. Mrs. Alfred Bishop, Brockville, Ont., who has robbed rheumatism of its terrors. Here is her sign of this, tumors blood prefect, and she explains the cure of her disease by taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. They have helped thousands, if you give them a fair trial they will help others, too. Their value in the case of rheumatism is proved by the statement of Mrs. Finley Denton, Shackleton, N.B., who feels it her duty to tell you of the wonderful benefit she received from the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I suffered on cold winter's day," she says, "from a run-down condition. The trouble left me terribly weak and I could not get up for a part of the time I was unable to move without the assistance of a cane. I took different remedies and doctors, and also other remedies that were recommended, but did not improve and had about given up hope of getting better when a friend advised me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I did so, and with the result that within four months I was as well a man as ever I had been. I can say that I was a complete wreck when I began using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and that this medicine literally built up my health. This was some years ago, and I have no return of the trouble since. I give this statement hoping it will benefit others."

You can get these pills from any druggist or by mail at 50c. a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Aged Farmer Is Killed

Was Owner of 32 Quarter Sections in Saskatchewan

Death came instantaneously to Stanley Clark, wealthy aged farmer of the Prosser district, when his automobile was struck by an engine. The late Mr. Clark was 76 years old, and was owner of 32 quarter sections in Saskatchewan. The newspaper reports recount the fact that he deceased had been a widower since 1904, and "during all that time he had lived alone." It should also be written into the record, that the late Mr. Clark was a valued and respected member of the Wheat Pool, having signed a contract on 20th of August, 1923, his number being 65-686.

Story—John Wilson Pell was a man of many parts.
Moral—He was.

A total of 21,841,000 acres of non-pool grain in Saskatchewan was won for orderly marketing by the operators and superintendents of the Pool Elevators, Ltd., from September 25th to 30th—approximately 10,000 acres every twenty-four hours.

Claimed By Ireland

British National Anthem and "Yankee Doodle" old Irish Tunes

"Yankee Doodle" is not American at all. It's Irish, according to Dr Tiarlach Flood, an Irish authority on music and history. He asserts that "Yankee Doodle" was originally an Irish air known as "All the Way to Galway," "God Save the King," the British national anthem, Dr. Flood says, also is an old Irish tune which originated about 1606 and has been going strong ever since.

Magnetic storms and northern lights may result from the distant storms, although no serious results will follow, the professor explained.

"The disturbance is in a solar belt made 22 degrees north, coming around the edge of the sun," he said. "Many photographs have been taken and very many changes are taking place," Professor Prost said.

Sunspots are not generally visible to the naked eye, he explained, unless grouped over vast areas.

Mapping Spread Of Trees In The Prairie Provinces To Ascertain Rate Of Growth

Mapping the spread of trees in the prairie provinces with the object of ascertaining the rate at which they spread goes on, is one of the latest activities in which Prof. V. E. Jackson, of the Manitoba Agricultural college, and entirely, authorities on agriculture, are engaged.

The mapping is being done in connection with a systematic campaign to have more of the prairie covered with trees than is at present; the case, it is of course, natural and right that young men should go to the defense of their country when it is threatened; it is unable to lay down a one's life in a just patriotic cause, but if wars can be prevented as they can, if the proper state of mind is cultivated, it is the duty of every young person to help the movement along.

Prof. Jackson and other experts have been the chief authorities to be consulted, according to Prof. Jackson. All through Saskatchewan "poplar islands" are forming and increasing in size, and it appears that the poplar spreads all the more rapidly as new land is broken for agricultural purposes. It is only a matter of a few generations until there will be no much thing as a treeless plain or prairie of any great extent. Prof. Jackson states.

While the poplar is easily first in the way it advances, the spruce is one of the more prairie, satisfactory results are being obtained with oak and elm forests, which have been sent to Dauphin Lodge, Alba, and Indian Lake, have germinated and the saplings give promise of developing into lovely trees. Elm seeds which have also been planted in Alberta have likewise germinated, and as in the case of the oaks, the progress of the elm saplings is being closely watched.

Work in Connection With Tuberculosis Test Shows Few Reactors

The first work undertaken by the eradication of bovine tuberculosis in the six rural municipalities east of Long Lake, Saskatchewan, has been completed. This work was conducted by the Dominion Department of Agriculture and some assistance was given by the Provincial Government and the rural municipalities. In all 21,284 head of cattle were tested and only 176 reacted, or less than one per cent—25 per cent is to be exact. This shows that Saskatchewan live stock are in a very healthy condition, and has caused that farmers in the restricted area will endeavor to improve the quality of their stocks by making it a pure bred sire area as well

Chicago Doctor Says Thymus Glands Responsible for Vagaries of Youthful Apocrypha

The trouble with the "effeminate youth and mannish flapper" of the present generation is that their thymus glands have continued to operate, their development from childhood, Dr. Victor D. Lindlahr, of Chicago, told the Ontario Dentists Practioner's association in annual meeting here at Toronto Dr Lindlahr said the fact that the thymus glands were operating beyond their proper period was due to the softness and luxury which the march of science and civilization entailed in the lives of the average person of 1924

Surprised When He Saw Canada

Mr. Alfred Bishop, who came to Alberta from the United States, has written back some of his impressions of the country to Mr. O. C. Rutledge, Canadian Government agent, at 701 E. Genesee street, Syracuse, New York. Says Mr. Bishop: "I am going to tell you what I think of the Canadian West. I was surprised when I saw the amount of wheat grown in Canada. This country is the land of opportunity—and there is plenty of it."

Canadian Pacific Exhibits

Canada Being Advertised Throughout The World Through Agency of C.P.R.

One of the most potent ways in which the Canadian Pacific Railway is advertising Canada both to the Dominion itself and to the rest of the world is through the work of the Exhibits Branch of the Company, and some hint of the brains and comprehensiveness of the efforts of this branch may be gathered from the fact that at the time this is written seven expeditions are being staged simultaneously under its direction—at the Canadian National Exhibition at Toronto; the Second centennial Exhibition at Philadelphia; and at fairs at Quebec, Sherbrooke, London, Ontario Brandon, Manitoba and St. John, New Brunswick. And this is but a phase of the unceasing work which is being performed by the Company in showing Canada and the Canadian Pacific Railway before the eyes of the world.

For years the Canadian Pacific Railway has participated with an outstanding display at the Canadian National Exhibition at Toronto, and the exhibit, naturally improved, is ordered to be finer than ever this year Months of study on the part of directors, months of labor on the part of painters, engravers and mechanics, have contributed to the fine artistic presentation, which will be made of Canada's many and unique lighting efforts. The whole presents a very complete survey of Canada, its scenic attractions, agricultural and industrial possibilities and commercial life. A model train, electrically operated and illuminated, specially designed by the Canadian Pacific Exhibition, at Wembley, where for two years it was a centre of attraction, will be one of the features which takes the visitor, through a cross section of Canada from Quebec to Vancouver. The immense circular panorama has proved to detail that central points as Quebec, Montreal, Toronto, the Twin Cities, Winnipeg, Banff, Vancouver and other cities are easily recognized.

Having reared to the increasing attendance figures at the Canadian National Exhibition, and the manner in which it is attracting exhibitors and visitors from all parts of the globe, the Canadian Pacific undertook the work of world-wide advertisement, in line with the policy adopted by the company in 1911 when, recognizing exhibits, of neglecting no opportunity of bringing Canada forcibly and repeatedly to the attention of the world, it is in a way comparable to the work the company performs periodically by representation at the great national and provincial exhibits at the world's largest expositions.

Some of those have been the New York exhibition in 1911 and 1912; the Chicago Land Show in 1913; the San Francisco Exhibition in 1914 and 1915; the Palace Le Lorain in 1914; the New York Chemical Exhibition; and the Tokio Peace Exposition. For two years the company was represented in Germany by handsome pavilions at the British Empire Exhibition at Wembley. Following this, space was taken at the New Zealand and South Seas Exhibition for an elaborate picturization of the Dominion. At the present time "Vancouver Island," Brandon, Manitoba, is an outstanding attraction at the Sesqui-centennial Exhibition at Philadelphia. Almost without interruption Canada is being advertised in some part of the world through the Company's participation in a world exhibition.

The Exhibits Branch makes it a point to every year install exhibits at all the larger fairs throughout the Dominion, provincial, municipal, and civic, bringing to the attention of the people of one section of the country the beauty and resources of other sections. In addition it maintains thirty-five permanent exhibits in great seasons of population in the United States and Canada, as well as others in the British Isles, with representations of Canadian scenery and samples of Dominion products which are potent advertisements of the country's opportunities to the people of the Republic and the tourist to Canada.

The Exhibits Branch has rapidly developed to be a very important phase of the operations of the railway, of tremendous value to the Dominion at large, with benefits that are many and wide spread though frequently they are difficult to trace. Appropriations for the branch of work are now considerable, the men engaged in its operations are highly specialized, great artists, mechanical, and organizing ability are called into play. All this that Canada may be adequately represented wherever large crowds of people are brought together, and the opportunity kept ever-ready before the world.

Making Use Of Nature

Inventions Has Made Gas-Snaps and and Lighthouses Automatic

An invention of which little is known, but which seems destined to put millions of tons of fuel into the pockets in the time of tons of those gods yearly, is the so-called sun valve by means of which gas buoys and lighthouses are rendered automatic.

Inside a gas buoy can be stored enough acetylene gas to burn for six months if the light can be turned down in the daytime. To do this work by hand would mean the employment of hundreds of men and launches, and would often be impossible owing to bad weather. But by means of the sun valve the sun is made to do the work. As day breaks the valve shuts off the gas to a certain extent, leaving the tap to be turned so that the every less flame burns low. When twilight falls again the diminished flame becomes the flame to rise again, so that gas is only being consumed during the hours of darkness. Even a heavy fog cannot dim the light to burn up brightly.

There is also an electric light buoy in which the light is governed by a mechanism worked solely by wave motion. This gives a more powerful light than the gas buoy and, once installed, goes on working indefinitely. Inside it is turbine driven by a strong current flowing by it, and this turbine pump is worked entirely by the rise and fall of the buoy on the waves Work is carried on all the time. The turbine runs the dynamo and the dynamo produces the light.

Advance of Japanese Women

Japan has its Council of Women, and at the recent annual meeting the Empress of Japan attended in person and read the opening address. She was supported by one of the princesses, as president. At this meeting which was held in a gaily decorated building in which the national colors predominated in evidence, the Imperial ladies discarded their national costume for European dress.

Used To Be Careful

The wife of a long-time suitor went for a preacher to come to the bedside of her husband, who was no better than he should have been. The preacher came and said, "You had better renounce the devil, my friend."

"Renounce the devil!" exclaimed the dying man "Why I am not in the position to quarrel with anybody."

Comes Friendship In Unique Manner

Geneseo and New York State Farmers Hold Procuring Station

Of all the things that have been done to engender the long years of friendship between Canada and the United States, the most unique will be the international plowing match now on and headlocked of Lundy's Lane in the Niagara district which will be held between farmers of Ontario and of New York state

We have celebrated the century of peace between Canada and the United States—Thanksgiving have been observed at certain points on the 4,000 miles of unfortified boundary and we have lately had good-will parties of each years city visiting and being welcomed by the other But none of these things was quite so striking as this unique plowing match—the cause of deadly conflict into peaceful means of a friendly compact than between most of the two countries who live by the soil

Increase in Honey Production Reported This Year

Manitoba reports a big increase in honey production for the ninth year in succession. Honey production for many years has been a profitable industry in eastern Canada, but it was only about six years ago that the honey crop in Manitoba began to be important. It has increased during the last five years from 862,000 pounds in 1920 to 4,167,000 pounds, valued at $614,640 00 in 1924. This tremendous increase in output has effectively proved that Manitoba's climate is well suited for the production of honey This year the production will be even greater than last

Kapoola Warns Mackenzie

Lee, Willingdon has been appointed of Appeal in London. "This is going to be a big chance for you," I very I've, indeed," she agreed. It will be from 'China to Peru' almost literally." I asked her how she thought she would like the Dominion after so many years in India. "We are sure to feel, the cold," she said brightly, "but I am assured that the warmth of our welcome will more than compensate for that."

—The Passing Show, London.

Linked up with the history and per sonifications of the British Empire is the familiar, if mythical figure of John Bull a sturdy fellow garbed in red waistcoat, leather breeches and armed with a stout oaken cudgel Wyndham in a recent issue of Punch, London's Weekly, "Washington Irving" expresses the belief that it is characteristic of the English, and their love for what is blunt, manly and familiar, that they have embodied their national ideals in such a figure

"According to history, the moulding of 'John Bull' began in the year 1713, when John Arbuthnot, physician to Queen Anne, and a friend of Swift and Pope, published a pamphlet, "Law is Bottomless Pit Exemplified in the Case of Lord Strutt, John Bull, Nick Frog, and Lewis Baboon, who agreed all they had in a hussuk." Then, again the same story was adapted as a result of the theological controversy following the exit of James II., when the Dutch portrayed England, in prints as a lion, a bull, and sometimes a bulldog, indicating, no doubt, our determination and tenacity

Hilary and Bulldog are two prominent caricaturings who have played no small part in fashioning John Bull But the most prominent delineation was that of "John Bull Taking a Lunch," to which he is depicted, with the Battle of Nile, taking a meal of ships, with Admirals as waiters. "John Bull's Terrapins Gate" is perhaps the best known of Rowland Hill's efforts, and, indeed, the word "John" demanding payment of the bill The toll received to the taking of the Tent cloth for the purpose of burning Monuments out. Despite the fact that these two contributors were well known to their public, it could not be said that either representation of John Bull was flattering

It required the mind of Isaac Crouch shank to introduce a sense of refinement by making his John Bull, a well dressed capitish personage, reminiscent of the Prince Albert type in appearance This marked improvement was further accentuated by the work of John Leech and Lewis Carroll and John Tenniel For the John Bull as we recognize him today we are indebted to the genius of the last-named artist, whose work was ably perpetuated by Sir Bernard Partridge

The Commanding Position Of Our Agriculture

By C. W. Peterson

The average person readily gives an intellectual assent to the statement that agriculture is our basic industry and the "backbone of the nation," but usually without adequate conception of the fundamental character of that phrase. It is one thing to say, for example, that agriculture is the largest single factor in the economic life and the farmers as the largest group in the domestic consumers, consequently suffer big purchasing influence in the general business conditions of the country; the third of all revenue freight originates on farms and is estimated on the farm and another third at least, was represented in carrying commodities all kinds back to the farm and the agricultural raw materials to and fro. The Canadian farm not only feeds the nation, but exports no such a scale that credits are availble to balance our international obligations and to provide foreign exchange.

Besides the millions of farm workers directly engaged in producing, there are many millions earning their living by performing the services which supplying the implements, tools, shoes, clothing etc. for the farmer. With the manufacture of raw material originating on the farm and the distribution and transportation of such commodities, a large proportion of the economic machinery of agriculture in a country like Canada is kept busy, well within the mark to assert that at least 50 per cent of Canada's total population, in every walk of life, depend absolutely on her agriculture, directly or indirectly.

These new imposing figures and should lead thinking men to speculate on the possible performance of Canadian agriculture were we in the happy position where we could look to generous fringe of our agricultural area was on a producing basis. If, for instance, we were producing on our main belt of our arable lands, instead of only one sixth, granting a fairly balanced population, the question of economic problems would vanish over night. The time is ripe for bringing such a situation about. We observe the undeveloped natural resources, the markets are there, we only need the man-power to complete the circle. Add that largely a matter of intelligent, bold mass organization.

Well-Known Home Builder Quickly Restored To Health

Victim of Nervous Indigestion, Loss of Sleep and Intolerable Pain, Father of 8 Children, Finds Long-Sought Relief. Strength Restored. Praises Tanlac.

"I was suffering untold agonies when I began taking Tanlac. My stomach had a terrible trouble with me, constipation, etc., account for the remarkable twenty-six per cent. It will thus be clear that Canada's agriculture looms up as the largest single factor in her economic life and the farmers as the largest group in the domestic consumers, consequently suffer big purchasing influence in the general business conditions of the country; the third of all revenue freight originates on farms and is estimated on the farm and another third at least, was represented in carrying commodities all kinds back to the farm and the agricultural raw materials to and fro. Golden Text: We are well able to overcome it. Numbers, 13.30.

Lesson: Numbers 13.1 to 14.45.

Devotional Reading: Psalm 95 1-7.

Explanations and Comments

Twelve Spies Sent to Canaan; verse 1-20.—At last an encampment was made in the Wilderness of Paran, at Kadesh-barnea, near the border of the promised land. Then Moses sent twelve spies over the border to ascertain the nature of the land, whether good or bad, whether wooded or not, to gain information as to the people, whether they were numerous or not, whether strong or weak, and also form about how they lived, whether in cities, camps or strongholds. He also directed them to bring back specimens of the fruit they found in the land.

"The land was ready for the people, but were the people ready for the land? Two years which Caleb and his companions was to bring out to be not a question of geography, but a question of philosophy. It was to test the present capacity of the people of God, to determine whether the best of Israel was ripe for its inheritance." (Dr. George Matheson).

"What we do in the crisis always depends upon whether we are ripe-ripe in the light of God, or God, in the shadows of the difficulties." (Dr. Campbell Morgan.)

The town fathers could give residents and visitors who use vehicles a great deal more comfort than they are at present having by taking some of the kinks out of the surface of the roads. They (the roads—not the town fathers) seem to be one combination of humps and hollows and new brand on owners of false teeth and old boots. There may be underlying motives in leaving the roads in the state they are, for no one can succeed the speed limit and prevent his head going through the top while doing it, but thought should be taken of the possibility of damage actions being laid against the town for broken springs, automobile tops or human heads. If anything is going to be done about reducing some of the humps it should be done before freeze up.

and turnips keep best when packed in moist sand. Cabbages and cauliflower require a circulation of air and are best piled not too deeply on slatted shelves so as to permit rotting. Small members may be suspended from the ceiling by the roots. Celery is most successfully kept by placing upright in boxes and the roots covered with sand and kept moist. Onions should be thoroughly dried in the sun before storing and then laid in baskets and hung up where the air can circulate. Pumpkins and squash demand a high temperature (40-50°) and dry atmosphere with free circulation of air and are usually difficult to store where other vegetables are kept. Apples are one of the easiest vegetables to store and are piled in bulk. The exclusion of sunlight prevents wrinkling and the storing of whole sound tubers encloses very little waste from rotting provided the temperature is kept uniform, preferably around 38 degrees.

made up of a mixture of two or three meals kept before them continuously in a self feeding hopper, together with a supply of cod liver oil. This promote rapid growth and round pullets into laying condition. Ten to twelve per cent of beef scrap may be added to the dry mash. Meat scraps and table refuse can be dampened and fed with meal as a wet mash. A ration such as the above can be continued after the pullets are housed for the winter. The hard grain should be fed in a litter of straw during winter. It is a good plan to feed hard grain sparingly in the morning and give a full feed in the evening. Green feed such as clover leaves, mangels and sprouted oats are of great value as winter feed. Green food in some form is absolutely necessary when the pullets are first housed. The birds should be carefully watched and if any signs of sluggishness appear Epsom salts should be given either in the water or wet mash. Birds showing signs of disease should be removed from the pen immediately and either treated or destroyed. Regularity in feeding and careful attention to details in the care of the flock are essentials in winter egg production.

Bruderheim held its annual school fair Friday. The weather was all that could be desired and there was a large attendance of children and adults. Many of the schools brought their children in a body in decorated floats. The class of exhibits was good and the entries were numerous. The actual school work showed a high grade of art on the part of the pupils and teachers. The poultry exhibit was unusual, hogs stood out well in number and quality, being exceedingly uniform and smooth and well suited to the purpose of the bacon type. Calves were very fairly represented. Although there have been some very heavy frosts recently the vegetable exhibit was good. Flowers also played a prominent part and were greatly admired. Judges sent by the department judged the exhibits. A program of sports was also run off. The schools entered in the fair were: Walker (all rooms), Bruderheim, Mansfield, Radom, Deep Creek, Grimsby and Parkside. A dance was held in the evening.

Diphtheria

Diphtheria is essentially a children's disease, striking its victims chiefly during childhood and to a less extent in early adult life. It is always a serious disease, and not uncommonly a fatal one. It frequently kills, maims or cripples its victims, chiefly young children. Its onset is insidious. There is no alarming rush, such as is seen in smallpox or scarlet fever to indicate the malignancy of the disease. There is ordinarily no prostration at the beginning, such as is seen in pneumonia to indicate the seriousness of infection.

A small grayish white patch on the child's throat is usually the first sign of the disease, and at this stage the child does not appear to be very sick. In some instances the first indication of illness is an obstruction to breathing caused by the growth of diphtheric membrane in the child's breathing passages. At this time the choking, gasping efforts to breathe terrify the child and the parents, but unfortunately the stage for favorable treatment has passed.

During the years 1920-1924 inclusive there were 8,906 cases of Diphtheria in Alberta. Of these 567 or 15 per cent died from the disease.

Of those who died 43 were under one year, 155 were between 1—4 years old and 351 were between 5 and 14 years of age. 94 per cent of the deaths occurred in children under 15 years.

The gravity of the situation, however, is not due alone to the substantial number of deaths. While an attack of diphtheria is often mild and associated with comparatively little prostration;—except in those cases in which the growth of the diphtheria membrane in the air passages literally chokes the child to death,—the complications which accompany, and follow diphtheria frequently blive serious consequences. Various types of paralysis may occur which leave the child crippled for life; mastoiditis, abscesses of the nose and throat, and other septic infections, may cause prolonged or permanent disability; heart disease, and other chronic complications which may persist for a long period—not uncommonly for life —may result in a seriously handicapping disability in later life.

CO-OPERATION IS KEYNOTE ALBERTA MOTOR LEAGUE AND GOOD ROADS ASSN.

New Organization Plans to Further Better Highway Work; Road Marking, Touring Service, Publication of Official Magazine and Emblems for Members Will Be Part of Program

Automobile owners of Alberta are now provided with effective and practicable means of furthering their own interests, obtaining protection in the way of legislation, advancing the cause of better roads and building up a mutual service organization which will offer the same facilities that any commercial enterprise is able to provide at greatly reduced cost.

This new organization is known as the Alberta Motor League and Good Roads association. Its keynote is co-operation. Its benefits and privileges will extend to every part of the province. Its members will be affiliated with the united automobile associations of the United States.

The Alberta Motor League was formally launched last active organization work at a meeting held in Edmonton recently. Representatives were present from many parts of the province, and all expressed the utmost enthusiasm in promoting the interests of such a mutual service organization. Some months previously the charter for an association of this nature was obtained by automobile club officers of Edmonton and Calgary, and as a result of the recent meeting the league will henceforth be an important factor in the life of the province.

Foremost in the plans of the organization will be the furthering of better highway work in the province. Legislation affecting the interests of automobile owners will also be looked after. Emblems will be supplied all members and as rapidly as possible steps will be taken to supply road maps and touring information, together with a magazine or publication to represent the league as an official organ. Tourist traffic will be encouraged. Road marking will be carried out as extensively as possible, and the organization looks forward to the time when the membership will warrant the establishment of a touring service and many other benefits to members.

The important public service work now being carried on by the local automobile clubs of Edmonton and Calgary will be continued as subsidiary organizations of the Alberta Motor League, and encouragement will be given to the formation of local clubs

The Evolution Of An Empire

The forthcoming Imperial Conference in London to be attended by members of the British Government and the Premiers of all the self-governing Dominions of the Empire is attracting more widespread interest than any of the preceeding Conferences of a like character, with the possible exception of the one held during the war. Some writers and public men seem to think that notable changes in the relationships now existing between Great Britain and the Dominions will result but there is little ground on which to base such belief

Since the secession of the American colonies and the American Revolutionary War of 150 years ago, the changing relationship between Great Britain and her overseas possessions has been one of evolution, not revolution. Great changes have taken place, it is true, but the process has been so gradual and all effected so peacefully, that they were hardly noticed at the time. Perhaps the most significant change of all took place when the overseas British Dominions became members of the League of Nations on terms of equality with the Motherland and other nations.

But this gradual development of a more autonomous and independent status has in no sense resulted in any weakening of the Imperial tie nor in the solidarity of the Empire. The effect has rather been to add strength to the individual links and to the union embracing them all. The term "Empire" as applied to the British Empire is, in fact, a misnomer. Rather the phrase favored and so frequently used by His Majesty, King George V., more correctly describes what is commonly referred to as the British Empire, namely, the British Commonwealth of Free Nations.

Evolutionary, not revolutionary, tendencies are still at work throughout the British connexion, and it is to be expected that the approaching Imperial Conference will assist to clarify the atmosphere in regard to some matters. India is steadily moving forward along the path to self-government, and Great Britain is not only willing but anxious to enlarge the powers of the people of India just as rapidly as the people become capable of wisely exercising those powers. The history of India will be largely a duplicating of the evolution which has taken place in other parts of the Empire.

In South Africa the people appear to be somewhat influenced about the flax, and there is a considerable body of opinion in favor of a distinctive national flag for South Africa other than the Union Jack. But those who are most insistent for such an emblem nevertheless disavow any desire for or intention of a severance of the tie which binds them to Britain and the other British Dominions.

Canada is moving in the direction of appointing its own Minister to the United States with a view to having matters pertaining to Canada and the United States dealt with directly by the two countries concerned rather than through the intermediary of the British Ambassador and the Government in London. But, here again, there is not the slightest wish nor intention of severing or even weakening one tiny strand of the tie binding Canada to the Empire.

Among people in all the Overseas Dominions the view is entertained by many that the present procedure of carrying appeals from the Supreme Courts of the Dominions to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council in London might well be abandoned, and the overseas Courts made supreme in fact as well as in name, thus saving lengthy delays and large expense in obtaining final judicial decisions. But advocates of this change are amongst the most loyal of British subjects.

In the evolutionary process already referred to, one of the most significant changes has been in treaty making powers. Formerly, and not so many years ago, all treaties had to be negotiated and signed by the British Government, although they might have reference solely to one particular Dominion. Furthermore, all treaties made by Great Britain were binding on all the Dominions with or without their consent. Now, however, Canada makes treaties direct with foreign countries and they are signed in the name of the King by Canadian ministers. If Canada and the United States desire to make an agreement regarding fisheries, or some boundary matter, the two countries do so and the resultant treaty is signed by Canadian ministers.

Furthermore, the British Government no longer makes treaties with foreign countries affecting the Dominions without first consulting them and such treaties are submitted to the Canadian Parliament for their approval and adherence.

Kipling well describes present Empire relationships: "Daughter am I in my Mother's house, but mistress in my own." The British family its holds, invisible, almost intangible, silken in texture, but strong as steel. Changing times call for other changes, in customs, methods, procedures, but the family remains intact, sympathetic, co-operative, loyal and affectionate, working for a common aim, proud of each other's achievements, united by a common bond, and joyfully yielding allegiance to one sovereign. Thus does the British Empire grow, prosper and triumph.

CHILDHOOD AILMENTS

Can be Quickly Banished With Baby's Own Tablets

The ailments of childhood are many but the remedy that are due to poor income and one cause only—disordered condition of the stomach and bowels. To quickly banish any of the minor ailments of babyhood and childhood the mother must see that the baby is regular and the stomach must be sweetened.

No other medicine for little ones has had such success as Baby's Own Tablets. They banish constipation and indigestion, break up colds and simple fevers; correct diarrhoea and colic and promote healthful sleep by regulating the functions of the stomach and bowels. Concerning them Mrs. L. M. Brown, Nanaimo, B.C., writes:—"I cannot speak too highly of Baby's Own Tablets as I have found them unequalled for childhood ailments."

Baby's Own Tablets are sold by medicine dealers, or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Makes Coffee Truly Delicious

A Rich, Golden, Appetizing Cup of Coffee is Appreciated

Much coffee is spoiled in the making, but it is safe to say more is spoiled in the serving. This is because comparatively few people use real cream, figuring, perhaps, that its daily use is rather a luxury. Of course, one can rob the milk bottle, by taking off the top milk, but even that is not calculated to give one the rich, golden, appetizing cup of coffee that makes this beverage truly a nectar. More and more housewives are serving Eagle Brand Condensed Milk with coffee, for the reason that it is economical and because it creates a beautiful flavor, being so rich and creamy. There is the further advantage that it saves sugar, for condensed milk contains sugar and the milk and sugar are so perfectly blended that the proportions are absolutely right. Usually, the condensed milk is placed right on the table, being served from the can, which, if desirable, may be set in a marmalade jar.

Turkey Knocks First Statue

With Its Unveiling All Koranic Laws Pass Into Oblivion

Mohammedan tradition prohibiting representations of the human form has been broken with unveiling of a statue of Mustapha Kemal Pasha, President of Turkey, and one of the outstanding figures in Near East politics.

This is the first statue ever erected in Turkey. It represents the President in European dinner jacket, bare headed and with arms akimbo.

The breaking of Koranic tradition against statues of men and women preceded the going into effect of Turkey's new civic code adopted by the National Assembly six months ago. With this code all Koranic laws passed into oblivion.

Dakota Settler Likes Saskatchewan

Says Any Farmer Who Wants to Work Can Make Money in the West

Mr. W. J. Hipp gives the following statement of his experience as a settler in Saskatchewan to the Canadian Government Agent at Grand Forks, N.D. "I take great pleasure in telling you what I think of the Canadian Northwest. I purchased three quarters of land in 1921 in the Wood Mountain country, southwest of Moose Jaw. There were 150 acres broken on the farm. In 1922 I operated the farm myself and produced 4,000 bushels of wheat, built a fence around half a section, also a granary, garage and stable.

In 1923 I rented the farm, and broke 12 acres. In 1924 I broke 25 acres. In 1926 I built a barn with a hay loft 24 by 32, also a stone and a half house, 18 by 22, with full basement, and kitchen 18 by 14. The house is plastered and back plastered, cistern and varnished inside. All buildings are well painted. I also bought one more quarter section.

"The farm has produced enough to pay for all buildings and still have $2,500 net profit in addition to paying for the farm itself.

"I claim this country is the garden of Saskatchewan. Any farmer who wants to work can make money in this country.

Clifford—"It's a pretty good looking bank, but $15 seems high to it in good condition?"

Harold—"Why's it's in the pink of condition."

New Volume Is Written Describing The Wonders And Beauties Of Canadian Scenery

Can you imagine a span of a thousand million years or so? If you can, try to picture to yourself the place where the Rocky Mountains now stand, with their snow-crowned peaks uncertain into the sky, at the bottommost depths of an inland sea.

If you know how the Rockies were formed? By what Titanic forces these great masses were crumpled and folded and lifted high in the air?

It is a most interesting story that geology tells us concerning the formation of this gigantic range (being the age) some before the human race dwelt upon the earth, and only one of the many other fascinating things that one learns about one's own land, in "Picturesque America," a delightful volume, superbly illustrated with fine photographs and charmingly written, which has been published recently by "The Rotarie and Playgrounds of America," New York.

It is a Canadian book, and not one its deserved to Canada, that little book, which describes so clearly and well, the wonders and beauties of the parts and beauty spots of North America, should give ever more than one quarter of its space to Canada's grand playground. Yet, it cannot be denied, remembered that her parks are unique in their magnificence of form and beauty of color, in the wealth of wild flowers and wild creatures, and in their possession of great virgin forests and vast plains as yet unexplored.

The National Parks of Canada are 14 in number and range in area from a few square miles to 1,000 square miles. In the many they are to be found in the western part of the country, while the three most beautiful Rocky Mountain parks, Banff, Yoho and Glacier, lie along the main line of the Canadian Pacific Railway.

Many well known writers, such as Robert Sterling Yard, Zane Grey, Mary Roberts Rinehart, Henry Van Dyke, Charles Lummis, Arthur Stringer, Mary Caroline Davies, and J. B. Harkin have contributed to this volume, which maintains a high standard of literary quality throughout. Verses of nature by equally well-known poets are scattered throughout, and there is added a complete index and bibliography. Hence besides the charm of the book it is invaluable as one of reference. It would seem that its purpose—to create better homes and thus better appreciated the scenic marvels of America's wonderlands, must be accomplished.

"So you and Harry aren't going to be married this month?"

"No, not for a while, I guess. You see, he paid a year's dues to the bachelor's club, in advance."

Synthetic Sunshine

Obtaining Food From the Light of the Sun and Nitrogen of the Air

The world need never go hungry so long as the sun shines. So the chemists have declared at the Institute of Biochemistry at Williamstown, Mass., Chemists, and other scientists, so it must be so.

Food in the future, it appears is to be obtained from the light of the sun and the nitrogen of the air. Proteins and carbohydrates, those elements of nutrition which you hardly can compose getting in a good dinner whether you like them or not—will probably be made in the factory rather than raised on the farm. "Thirty acres in a factory the size of a city block can produce in the form of yeast as much food value as 1,000 acres yielding on 75,000 acres under ordinary agricultural conditions." These words of good cheer come from the same wise men who recently promised to do away with manure and all fields by methods of extracting petroleum from coal shale. What the 370 unprovided farmers would be doing, and whether they would like their food in the form of yeast, they did not say. Here, then, Ottawa is such quantities that capitalists of moderate means might be induced

While the results are not considered commercial, the experiments being now conducted for only one year, a table published shows that better yields followed the Biological treatment than the grain as supplied with power machines, against only diseases and heavy and late blight.

Cold Currents Along French Coast Found to be Responsible

The French marine research vessel La Tanche has just found out why sardines leave home.

The problem has been bothering French fishermen for many years, for the commercial success of the sardine fishing industry depends largely on the regularity with which these fish appear in their accustomed haunts. Now it is known that the sardines leave the shores of the French coast when the cold currents from the north are replaced by warm currents from the south.

Boating vs. Spraying The Potato

Report of Experiment Undertaken at Fredericton, N.B.

The report for 1926 of the Dominion botanist is particularly worthy of study and confutation by every agriculturist and grower of any sort of products. It is a report of rare meagre humorousness, covering records of investigation and research experiments of practically every disease considered by philanthropical research connected with the Dominion Experimental Farm system. Mr. D. M. Mc. Field plant pathologist in charge, at Fredericton, N.B., deals largely with diseases affecting the potato among other things he tells of a valuable experiment carried out to test the relative efficiency of various dusts as compared with spray mixtures, about which there is considerable diversity of opinion.

A field of four and three-quarters was divided into three plants of equal area. The land was of a rough fertility and apparently uniform throughout. Certified Green Mountain potatoes were reproduced with Liquid Bordeaux was applied by means of a power sprayer with a four-row rotary nozzle boom and Bordeaux dust and copper carbonate dust by means of a Niagara traction crop duster provided with a drag carrier. Forty were made to apply the dust and spray mixtures—the comparison and application of which are given in tabular form in the report, which is to be had free on application to the Publications Branch, Ottawa, in such quantities that copies of moderate number might be secured.

While the result are not considered conclusive, the experiment being but one conducted for only one year, a table published shows that better yields followed the Biological treatment than the grain as supplied with power machines, against only diseases and heavy and late blight.

Discovery Is Made That Rust Spores Are Spread By Winds Over Great Distances

An Important Industry

Export of Flower Seeds from B.C. is Rapidly Increasing

The culture of cereals promises to become an increasing industry in Brit ish Columbia. Two scrubby fans has been combined to Vancouver Island, where it has been conducted success fully at Saanichton, Sidney, Cowgan Hill, Duncan, Royal Oak Victoria and other points. It is now likely to be extended to the mainland.

The production of flower seeds has become an important industry in this province. Every year a greater quantity of seed is shipped from British Columbia, and England in particular is coming to depend to a greater extent on the warm climate and rich soil of Vancouver Island for its supply of seeds. Millions of flowers blossom all over England here germinated from seeds produced in Canada

The commercial production of sweet peas used to particular has made great strides in the last few years, and a considerable trade has developed with local houses in England. Sweet peas grown on Vancouver Island by an English gardener reached such perfection that he sent a sample to the old country in response some of the same date order for half a ton of seed

Exports of Canadian seed of all kinds in the last three years would have been respectively worth $6,547,

$10,211,091 and $16,792,10

Filming Clouds

American Moving Picture Concern Goes Abroad to Get Cloud Effects

The resources of the cinema in unity in the States I well know, but a new phase commences when the cinema people decided to "run clouds" Hollywood is an ideal place for film making, owing to the even sky and bright sunshine, but these are pictures which need cloud scenes, and in one photo there is, is often necessary for the photographer to go far afield for his effects, what time the release of the film is delayed. To overcome this difficulty, and so have a "reserve of clouds," the Metro-Goldwyn Mayer company have decided to have a man specially engaged in "shooting" cloud scenes, and the cultivated records will be kept, in their humidity line, at the headquarters of the firm for use as and when required. Population Increase

An average increase of nearly five per cent in the population of twenty federal electoral districts in Manitoba, Saskatchewan, and Alberta, as compared with 1921 figures, is shown by the quinquennial census of the three prairie provinces, taken as on June 1, 1926. The total population of these twenty electoral districts is given as 903,826, contrasted with 735,366 in 1921. This announcement is made in a preliminary statement of population recently issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

Immigration And Industrial Production

By C. W. Peterson

Every now and then objections are raised to policies having for their object an increase in Canada's population, on the grounds that we have not yet completely solved our industrial unemployment problem and, therefore, should not add to our present difficulties. Such objections are based on a complete misapprehension. They would undoubtedly be valid in fully developed, overpopulated countries but that line of reasoning cannot consistently be applied to a new country like Canada, which hardly placed on a basis will create employment for from one to two additional families in exports through its own resumption of commodities, machinery and the like and through protecting the raw matter of urban industry.

The recent European war and its aftermath brought home to the world a multitude of strange economic facts, many of them as old as the hills, but up to that time wholly unrecognized. One of the outstanding lessons taught mankind was that there is absolutely no limit to the amount of work to be done in this world, or to the amount of business to be developed. The truth is that over production is impossible. The purchasing power of every country lies in its own power of production and the more each country produces, the greater may be its trade with other countries, and the more they all produce together, the greater the variety of comforts and necessities available for the world's population. We have now even approached within measurable distance of satisfying reasonable human wants leave alone over supplying them.

What Canada, and many other countries, has suffered from during recent years, and what has given rise to general unemployment, is not over-production, but unbalanced production. While Canada's population has been unequally distributed, our aggregate working force has been, and still is, vastly below minimum national requirements. With millions of acres of the world's richest agricultural lands lying idle and undeveloped, and the world clamoring for food, it is pure denial to harbor an unemployment problem. Widespread unemployment under such conditions is prima facie evidence of bankrupt statesmanship in so far as sufficient intelligence and energy have been expended on the solution of a problem which obviously lends itself to correction by well known and proven methods, namely, the augmentation of our productive, agricultural population, which would speedily find full time employment for our industrial plant.

The ease with which corns and warts can be removed by Holloway's Corn Remover is in strongest recommendation. Try it and prove this.

PROBABLY NO OPPOSITION TO KING MINISTERS

Ottawa.—Conservative political observers expressed the opinion that there will probably be no opposition by their party to the re-election of any of the Liberal ministers at the coming by-elections. He expressly charged the people to remember all the words of the law which he had given them, and to command their children to keep the law.

Old Manuscripts Found

Unknown Poems Of Persian Poet Discovered In India

Omar, a Persian poet and astronomer, died in the first quarter of the twelfth century.

Russian Returns As Envoy For Soviets

Seeks British Gold For Rehabilitation Of Russian Industry

London.—The return of Leonid Krassin to London as soviet envoy is thought to make the beginning of a new phase of Anglo-Russian relations. M. Krassin, as he admitted in a previous interview with the British press comes seeking money for the rehabilitation of Russian industry and as he is a keen business man he realizes it cannot be obtained without assurances of repayment for the repayment now only of the new, but the old debts are also involved.

His return is due to the culmination of a long series of secret negotiations with persons who, while not directly representing the commercial British Government, are in close touch with it. The conservative government is very loth to resume friendly relations with Russia for the sake of the Russian market, which it is certain does not to-day exist. If the Labor party should come into power the resumption of relations with England is long delayed. However, Prime Minister Baldwin will invite M. Krassin to further parley, at any rate of the old debts. It is believed Russia is now willing to do this if not called on to pay too much and too soon.

The British also are disposed to insist on some guarantee that Russia will cease to interfere in the domestic affairs of Great Britain, and is willing to give a guarantee not to interfere in Russia. The Soviet Kassin must promise to cease financing labor troubles in England.

London.—Sir Alan Cobham, upon whom the honor of knighthood was conferred a few days ago in recognition of the famous aviator's series of world record flights, will visit the Western Canada soon—time in the near future. It is stated in reliable quarters here that Sir Alan is planning a trans-Canada survey flight in which he will visit many many points in the Dominion. The exact route has not been set for this projected trip, but it is said to be on the southern flight as originated by the British ace for the near future.

The Daily Express today said that Cobham was contemplating a transcontinental flight and that he would likely follow a lecture tour through out North America. Plans for this flight have been under consideration for some time, the paper stated.

Sir Alan Cobham but recently returned from a survey flight over Africa to Australia, in which he proved conclusively the feasibility of such long distance flying if experienced aviators and worthy planes are employed.

Steamship Lines Feel German Competition

Liners Being Taken Off New York To Hamburg Run

Montreal.—Competition from German steamship lines operating to New York from Hamburg, is said to be responsible for the projected withdrawal in the near future of several British companies from that run. The White Star line, which operates the Atlantic Transport Line, is able to Halifax and New York, retains its long established run to Hamburg, took this step off the run after her departure from Hamburg October 27. The liner will be employed on the Antwerp, Boulogne-Southampton, Halifax New York service, her sailing from New York October 30 being direct to Antwerp and the next from Europe will be out of the Belgian port.

The 8S8 Andania of the Cunard Line has been on the Hamburg, Southampton, Cherbourg, Halifax and New York service, but it is expected she will be taken off on the completion of her schedule which calls for a sailing on October 24 and another on December 1 to Halifax and New York.

Wheat Pool Payment

Final Payment On 1926 Wheat To Be Made Soon

Winnipeg.—Several millions of dollars will be distributed among the farmers of Western Canada, members of the Wheat Pool, shortly.

The final payment on 1926 wheat delivered by members of the pools in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta probably will be announced early this week. A. J. MacPhail, president of the Saskatchewan Wheat Pool, and vice president of the Co-operative Selling Agency, will announce the date from his Regina office, according to information secured at the Manitoba Pool offices.

Mr. MacPhail is the first official now in Canada, the others being in or en route to Australia. The Canadian Pool has already made three payments totalling $1.40, while many farmers are now enjoying the initial payment of 41 on the 1926 crop. Deliveries of the 1926 crop, however, are far behind last year's, owing to the wet weather. The total deliveries in Manitoba Canada so far this year are about 40,000,000 bushels. Very little grain has been received from Alberta, but Saskatchewan has contributed 25,000,000 bushels, and Manitoba about 15,000,000.

LORD BYNG IS INTERVIEWED ON REACHING HOME

Southampton.—Lord and Lady Byng arrived at Southampton on board the Empress of France, which was gaily decorated with bunting. The former Governor-General of Canada and Lady Byng were officially welcomed by the mayor and sheriff, and then his lordship received a large group of newspapermen.

One of the first questions put to Lord Byng by the press representatives was with regard to his constitutional power as Governor-General, which question was raised recently in connection with the political situation at Ottawa.

"I think we had better leave that alone," said Lord Byng with a laugh. "Everything turned out very satisfactorily. If the question is raised at all again it will be at the Imperial conference, but at the present moment there is nothing one can say about it. As I say, it all worked out very well."

Asked about the recent Dominion general election Lord Byng expressed the opinion that the result of the election was mainly due to the popularity of the Robb budget, with reduced taxation, and to three good harvests.

Lord Byng spoke with enthusiasm of the prospects which Canada open for British people who were prepared to work hard there

Some of the newspapermen asked Lord Byng about the recent visit of the states of Canada and the possibility of the fusion of the Dominion with the United States.

"There are extremists in every part —imperial extremists and Canadian autonomy extremists," His Lordship replied

"In the union of Canada with the United States possible" was another question asked Lord Byng.

"A union of friendliness must certainly," replied Lord Byng, who added that he was proud to have the most incessant catechism with characteristic patience and good humor. "You need not worry about Canadian extremists on this side of the ocean," he added.

Touching on his relations with the politicians at Ottawa, Lord Byng said "I have been Governor-General when Conservative and Liberal ministers have been at the head of affairs, and my relations never have been angling but of any extremely friendly nature with everybody."

Their sessions are private and deal only with liquor administrative methods.

Genuine Powers Of Sun Pondered.—The curative powers of the sun's rays are to be greatly increased during the next year, according to Dr. Edison Pettit of Mount Wilson Observatory here. He has announced the he has found that the ultraviolet rays of the sun, the part of the sunlight that cures some diseases and also causes sunburn, are to be more numerous in 1927. This is caused, he said, by the increasing spots on the sun.

of the league in other centres of the province where sufficient membership can be obtained to make the local unit effective. Membership from anyone in the province will be accepted at a minimum of $5.00 per annum. Where local clubs exist, they will retain $2.00 of the annual fee and remit $2.00 to the central office.

It was unanimously agreed that the Alberta Motor league would become a member of the Canadian Automobile association, at the suggestion of Dr. P. E. Doolittle, president of the C.A.A., who has worked indefatigably for the building of the trans-Canada highway. He outlined the advantages to be obtained by Alberta members travelling elsewhere in Canada and in the United States by being affiliated with the national organization. One Ontario member saved $486 in actual fees and saved thousands of dollars in deposits and a considerable amount of time and worry when touring Europe through his membership card in the C.A.A.

President C. H. Grant, of the Edmonton Automobile and Good Roads association, is provisional president of the new league, with A. B. Mackay, president of the Calgary Auto club, secretary. Steps will be taken by the directorate to establish various districts of the league throughout the province and to initiate an active drive for membership during the next few months, each membership to run for twelve months from the date received.

Here and There

Victoria—Twenty head of grade Oxford ewes, two years old, from Maple Island, have been sold to Japanese buyers. This makes a new departure in the sheep industry of the island, being the first of any home production to be sent to Japan.

It is estimated that southern British Columbia will produce 2,217,600 boxes of apples this season, this is about 700,000 boxes more than last year's production. Arrangements are being made for a heavy export business to Great Britain, as well as to the Prairies and Eastern Canada.

A regular aerial mail service has been established between Osaka in Japan and Darien in South Manchuria, two Japanese built "Kwantchi" planes being used. This service is daily, and is being sponsored by the "Osaka Mainichi" one of the largest newspapers in Japan whose aviators recently flew to Berlin.

Moose Jaw—One thousand head of Western Canadian light horses purchased for the Soviet government were assembled here. The horses, which are all light, are being bought for the Russian government with Russian funds placed in Canadian banks for that purpose. A similar purchase was made last year and the repeating of the order indicates satisfaction with the Canadian stock.

The increase in the net profits of the Canadian Pacific Railway for the first eight months of the year ending August 31st is $6,814,000.76, according to a financial statement issued at the headquarters of the Canadian Pacific at Montreal. This is the increase in profits as compared with the profits for the same period in 1929. The increase in the gross earnings over the same period in 1929 is stated at $13,691,864.57.

CANADA'S NEW GOVERNOR-GENERAL ARRIVES

1. Crowds shouting at Viscount Willingdon shown on board Empress of Scotland, just prior to the vessel sailing for Canada. 2. Viscount Willingdon, Canada's new governor-general, and Lady Willingdon, on board the Empress of Scotland. 3. Viscount Willingdon, accompanied by Their Excellencies, which entered harbour yesterday. 4. Viscount Willingdon, Governor-General designate of Canada, who arrived at Quebec on board the Empress of Scotland and is now on his journey by Viscount Willingdon.

Their Excellencies Viscount and Viscountess Willingdon made many friends on their voyage from England to Quebec on board the Canadian Pacific flagship Empress of Scotland, when His Lordship came here in October to become Governor-General of the Dominion. They paid visits to all parts of the vessel chatting with new settlers for Canada and presiding at the various functions that take place aboard ship on an ocean voyage. Among their friends were Miss Claire Turner, Miss, who was friends with everyone except perhaps a young Chow who looked to him as though he might develop into a dangerous rival.

Canada's chief executive's Governor-General had a fine reception when the ship docked at Quebec. He struck a tactful note when he told the French Canadians that he was of Huguenot descent from the Normans and that French blood flowed in his veins equally as in those of the British race. "I am the descendants of our two races have worked for many years under the British Crown for a common purpose and object, namely, to promote the welfare and prosperity of the people of this wonderful country."

First impressions are vital in establishing successful relations and perhaps no Governor gave an excellent effect as one of His Lordship's speeches showed the Empress of Scotland, which was broadcast all over Canada. In it he said: "I wonder if I may venture to add one word of rather an intimate and personal character. It is that—and I think all my fellow-passengers the best of good luck in the future and all health and happiness they can possibly expect and obtain, may I ask these one and all to give an occasional thought—and I hope a kindly thought—to the new Governor-General who has been given responsibilities for the British Empire in the great Dominion of Canada."

That is the true democratic note, sounded with modesty and feeling and sure of an unreserved response throughout the length and breadth of Canada.

tion then felt that a relatively easy conquest of the disease would result. In that, they were mistaken. Diphtheria antitoxin is effective as a cure only if given early. The clinical diagnosing feature about antitoxin has been its limited usefulness when given to prevent diphtheria. It protects a child against the disease for two or three weeks. The immunity subsistent is not held long in the body, and the protection passed on susceptible to the disease as before. Diphtheria, itself, does not render the person having had it immune from it second or even a third attack.

Toxin-Antitoxin and Toxoid

Happily, new power for dealing with the situation became available. Toxin-antitoxin, the preventive measure against diphtheria, was first discovered accidentally in the course of experiments about thirty years ago. In 1913, Park and Zingher of New York began the immunization of children in a large organized way through the injection of toxin-antitoxin, and its use in this manner has since conclusively demonstrated the effectiveness and harmlessness of the measure. No favorable results have been confirmed in many places in the country and abroad.

Another development of this same late general use, the substance used being called "Toxoid," which is the same as Toxin-Antitoxin except that the method employed in neutralizing the Toxin is somewhat different.

The administration of toxoid is a simple procedure and can be safely performed by any physician. Two hypodermic injections of the substance are given in the arm of the subject at intervals of one month between each injection. It is but recently related to antitoxin. Toxin-antitoxin toxoid will not cure diphtheria. It will prevent it, but the immunity may not last for more than a few months. Once established, the immunity will last for years, and probably for life.

Toxoid Should Be Given Early

Every infant between its sixth and ninth month of age is in the most favorable period to receive immunity against Diphtheria through toxoid. In the New place the child at this age responds most readily to the treatment, and in the second place it is entering upon that period when it is most susceptible to diphtheria, and a time also when fatalities from the disease most frequent.

At this age diphtheria often appears in the form known as laryngeal diphtheria or membranous croup. In this type of diphtheria the child develops a bloody almost from the beginning

A Plea For Happiness

Late Senator David Writes a Sermon in His Will

Interesting it is self revelation is the will of the late Senator David—"literary man of first excellence in Canada," who died recently.

"I must include my sons-in-law in the statement I make regarding my children: I thank them for the sympathy and kindness they have always shown toward me and which I have been happy to find in the home I am passing the last year of my life.

"To all members of my family I make a request for mutual aid, for life in peace and harmony. Happiness on earth consists in great part in giving happiness to those with whom one lives, in being able to exercise and perform offices, often in light and and unconventional manner, in a manner of irritation, in encouraging pride, matter for feeling. Who does not good to be pardoned? Who never makes mistakes?"

As Yvonne moved through her rooms, with a word here and a nod there, her eyes sought a single face. When she failed to find it she spoke to the butler who stood at the post in the reception hall. The man gave her the information she sought.

"Mr. Brandon has just arrived, Madame."

She went at once, stopping only for a subtle challenge in a judge was that day had delivered from his bench, a heavy homily upon the frailty of a modern mother, to a door that led off from the reception hall into a big room which, after the Continental fashion, she called a morning room, reserved for her own exclusive use. Brandon stood by a cabinet with a siphon and glass in his hands. He turned to greet her.

She went directly up to him. He gave her an intimate glance, that not only appraised her, but estimated every artifice of her. For an instant she swayed toward him, yielding 1 percent. But she read in his face that he would not take her in his arms. She was immediately self-possessed. Gayly she fluttered her fingers across her own lips and then touched them, lightly, to his. "Am I pleasing to my lord?" she demanded, dropping him a mock curtsey.

"That's an idle precaution, that question," he replied. "What you really want to know is, are you tempting."

"A woman never asks that," she returned. "She needs no help to satisfy any such curiosity."

"I fancy that point might be argued," he observed, "but we'll compromise. You are very beautiful, which pleases me, and very alluring, which gratifies me. What more shall either of us desire?"

Some quick reply, perhaps a rebinder of the same sort, hovered at her lips, but died unspoken. "Nothing else," she said, "and thank you. It is here done my own attractions justify. I will agree that I have done even more—that I have made two women beautiful, laugh for your satisfaction."

"You mean the girl, of course, But her?"

He looked up at him, steadily. She spoke softly. There was no trace of bitterness, or, even accusation, in her tone, but there was something feline in it. "I believe you are going to lose this girl so pleces, if you can. Whether it is because you do not approve the Indian, or whether you have taken to Hit her up, and you shrewdly want to pull her down, I don't know. I think you are, for admitting such an idle reflection, and puzzled by it.

Brandon, who had greeted the other, brought him to her for presentation. "Mr. Willmore," he said. "You have heard me, and, no, doubt, Miss Manners spoke of him."

Yvonne, with characteristic impulse, gave him both her hands, a gesture which brought a flush into his face. Her voice and smile were warm. "This would be John," she said. "You see I have only heard Joanna call you that. She has been very eager for your coming. She is just about to make her first appearance."

John plainly was ill at ease. His hand-grasp was limp in the hands of him, and for him alone. He was not prepared for this sort of introduction into her new surroundings. Brandon chatted with him easily, and brought up Kenilworth and Dormlister. "They have had brains to be knowing to Miss Manners," he explained. "So far, we are her main circle of acquaintance."

The hands that came down from the balcony suddenly died away, leaving a confusion of voices that ebbs a dance. Already women who shouldn't were champagne and were, with flattered that they do, were giving hints of the effects of it. But, as time drew on and the music had subsided, there was a general commotion, and then a hush. The host man, John among them, stepped through the palm banked doorway and into the larger room. Yvonne, completely beautiful, a striking figure in the shimmer of her black and the sparkle of the diamonds at her throat, stood a few steps up on the stairway. Her voice, silver tinkling in it, floated over the assemblage—the assemblage of those who were good and not so good.

"My friends," she called to them, "I am in a daring mood tonight. Just here, and why, some of you will determine quickly. I am about to present to you something that is very fragile. And new, and fresh, and something eager to be shaped into the best flash some of the day. It is just a girl whom I have taken very close to me and who thinks that she should be like me. Some of you will disagree with her, and, perhaps, plan to make her different. Others will have ideas of their own. I commend her, to all of you—and am curious to know whether it shall be you, or her, who prevails most."

She raised her jeweled hand, while the murmur of wondering voices grew, and gave a signal.

B.C. Editor Apologizes for Recent Delay in Publishing

The most ambitious and hard-working newspaper man in the province has been discovered in the northern parts of British Columbia. A note in the Inverness News, published at Smithers, apologizes for a short delay in the appearance of a recent number of the paper. The editor explains the necessity of the occasion by stating that it is not always easy to get the paper out when you come to consider that he is editor and secretary of the Board of Trade, the Athletic Association, the Public Hall and a member of the Town Council—to say nothing of his duties as secretary of the Fall Fair and about half a dozen other things.

He then naively remarks that in four years the paper has been late twice. The first time was due to a failure in the presses, and the other time he attributes to "sheer laziness." No wonder we are a great race.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN

During the past we have endeavored to give our customers the best possible service in the delivery of milk and cream and wish to continue if the consumers will grant us a little attention and co-operation in respect to returning our empties. The non-return of empties entails a lot of unnecessary expense and inconvenience to us in order to maintain our daily deliveries with safety. We find that a great number of consumers take advantage of the fact that we have made no charge for containers to them (with the exception of breakages) and do not return but put same to other uses.

We will be forced to take the stand of ceasing delivery altogether if our customers' co-operation is withheld.

The Literary News

Following is the school paper, "The Ship of State," which is submitted every two weeks at the Fort Saskatchewan public and high school Literary Society and is edited by Helen Moore, assisted by Gladys Evans, Nan Turner, Viola Barley and Irwin Hutton:

Mr. Poole certainly started something when he suggested the organizing of the Literary Society under the pity system. Hence, according to our honorable president, he should have been an Old Timer. However, the Old Timer sponsor frequently starts something during Latin I period, to his all right. To proceed, our recent political campaign had certainly uncovered a lot of talent which heretofore had been most carefully hidden. The cartoons which nearly ruined the assembly hall door will hardly be termed as the classics of the twentieth century, but they showed a surprising amount of originality. As for the platform committee, as Mr. Markle said, perhaps their speeches won't go down in history with Sir Joseph Howe's, but to the ones who mark them, they are more important than Howe's finest oration. With so many public speakers among our members, we can certainly look forward to interesting programmes during the year.

Due to the short notice given the editor and staff, this edition of the Literary News is rather brief, but the president said that was all to be reported of us this time.

With a dignified president by the name of Lyle.

Our Grade XII representative is a musical madam
With a newly bobbed head—Anita Adam.
Our Grade XI representative, as solid as a rock,
Is none other than tall, genial Ralph Pocock.
Grade X representative, none could be fairer
Than the ever reliable but quiet Vera Grade IX rep. is the cutest was led.
With Aubrey around we'll never be Arnold Mans, as sure as fate,
Will take good care of poor Grade VIII.
Grade VII has chosen a fat little elf,
Who is quite capable of looking after herself.
With this impressive executive no one will dare
To criticize our society in the coming year.

A country clergyman lost his umbrella in church and was very much upset about it. It was not so much the loss of the umbrella which pained him, as he was at pains to explain to his congregation, as the thought that any of his flock would stoop to such a thing.

He addressed the congregation the following Sunday and told them of his loss.

"I do not expect the thief to reveal himself here," he remarked, "but I do hope it will be returned to me in some way. May I suggest that, whoever has it, will throw it over my garden wall tomorrow morning."

The next morning there were twenty umbrellas on his lawn.

SIXTH ANNUAL TEACHERS' CONVENTION OF THE LAMONT INSPECTORATE

The sixth annual Teachers' convention of the Lamont Inspectorate was held in the assembly room of the Fort Saskatchewan school on October 14-15. Ninety-seven teachers registered, this being a considerable increase over the previous year.

Thursday morning session was formally opened when Rev. Mr. Pocock gave the invocation, which was followed by addresses of welcome from the chairman of the Fort Saskatchewan School Board, Mr. E. Flint, and Mr. Markle, president of the convention.

The nomination and resolution committees were then named.

Mr. N. R. Robbins of Pleasant View S.D. gave an interesting paper on "History in Grades VI and VII." Quite a lively discussion followed the reading of this paper.

After a talk by the A.T.A. Sup., Mr. A. J. H. Powell, the session was adjourned.

During the noon intermission an informal discussion on "High School Problems" was carried on in the room of the principal, Mr. Markle.

The afternoon session was devoted to Art. A very instructive and inspiring address on "Art Problems in and VII in relation to the Course of Study," was given by Mr. R. W. Hedley, instructor of art in the Edmonton high schools.

Miss Gladys Reeves, of the "Art League," Edmonton, spoke briefly on her very interesting collection of pictures which were on display in the room of the principal.

In the evening Cyril Weiss, A.C., gave a lecture in the Memorial hall, his subject being "Mountaineering with the Alpine Club of Canada," and was accompanied by lantern slides.

An enjoyable social time followed in the form of a dance, the music for which was supplied by a local orchestra.

Friday morning's session was opened by a talk on "Silent Reading," by Mr. G. S. Lord, M.A. The remainder of the morning was taken up by a series of lectures on Composition in Grades V to VII inclusive. Speakers were Mrs. Pemphrey, Mr. Renwick and Mr. A. J. H. Powell. Discussion followed.

The convention was fortunate in having as their speakers for the afternoon Mr. G. Fred McNally and Mr. M. E. Lazerte, both of Edmonton. Mr. McNally summed up the Composition of Grades V and VI, after which Mr. Lazerte spoke on "The Limitations of Intelligence Testing," thus clarifying the subject.

An interested few, outside the teaching profession attended the last afternoon session.

The "Meeting" was concluded with the Business Session. During this session the reports of the resolution and the nomination committees were read.

The executive named for the coming year were as follows:

Hon. President—Mr. G. S. Lord.
President—Mr. J. W. E. Markle.
Vice-President—Mr. S. Bainbridge.
Sec.-Treasurer—Miss Vera Paterson.
Committee—Mr. Anderson, Chipman; Mr. Meyers, Bruderheim; Mr. Poole, Fort Saskatchewan; Miss T. Hare, Grimsby; Miss Ainsworth, Lamont; Miss Pearson, Josephburg; Mr. C. D. Kelly, Mundare.

The Grandeur of Work

Some very significant statements appearing recently in the newspapers and magazines are worthy of repetition as pointing a moral to all individuals, communities and nations:

Several of these articles comment on the rapid and strong "comeback" stated by Germany. Following the signing of the peace treaty the German people found themselves relieved of the burden of maintaining a huge standing army and a large and expensive navy, but on the other hand, they had sustained the loss of all their colonies, practically all their mercantile shipping, and, like all countries, were faced with the re-organization of their industries, from a war to a peace basis, and, in addition, their whole overseas export trade had been destroyed. Their money was valueless, and they were compelled to borrow enormously heavy taxation to make good their losses and pay their reparation bills. There was only one remedy to their difficulties, and that was for everybody to go to work, and work hard and long. They did so, and now the whole world is witnessing the spectacle of a rehabilitated Germany which is rapidly becoming prosperous.

Italy, too, was impoverished by the war, her money was valueless; her industries in bad shape; her public debt huge, and many of her people of no indolent type, preferring to beg rather than work. It appeared that the whole country would fall into the hands of the Bolshevists. Mussolini arose on a dictator and saved the situation by prohibiting begging, ordering everybody to go to work, and re-organizing the industries of the country and prohibiting the importation of luxuries. As a result a new Italy is arising, presenting a sharp contrast to Russia where industry languishes and is largely destroyed, and unemployment in everywhere rife.

Probably the two most prosperous countries in the world today are the United States and Canada, and they are two countries where everybody, generally speaking, is willing and anxious to work, and, in fact, are at work. The aristocracy of these two nations are the workers, and the men and women to strive and do best up are those who by their energy and ability attain a marked success in life. Sometimes it is even charged that in the United States and Canada the people make too great a god of work, but at least it has brought peace and contentment at home, prosperity, and a high standard of living.

Now turn to another picture and view conditions in a country where, because of strikes and industrial upheavals, approximately two million men are not at work. The prolonged strike of the coal miners in Great Britain is exerting havoc in all directions, and not on the miners and mine owners alone. Following the general strike so called in nearly all industries, and which ended in complete failure, hundreds of thousands of workers, other than miners, were unable to get employment. Unemployment figures increased over May and June but by over 850,000. Everybody in every line is suffering, the standard of living has been lowered, and everybody everywhere have failed to such an extent that the country is faced with a huge deficit this year. Even Canada suffers because of the inability of the people to buy wheat, lumber, cheese, and other products we have to export. The effect of the miners' strike on their fellow workers is further discussed by the announced inability of the Railwaymen's Union to meet the levy made on it in connection with the striking miners. No less than 41,000 railway men have not yet been given employment since the general strike in May last, while 200,000 more are working only three days a week. The same thing is true in scores of industries.

The lesson to be learned from these several sets of conditions is that, much as people may grumble about their work, and being ordered to work, the fact remains that in work lies the salvation of the race. All work and no play may make Jack a dull boy, but no work soon results in moral and physical degeneration. The weaklings of the present age on this continent are the sons and daughters of the rich who lost any incentive to work and who, finding time hang heavily on their hands, indulged in dissipation, dissipation and excesses. They are disconcerted, unhappy, useless, and fill the night clubs and divorce courts.

On the other hand, real happiness is experienced today by the men and women who are doing the world's work. Work is their salvation and their joy, and in their hours of leisure they are both mentally and physically capable of enjoying real fun and enjoyment out of whatever form their recreation may take. They find satisfaction and not infrequently glory in their works of achievement, and at the same time are adding to the advancement of their fellow men and the greatness and prosperity of their country.

There is something radically wrong with the man or woman who objects to working, and who can find no pleasure in it, and the sooner boys and girls are taught the nobility of work, and the satisfaction to be derived from any job well done, the better it will be for themselves as well as for others.

When opened recently a 2,000-year-old jar of perfume found in an Egyptian tomb still retained its fragrance.

A FINE TONIC FOR NERVOUS WOMEN

Proof That Building Up the Blood Will Strengthen the Nerves

If you want strong nerves you must build up the blood. You cannot force yourself by refusing to worry, by taking the proper rest, by exercise and other exercise. Pill medicine take only Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. They build up the blood and thus feed the starved, frayed nerves.

A case of strengthening the nerves after restored by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People is Mrs. Dundee, Peterboro, Ont., who says:—"Some years ago I suffered from a severe nervous breakdown, I doctored with two local doctors, but got no relief. At last I was getting very much weaker all the time. In this condition my husband died. He was a retired military leader, but the man that was needed was a doctor to build up the blood. At the request of Canada, and when Moses was about to lay down his command he chose that Joshua as his successor. The new leader's outstanding characteristic was this, he was a man in whom was the Spirit, qualified to carry out God's will. It is interesting to recall that the name "Jesus" is but the later form of the name "Joshua."

"When a man and woman have the Spirit, God's work can be done. Joshua was not without hearing, we can not get on without inspiration. A man with an idea is but small. When an idea infinitely more than a man with his heavy shoulder it. A fool with a vision, the electric current, can do more than massive cables without it. And yet we go on multiplying our wires and neglecting the current. We plan organizations, and neglect the Spirit. That is the first thing God looked for, for it is the prime necessity of a successful and efficient life." (Dr. J. H. Jowett).

Holland Wages Constant Battle With Sea and Land is Being Reclaimed

Holland, or the Netherlands has long been a classic example of what can be achieved by unremitting industry and thrift. Much of the country has been reclaimed from the sea and re-claimed the procedure is now famous. It became at length necessary to undertake a still bolder work than has been accomplished. Some thirty years ago the north Zuider Zee, which penetrates for many miles into the country, was a mere arm of the sea. Since then it has been converted into a fresh water lake, called the Zuider Zee, was made dry except for a small inland lake, Harlingmeer. Four polders, or tracts of land, have been reclaimed, and the work is going on at a rapid rate. Another polder, the fifth, is now being formed. There is also a scheme for reclaiming a portion of the Haarlem Lake, and the Amsterdam Canal, which runs in a straight line from Amsterdam to the North Sea, is being widened and deepened. Another important work is the construction of the Amsterdam-Rhine Canal, which will connect Amsterdam with the Rhine at Arnhem. The Zuider Zee was made into a work-ing harbor for the Dutch navy during the war.

Canal Explain Phenomena

Area in B.C. Where Vegetation Attains Enormous Proportions

A region on Vancouver Island where moss and fungi attain enormous growth is described by Captain Beckle, the author, who has been engaged in collecting data on the wonders of this part of the Pacific coast.

"Tall marvel," he says, "is easily explained by the possibility of a condition of atmosphere in the water There is another spot on the west coast of Vancouver Island where similar growths as fish and meat, decks not decay, has been thrown upon the ground. This apparent miracle has also probably a simple explanation.

"Again, in another part, the rapacity of the Douglas fir, the most valuable wild zone growing to the size of mammoths, and the wild berries large in proportion to their species, on the Brooks peninsula, are to be found a whole forest of hemlock trees with abnormal branches; the branches grow level towards the base, and thus give off clusters of root-like little branches. The explanation of this phenomenon has yet to be ventured.

He has been seeking to determine whether or not there are evidences of Norse settlements in Labrador to supplement the undoubted evidences of the Greenland occupation. Captain Bernier, for 22 years in the pole, regions north of Canada in his trust, boat Arctic, which plies in the ice entered hundreds of thousands of miles in the deep open waters of Greenland, Labrador, Ellesmere, Ellis, Baffin Land and similar regions, hasn't given up his faith in the future of the Hudson's Bay route to Europe

"I believe it is the route of tomorrow," he told newspapermen in Toronto

"It will be a great thing for the north country, if a railway goes to there and opens it up. I consider the Hudson's Bay railway, the Hudson's Bay route and the establishment of a port on the bay a matter that engages the West closely.

"The people of the West will use the railway, they will be the ones to profit benefit from it They will be able to train his tomato plants. To his astonishment these plants made vigorous growth and the fruit ripening with out the plants of other growers was still green.

Searching for the cause, he said, he came to the conclusion that he had by insulating his copper training wires, brought wireless to his aid in producing them. When he developed this theory by fixing miniature wireless aerials, properly insulated over other growing plants he found condensation of his theory in the results.

The results stimulated growth in a manner which leads to all other growers behind Whether the proximity of the Nottingham broadcasting station may have anything to do with Mr. Dean's remarkable results has yet to be determined.

An Aid To Cultivation

Wireless Has Brought Remarkable Results to Captain Gardiner

There is an allotment at West Bridgford, two miles southeast of Nottingham, England, where compost plants are giving tremendous yields out of all proportion to any other, in the hobby, where half inches loam with giant blossoms, are approaching ten feet in height, and where sweet peas are so prolific that they are the wonder of the district are "The London Mail."

The owner William Dean who is the toilet clerk superintendent of the Nottingham Corporation Tramways, attributes it to the fact that by chance last year he found copper wires, actually insulating them, on which to train his tomato plants. To his astonishment these plants made vigorous growth and the fruit ripening with out the plants of other growers was still green.

To Relieve Catarrh Catarrhal Deafness And Head Noises

If you have catarrh, or catarrhal deafness and have hawking, coughing, clearing your head don't waste time with unknown, unreliable medicines, but go now to your nearest druggist and ask for a 2-ounce package of Parmint Wintergreen Mucilage.

No atomizers, no syringes and nothing to take internally. You simply apply a little of this clean, fragrant balm right into your nostrils, and then remove your head! Tender mucilla quickly opens up, soothes and heals the inflamed parts, and the annoying noises stop, dropping into the throat. This is a simple, pleasant and inexpensive home treatment that anyone bothered by catarrh or catarrhal deafness should give a good trial at once. All good druggists—a trifling cost.

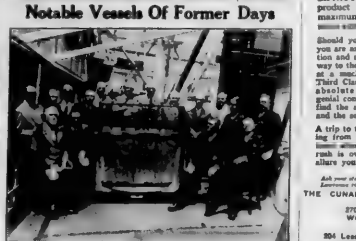
Notable Vessels Of Former Days



Montreal shipping men were reminded of the old days when Montreal harbor was filled with sailing vessels and liners when a model of the good barque Manitoba was presented to the Navy League of Canada on the Cairn-Thompson freighter, Cairnesk, by the Cairn Line of Steamships, Limited. This model, together with a smaller one of the Cairnesk, was formally given to the Navy League's president, Mr. Sam Harris, by Gal. W. L. Gear, vice-president of the Robert Ireford Co., Limited.

The presentation took place on July 27th and attracting it were many well-known shipping men and members of the League. Among the guests were Dr. Milton Hersey, Mr. T. W. Harvey, Mr. T. F. Tilley, Captain Symons, Captain Millett, of the Port of Lennox Authority, who was visiting the Port of Montreal; Captain Rogers, and other commissioners and port workers as well as members of the Press and officials of the Robert Ireford Co.

In the presentation address Col. Gear outlined the growth of Canada export and trade and showed how the Cairn line, owners of the Thomson line, had continuously kept in mind the results-service of the Canadian trade. Every new recruitment was made unequally in the latest improvements on each freighter. He reminded Mr. Sanderson "that the Cairn line of steamships was the first to introduce refrigeration in the Canadian trade, and from the position of pioneers in cold storage facilities on board ship, had maintained a leading place in the realm of ocean freight transportation.

Col. Gear reminded his guests of the difficulties under which shipowners in England were operating their ships and then instanced the fact that the Cairnesk, in order to be ready for the maiden trip to Montreal, had been compelled to proceed to Hamburg to fill her coal bunkers. Since the beginning of the strike in May, it had been difficult to secure sufficient coal in British ports.

In presenting the models to Mr. Harris he stated they were built by the builders of the ships they were standing on—the Cairnesk, and presented to the League as mark of courtesy and recognition of the excellent work of that organization. The latter drop was formerly popular on the St. Lawrence, and for nearly a century timber between Quebec and Southampton. The Cairnesk, the other model, was last in the Montreal-London run.

Mr. Sam Harris replied on behalf of the Navy League of Canada, whose aims and objects he outlined. The models, he stated, would subsequently serve to perpetuate the memory of the debt to the British Navy and Merchant seamen, and keep before them in the present time the fact that Canada is safety. Among the many useful services of the League, he said, was the maintenance of Sea Cadets, who were trained for a life at sea and for any occupations under their auspices. In this manner they were provided with camping facilities.

Plans had been raised to build headquarters for the League somewhere on a museum, in which models such as the present ones, and relics of the historic past, might be displayed to the public and to the sea cadets.

Mr Harris paid tribute to the enterprise of Cairn Line of steamships and referred feelingly and enthusiastically to his meeting Sir William Noble and Major Cairns, heads of the Line when he was in England in 1923 speaking in the interests of the Navy League in Britain.

The models were suitably diamplayed in handsome cases, and are beautifully executed in every respect. Pictures of the cairnesk and Manitoba are also to be displayed around the models, were the ports of call, and the ports of destination on a thorough inspection of the hand some freighter

The Cairnesk is particularly comfortable for a freighter, and has ample accommodation for 12 passengers. Her spick and span interior and luxurious appointments caused a good deal of approval among the visitors. She carries a crew of eighteen all told, 12 officers and 6 men, and possesses one of the finest galley installations, both for receiving and cooking, afloat, and one which would do credit to any giant ocean liner. It is possible to get in touch with both Montreal and Newcastle electrically, from any point in the Atlantic.

Water Has Become Fresh

Causing Fish to Large Numbers to Leave B.C. Coast

Disgusted with sea water which has become fresh and lacking the necessary salt "kick," fish along the British Columbia coast have decamped in vast hordes, seeking the more palatable open ocean.

This extraordinary movement, reported by fishermen at many points, is the result of torrential rains which fell during the last few weeks, particularly during the exposed west coast of Vancouver Island.

Thousands of newly formed rivulets running into the sea, have made it fresh. At least the surface of the ocean for miles has been robbed of all its saltiness Hordes of fish, swimming into the ocean on an annual pilgrimage, have found the fresh water far from their liking in many places they have turned right around and swum out to sea again in search of a more pungent flavor.

CHAPTER XVII.

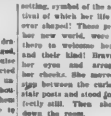
John

To make Joanna's appearance a dramatic entrance, openly stage managed, evidently was an impromptu inspiration of Yvonne's. Joanna had expected nothing of the kind. She waited, unexpecting, in her white and gold box door. Yvonne had said: "Give them time to decide who's to be nice to who. Then the few in whom you will be most interested will take you in hand."

When a maid, hurriedly posted to catch Yvonne's signal, informed Joanna that she was expected, she hurried down the stairs from the upper floor and onto the balcony, from which the grand staircase descended. She was still framed in the doorway when she realized that the people in the great room below were waiting for her; Joanna, their fates uplifted.

She caught her breath. A hand flew nervously to her throat. She would have drawn back, but instantly realized that she was too late. Yvonne caught her glance and with a nod reassured her.

Then exhilaration leaped through her stirred pulses. The carnival spirit of the scene below received her and encompassed her. A new ecstacy of happiness quivered at her finger tips, to her toes and throughout the vibrant warmth of her. This was to be her setting, symbol of the intensifying festival of which her life was to be forever shaped! Those people, people of her new world, were waiting down there to welcome her, amused and their kind! Bravado came into her eyes and arrogance dimpled her cheeks. She moved over to the steps between the curled and carved stair posts and stood for a moment poised, still. Then she blew a kiss down the room



The people in the great room below were waiting for her, Joanna, their fates uplifted.

"A lavolie coming out of her shell," Brandon murmured.

"Used! She carries it off as if she had been born to masquerade!" Ronilworth exclaimed. It was not Reddy's habit to embrace over a woman except in her presence. He considered it a reprehensible waste of energy. Brandon shot a sharp glance at him. He noted that Reddy was rigid, his lips slightly set, and had he breathed heavily.

Joanna moved down the stairs slowly, a subtly greeted figure that was known in its uniqueness to the entrance of its challenge to women in that room who would have yielded much of whatever was precious to them to have caught the attention for a beast of her fascinations—the best of the beauties her confreres arrogance established.

Someone, a man, clapped his hands. Immediately another leaped toward the stairs. Teddy Dunbarton broke away from Brandon and Ronilworth, and John, and sweet past Yvonne, bending [illegible] to the [illegible] Joanna, [illegible] Reddy had reached [illegible] Joanna [illegible] Reddy [illegible] Joanna [illegible] Reddy [illegible] Joanna [illegible] Reddy

What pains us is the caustic and unbalanced way the superintendents, in his letter to the subscribers enclosed in last month's account, refers to it as a slight increase. He has a different perspective to ours regarding a dollar a month increase.

LOCAL NEWS

Will the party who was seen picking up a robe from the road near a hungry which had upset kindly return to Leslie Moore.

Threshing is practically finished in this district and farmers are taking advantage of the beautiful weather by getting as much fall plowing done as possible. Wheat yields were not as catastrophic as was at one time predicted, the crops on summer fallow yielding from twenty to forty bushels to the acre. Considering the growing conditions which prevailed during the summer the wheat has come through wonderfully well, but the same cannot be said of oats and barley. Many farmers will have to buy feed this winter.

A National Literature

Greatness in a nation is to be found in something more than its might as a military or naval power, or in its vast possessions, its financial strength, its industrial development, its world-wide trade and commerce. True greatness is to be found in something more than even the health and physical fitness of its people, their educational attainments, their progressiveness. Real greatness in a nation is to be found in things of a less tangible nature as revealed in the sentiments, the spirit, the inherent character of the people. In these are to be found the soul of a nation.

The nobility of character of a people, the zeal of a nation is reflected in its art, its literature, whether of poetry of prose, its attitude towards religious observances, its sympathetic care of the unfortunate and afflicted.

The greatness of Britain is seen past an truly in the works of Shakespeare, Milton, Dante, Tennyson, Scott and Burns as it is in the deeds of Nelson, Drake, Wellington, Wolfe or Clive. Indeed, it has been such men as these in the first mentioned group who have been the inspiration of those in the second group. The poets and writers of Britain have interpreted the spirit of the races, have caught and aroused the finest and noblest instincts of their fellow men, have lifted high a banner under which Britons the world over have been inspired to serve with unselfish, lasting devotion.

After the passage of centuries the greatness and glory of ancient Greece and Rome rests not upon the mighty achievements of their warriors but upon the beauty and power of their great authors, poets and artists. Their works still live and are an inspiration to the world, while the achievements of the warriors have long since crumbled into dust.

A young and still largely undeveloped country like Canada is naturally deeply concerned with material things. It is a country in the making, with a comparatively small population scattered over an immense territory. As a nation it has only recently passed the half century mark. Its history is yet to be made. Few years then have passed since it became a self-governing state, and in the fateful years of the Great War, Canada tested and proved the character of its people. Great material advancement has been recorded; progress is the national watchword.

But what of the Canada of the future? Are the Canadian people to be content with a form of national greatness based solely on increasing population, greater accumulations of wealth, an enrichment in things material, or do Canadians aspire for their country a greatness in which will be found other and less tangible, but infinitely long perishable, assets of a fine and lofty literature to guide and inspire generations yet unborn?

We believe Canadians do aspire to these higher things, and this belief is supported by a growing recognition on the part of press and people of the importance of encouraging the development of a strong and worthwhile Canadian literature. One concrete evidence of this is found in the increasing interest taken in Canadian books, Canadian poetry, Canadian art and music. Canadian authors' or Canadian book week has just been observed, and observed more generally than in any previous year. In a strictly material sense the same idea may be to promote the sale of books by Canadian authors and publishers, but the main, the underlying idea is to thus provide encouragement to Canada's native born writers and poets, and to make possible a Canadian literature which will be a source of national pride, inspiration and strength.

Canada proved its greatness during the Great War not alone in the trenches, or at Vimy Ridge, or in the making of munitions, the raising of foodstuffs, the financing of huge undertakings, or in the self-sacrifice of its people. Of all the nations in the world, Canada at the same time prepared the finest pictorial record of the war by landing Canadian Official Canadian War Memorial Pictures are without a peer in the world. It is a collection of unsurpassed historical value and beauty, not a glorification of the war, but a pictorial history to acquaint future generations of Canadians with the part they took, the sacrifices, the self-sacrifice of our people, and to inspire them to cultivate and maintain those qualities and virtues which make for true national strength and greatness.

And it was a Canadian who produced the finest piece of poetry to have its inspiration in the Great War,—Colonel McCrae's "In Flanders Fields,"—a never dying message to the people of Canada to hold on high the torch of freedom and keep the faith for which their sons heroically fought and died.

Every Canadian home should have in it some of the best Canadian books, and the number should be added to yearly and to the extent that the finances of the home will permit. It is more wrote of time to explore the prevalence of United States or other foreign books and magazines in Canada. There is one sure way to overcome this difficulty, and to promote the healthy growth of Canadian publications and encourage Canadian authors, and that is to commence the establishment of a small home library of Canadian books and to add to it as rapidly as possible. By so doing every Canadian can help in a very direct way in building up a strong and worthwhile Canadian literature which will prove to be a very real source of national strength.

Plan Unusual Flight

Aerial Trip World by Way of Poles is Latest Idea

A despatch to the Exchange Telegraph from Copenhagen says a round-the-world flight by way of the North and South Poles is being discussed among members of the Amundsen-Ellsworth Polar expedition, which flew across the North Pole last May, in the dirigible Norge.

This statement is credited to Dr. Finn Malmgren, meteorologist and oceanographer on the Polar flight and a close friend of Amundsen.

Dr. Malmgren believes the world flight feasible with an aeroplane having eight motors, but says the normal plane have not been formulated.

War On Rheumatism

International Society Has Been Organized to Combat It

Rheumatism costs the world as much as tuberculosis in loss of wages and labor, according to a report to the American Medical Association. The malady is much more important economically than is generally believed and an international society to combat it has been organized through the action of an association of physicians in the Netherlands.

This society is about to issue a world wide rheumatism questionnaire to collect information about the causes, climatic, and social conditions and other factors that relate to the prevalence of the affection. These data will be used as a basis of scientific studies to determine better methods for its treatment and cure.

Safety Of Railway Travel

Only Small Percentage of Accidents Occur on Canadian Roads

The safety of railway travel in Canada is again shown in a report issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics, covering the year 1925. For every billion passengers carried, 1,000 were killed in that year only 1.7 were killed and 127.5 injured. In other words there were 1 in passengers killed and 74 injured in 1925 and 874 injured out of a total of 41,458,894 passengers carried a distance of 2,910,700,647 miles, or one passenger killed in every 24 billion carried and one injured out of every 110,000 carried.

Light And Sight

Glare More Harmful to Vision Than Insufficient Light

Investigations in the question of light to the ability to see well was recently undertaken by the British government, resulting in the discovery that glare is essentially more harmful than insufficient illumination. Tests made in factories proved that increased illumination, with a minimum of glare, greatly increased the output of work.

Immense Floods of Golden Grain From Western Prairies Now Pouring Through Lake Terminals

At the port townsends, particularly of Port Arthur and Fort William, the Canadian wheat harvest is literally poured through the greatest grain handling equipment in the world. Here a wonderful Niagara of pure gold, such as the Ottawa Citizen. There are 50 such grain elevators looking out over Thunder Bay at the Canadian head of Lake Superior. They contain 64,795,- 000 bushels of grain. Most of Canada's 400 million bushel wheat crop in 1926 will be handled by these elevators as 2,878,000 has been here (April through) in one day. For miles back into the country the long grain trains descend from Port Arthur and Fort William. More than 270,000 cars of grain from western points have been dispatched during the year. At one Port Arthur elevator, the railroads picked up by electrical tipping machines, which empty the grain into boats in the time it takes to tell about it. It is a triumph of mechanical engineering. As the millions of bushels of grain flow through the wheat can be separated from oats and other cereals which sometimes get mixed up in the threshing at the farm. The grain is then run into an extracted, leaving nothing but the whole grain to pass through. There is special machinery for handling damp wheat, and for drying it. Nothing that can be salvaged is thrown away. The stray ears of wheat that have been missed by the thresher on the prairie are garnered in for fresh log at the terminal elevator.

The elevators at Port Arthur and Fort William line the water front. They occupy over two miles of harbor frontage, in addition to the loading of grain vessels. Some of the huge ships are so long as seven blocks. With capacity for over 500,000 bushels in one carge, which can be poured aboard at the rate of 300,000 bushels an hour. The sailing of grain from Canadian down Thunder Bay, with the sun getting over the prairie country behind, and glinting in the towering elevators, is an inspiring sight.

Many thousands of people from the United States is consistent and continuous, according to authorities on the subject. The Ontario government department of agriculture is encouraging the breeding and training of the polo pony.

Pominion Experimental Farm Report

Summaries of This Important Work Carried on by Federal Government

A statement in the very comprehensive report of the Director of the Dominion Experimental Farms for the year ending March 31, 1926, that should receive the particular attention of all farm breeders is as follows:

"This year no trouble has been experienced with navel fill in the immediately due to the fact that potatoes, bulbs had been administered in the final mares during their gestation per iod as a preventative."

It is hoped which can be had at no cost by applying to the Publications Branch, Ottawa, contains memorable of many interesting work carried on at the Central Farm in Ottawa but at all the more than thirty branch farms, stations and sub stations stretching from Prince Edward Island to British Columbia and from the most northerly limits of the country to the far north. In the report will be found informative notes on every branch of agriculture with special attention paid to live stock, and to the work of the Live Stock Branch, for the securing of great ter knowledge and the betterment of live stock of all kinds. Many new lines have been established at Summerside, P.E.I.

It has been said that the vast work of the Experimental Farms service is not sufficiently known, here is Director E. S. Archibald's report is an excellent opportunity to gain such knowledge.

U.S. Wants Western Ponies

If Trained for Polo Playing They Bring Good Price

Polo ponies from Western Canada are in demand in the United States between 200 and 300 ponies have been shipped this year from points in Alberta and British Columbia to Canada West to New York and Boston, the principal markets for these steeds.

Since the polo pony must be from high as 15,200 when fully trained. It is an acknowledged fact that it is a difficult matter to obtain first class ponies with the required qualifications of hardiness, gentleness, intelligence, agility and size. The best ponies are said to be found in the far western British down Thunder Bay, with the sun getting over the prairie country behind, and glinting in the towering elevators, is an inspiring sight.

Oxford Students On Farms

Returns to England After Harvesting Experience in Saskatchewan

Thirty students from Oxford University and Wye Agricultural College, Kent, returned home on the Canadian Pacific steamship, "Montclare" after having assisted in the harvesting of the Saskatchewan crop. Three young men were brought out by the Department of Immigration and Development, Canadian Pacific Railway, and placed on selected Saskatchewan farms by the Women's British Empire Immigration League. They were without exception enthusiastic over the country and its possibilities. A few had remained permanently in Western Canada, and the opinion was expressed that within two years at least twelve more would be back in Canada for permanent establishment.

United States Has Lost First Place To Britain

Great Britain has captured first place from the United States in the volume of trade with Russia.

In 1925, despite the absence of diplomatic recognition, the United States led the world in Russian trade, but this year has fallen to third place. According to the statistics of the Trade Commissariat for the last 11 months, the order of trade was as follows: Great Britain, $145,000,000; Germany, $121,000,000; United States, $94,000,- 000; France, $77,000,000, and Italy $76,000,000.

Early Settlements

Trading Posts Established in Northern Saskatchewan Before the Fall Of Quebec

Prof. A. S. Morton, University of Saskatchewan, who recently spoke at a meeting of the Prince Albert Historical Society called the question as to when the trading posts were established by the French traders in what is now the Prince Albert district long before the fall of Quebec in 1759. That there was a fort operated by French traders in the Carleton district, before the coming of the Hudson's Bay Company is fairly definite and pioneers are there remember the buildings at the mouth of the Sheil River, six miles west of Prince Albert.

Prof. Morton is endeavoring to fix the location of the old historical sites by the evidence of travellers. A search for the ruins of these forts is also occurring all data concerning them that can be found and the final investigations will visit the sites of the old forts.

U.S. Investments In Canada

Estimated Nearly Three Billion of American Capital Invested in Canada

United States investments in Canada and Newfoundland at the end of 1925 totalled $2,825,000,000 or $246 more than in 1924. The report will be found informative notes on every branch of agriculture with special attention paid to live stock, and to the work of the Live Stock Branch, for the securing of great ter knowledge and the betterment of live stock of all kinds. Minister Invented Reaper

Model Made by Scotchman Century Ago Was not Patented

There are guided dreams and there are many of them who believe that the Scotchman who invented the reaper in the world, was invented in America, will be dis-illusioned by the announcement that the inventor was that of a Scottish minister. He was the Rev. Patrick Bell, who made the first model in 1826, a century ago. It was proved and was given to Sweden by Sweden, where it was subsequently adopted by the Swedish Government. Bell's model was not patented.

The Australian Cricket Team, because of the five test matches against England their manager returned home early last night months trip by the All-Sal Canadian Pacific Route from Liverpool to Victoria in October. They sailed on the Canadian Pacific liner Montrose for Quebec where they arrived October 8 and whence they came on to Montreal. They mentioned Canada and passed through Moose Moose Jaw, Swift Current and Medicine Hat and on reaching Calgary stayed at the Hotel Palliser, and were the guests of the Mayor. Across they went through the Rockies from Banff to Field, Revelstoke and Kamloops. At Vancouver the team were entertained by the Mayor and were also the guests of the city at Victoria. They sailed from the latter city for Australia on the Canadian Australasian Royal Mail Liner Aorangi and are due to reach Sydney about November 13. The team is made up of the following: Top row: J. An Important Industry

Women in Vancouver Are Making Money Seed-Growing

Interesting variations of flower gardening for profit are shown by Women's Institute Members.

For instance the seed-growing industry in the province is very important and many women are engaged in it. Lavender is grown quite extensively on Vancouver Island and is equal to that grown in Somerset, England.

Two women close to Victoria, who have made an acre have started the manufacture of lavender water. One member in the Kootenay district has gone in extensively for hummingbird and bird-seed for sale. Another member has one of the largest collections of rare varieties and is growing more for seed than flowers. On Vancouver Island women in many parts have been growing seed for years and selling their crop to larger growers who market the seeds in England and elsewhere.

Time Proved Theory Correct

English Former Advocated Vaccination Long Before Dr. Janner Tried It

Although vaccination is linked with the name of Jenner, there is ample evidence that it was practised by farmers and others in the rural districts of England long before his day. It was common knowledge amongst these people that an attack of cowpox immunized one against smallpox. And it was quite natural for farm workers to infect the mouths and their children with the former complaint in order to thereby combat the latter. Indeed, twenty-two years before by Jenner's public his first vaccination a farm lad named Benjamin Jesty, of Dorsetshire, openly advocated the practice; but, not being a medical man, he was branded as far too ignorant for the honour, however, proved his theory correct.

Indian Relics Found Near Edmonton Are Thousands of Years Old

Relics of the stone age, found near Edmonton, are thousands of years old, according to Dr. Harlan I. Smith, of the National Museum, Ottawa, who has been investigating the discovery.

Dr. Smith has found that the relics are from the Yellowhead Pass, and that they are the work of the Iroquois Indians, who lived in the district before the white man came to Canada.

English Former Advocated Vaccination Long Before Dr. Janner Tried It

Although vaccination is linked with the name of Jenner, there is ample evidence that it was practised by farmers and others in the rural districts of England long before his day. It was common knowledge amongst these people that an attack of cowpox immunized one against smallpox. And it was quite natural for farm workers to infect the mouths and their children with the former complaint in order to thereby combat the latter. Indeed, twenty-two years before by Jenner's public his first vaccination a farm lad named Benjamin Jesty, of Dorsetshire, openly advocated the practice; but, not being a medical man, he was branded as far too ignorant for the honour, however, proved his theory correct.

One of the most bizarre, yet signal cant, theories ever advanced by scientists, is now being tested by a network of radio stations covering most of the earth's surface.

The hypothesis offered by Professor Alfred Wegener of the University of Graz, Austria, and Dr. William Schmitz, German geologist, are that all land masses of the earth once formed a single continent before rifting to into the continents we know, that they are still re-forming and perpetually drifting westward and somewhat ward, that Europe is shrinking, France and Germany sinking, and Norway and Sweden are rising higher from the sea.'

Observations taken at the radio stations at five-year intervals, says the November Popular Science Monthly, will either prove or disprove this strangest of theories. London's Newspaper Home

Publications of Many Years Are Stored At Hendon

Hendon, just outside of London, is the home of the world's greatest storehouse of newspapers and "peil books" —those bulky old tomes of which rich American tourists turn over so feverishly in quest of their English origin.

Hendon houses, indeed, more news papers than can be found anywhere else in the British Isles. Newspapers have been pouring into Hendon by the ton for more than twenty years. They are moved in vast fireproof rooms now and again they are taken down and sent away to be destroyed by some assiduous reader, but the great bulk of them will never be read. They are being looked after merely because somebody may walk into the British Museum one morning and ask the clerk for a copy of the "Pudney-on-the Puddle Gazette" of the second week in January in the year 1762.

London's great home for the news papers of the past is in Colindale road, where repose millions of news papers—every issue from every remote village and hamlet in the land since

All the newspapers that go to Hendon spend a few months prohibited in the archives of the British Museum itself. They are then sent to the Madeyn, where they are carefully and severely bound. They are returned to the museum and later sent out to Hendon where every week the newspaper vans van journeys out to Hendon and returns loaded with old newspapers from "The Reporter"—those are the periodicals which museum readers have asked for. The volumes when finished with are sent back to Hendon

London newspapers, curiously enough, never leave London. They are all kept in the Museum itself.

Heavy Postage on Pearl

Carried by U.S. Air Mail Had $9100 in Stamps

What is believed to be a new record for high postage paid on a single parcel was established at Philadelphia when a package was sent from there to San Francisco by air mail carrying $150 in stamps.

Postal regulations prohibited clerks divulging any description of the package, its contents, or recipient, but the parcel was neatly covered with $6 stamps. The air mail postage across the continent is $1 a pound.

The package went to New York and thence by plane westward.

In no time at all inflammation and poisonous matter was quickly removed by Zam-Buk, and it healed in the most wonderful way.

A Business Governor

Lord Willingdon Will Keep Office Work Separate From Home Life

Lord Willingdon in the new governor general of Canada has announced that he will keep his office at the Parliament Buildings at Ottawa and not allow it to transact official business at his residence.

The significance of this announcement must lie in its novelty so far as the Ottawa precedent is concerned. Heretofore the governor general's office has been offices but little. They have been in the habit of having official documents sent to Rideau Hall, the official residence. That practice entailed some loss of time and embarrassment on many occasions.

Lord Willingdon's departure from accepted routine suggests that he proposes to inject business methods into an office which many people regard as more ornamental than practical. There is nevertheless, quite a lot of work involved in the position of governor general in connection with affairs of state. His signature to documents is essential. Some of the most important sensitive of the King, these who have business to transact with him will know where to find him. Many people believe in involving his home life in the details of his office. That is the way many executives do things. It is a good sign.

THE EVILS OF STRONG DRINK (WORLD'S TEMPERANCE SUNDAY)

Golden Text: At the last it biteth like a serpent, and stingeth like an adder. Proverbs 23:32

Lesson Text: Proverbs 23:29-35

Devotional Reading: Psalm 87:1-6, 10-12

Explanation and Comments

I. A Picture of a Drunkard, verses 29, 30. In a series of questions the writer of these verses gives us a vivid picture of a drunkard. "Who hath Woe hath Alas"; the Hebrew literally reads, for the words translated woe or sorrow are interjectional. Woe, woe and sorrow come to everyone sooner or later, but the drunkard creates them for himself. "Who hath contentions?" Who hath complaining? Drunkenness embroils men in quarrels and strife. "Who hath wounds without cause?" Drunken men come to blows over nothing without knowing why or wherefore. "Who hath redness of eyes?" Bleared eyes are one of the conspicuous signs of the drunkard.

The speaker then answers his own questions. "They that tarry long at the wine; they that go to seek out mixed wine." By mixed wine may be meant wine mixed with spices or opiates. "There is a touch of sarcasm in this answer, the word elsewhere used of diligent search after knowledge is here used, as if ironically of the investigations of connoisseurs in wine, meaning the last thing sought." (Dr. Plumptre.)

"Whether or not the world would be vastly benefited by total and final abolition of all intoxicating drinks seem to me not an open question. Three-fourths of mankind confuse the affirmative with their desires, and I believe all the rest acknowledge it in their hearts." (Abraham Lincoln.)

Introduces New Sport

Diver Succeeds in Walking Five Miles Under Water

Just to show that "the only sport," Miss Everette, Norfolk, Mass., walked across the bottom of Hampton Roads from Old Point Comfort, Virginia, to the Norfolk naval base, a distance of about five miles. Her companion the unprecedented jaunt in two hours and forty-one minutes.

Except for weakness in the legs and a numb feeling in the head Miss Everette appeared none the worse for his feat.

Basted in huge diving suit with leaden shoe soles, and carrying eighty additional pounds of lead strapped around his body to hold himself down in heavy pressure depths, Everette slid into the water at 10.49 a.m., and despite many underwater delays up on odd ship anchor in which he became entangled, forged ahead and even than landed at 1:30 p.m. A lecture, with an air pump accompanied him

"You mean that because of this we must give up—give up each other?" she was still very quiet, and patient.

"What else can we do? How is there any room, or place for me? The little house, with a parlor and kitchen that we planned would hardly be serviceable to you now, would it?"

"But, John, we could still build that same house. That is one thing I want to do, right away." She smiled a little. "Only we can make it larger, and with room to it than just a kitchen and parlor formulas and gardens, and bakeries, and the stairways and panelled halls we used to joke about when we saw them in the movies. We can have all those things now John, that we laughed about. It will be just the house we planned, enlarged to fit my million. Will there be anything wrong about that?"

An Ancient Piano

One of First to Reach America Exhibited at Mississippi Fair

Though its strings have long since become corroded and from its keyboard resound horrible discords, a little piano, said to be one of the first two to reach the New World, will be a feature exhibit at the Mississippi State Fair.

The instrument is the property of City Commissioner R. M. Taylor, who secured it from Miss Rosa Fisher, octogenarian of this city, in whose family it has been for generations. A dismate to the piano is said by Miss Fisher to be in Mount Vernon, home of George Washington. Visitors to Mount Vernon describe the pianos as identical.

It is of French make, about 15 inches thick, 24 inches wide and 60 inches long. There are 73 keys, connected in a vastly different manner from the pianos of today.

Letter Tells of Wonderful Relief After Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Clinton, Ontario.—"After a severe operation and a three weeks' stay in a hospital I returned home but was still unable to move a chair. For four months I was almost frantic with pain and suffering until I thought I would surely be put by help for me, I had very severe pains in my left side and suffered agony every month. One day when I was not able to get up my mother begged me to try your medicine. My husband got me a bottle of Vegetable Compound at once and I took it. I started a second bottle, and by our surprise and joy the pains in her side left me completely and I am able to do all my work without help. I am a farmer's wife, so you can't be idle long. In all, I have taken six bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, five boxes of the Compound Tablets, two bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Medicine, and have also used the Sanative Wash."—Mrs. L. Lethbridge, Box 103, Clinton, Ontario.

Strange, Romantic love adventures of the Happier you know!

Joanna

by H. L. GATES

The superiority of the men were of course, only silly, unimportant, those who were obviously important men of affairs, and who amused Joanna with their common adoption of one phrase. "I will say," "I will say this for you, now." Three in succession! One who confided to her that he was an attorney representing "some of the best business interests," another whose name was magic in a store that competed with the one she had left, even Pendleton, who had been both a diplomat and a statesman!

As he breathed his response to her buoyant and restless youth, Pendleton indicated to her a pretty woman who probably was forty but looked thirty, and who seemed, in some intangible way, to be not very happy. Joanna saw that her eyes always followed her husband. Joanna saw that he liked this Mrs. Pendleton. And she didn't like Pendleton. She gave him an unexpected schoolgirl appraisal in which "if my wife were like you, now, I'd know how really to enjoy being in love!"

"Haven't you ever talked that over with me?" Just for example, Mrs. Marks?"

Offense cojured in his face immediately. Then he saw that she was only one laughing up at him so brightly that he was helpless.

"Because that's happens occasionally to most me for us," he preserved, "doesn't necessarily mean that we have confidences. Anyhow, can't we forget everyone else, for this minute you have given me?"

Joanna couldn't she told him and bed. Then, suddenly, she saw a moment later she timidly touched Mrs. Pendleton on the arm. "You won't mind, will you," she asked Pendleton's wife, "if I say that I want to know you? You see," she lied, "I have met Mr. Pendleton, and he was good enough to say you might like me. I wish you would."

The older woman was plainly confused, but she smiled, and Joanna took one of the girl's hands between both her own.

"What that is sweet of you, my dear!" she exclaimed warmly. She was openly delighted by the pretty enthusiasm of the young girl who was the envy of every other woman there. She was afraid she would go down in the torrent that nestled about her—a torrent that glittered dully under its laughter, luxury and extravagance, and the stakes of many gambles in love, which she suddenly distrusted Mrs. Pendleton.

When Kenilworth found opportunity to claim her again he saw that the color had returned to Joanna's cheeks, in her success among those friends of Yvonne's had subsided, and that she was intelligently excited in, when he accused her, but almost immediately afterwards admitted it. She had missed John; Brandon had talked with her for a few minutes, delightfully, gracefully, to others who, made insistent by their third and fourth drinks, demanded their share of his wit and with her. He had not mentioned that John had come, and had watched her disappear with Kenilworth without any reception. Neither had Kenilworth, and Yvonne seemed suddenly to have disappeared from among her guests. Joanna began to feel sick, and to her boudoir and confront the pain of her disappointment. She could not endure a fifth cry when Reddy told her:

"But where is he?" she exclaimed. "Please won't you keep people away from me, while he is here? I'm going to rest."

"They looked in the dim lit winter room, peopled with the complex winter moods were for faint lights, and in the other rooms which had been thrown open. Brandon, too, had missed him, and so had Dorminster. Reddy, failing to glimpse Yvonne in any of the rooms, decided to seek her out in the dim winter room, and Joanna and Kenilworth followed him. Reddy was confused. John would not have gone, even if he avoided Joanna, without a word to his hostess.

When Joanna saw him standing in the corner of the room, she was suddenly angry, despite her forgiveness. She would not forgive him, readily, she decided, for ignoring her. Then she realized that she could do nothing but forgive Yvonne, who had sat directly in front of him, curled in her great soft chair, rose when she and Reddy entered.

Her keen appraisal this boy of yours is wonderful," she said to Joanna. Joanna went quietly up to John. She was biting her lips to keep them from trembling. Yvonne, from where Reddy awaited her, added: "He wanted to talk small, but I've managed to keep him. We've had a most interesting conversation."

Joanna's lips quieted, a little grim. Something of weariness came into her eyes. Lingered there a moment, and then vanished quickly. She took John's hands: she had intended to kiss him, but led him to a couch, instead, and put him down beside her. "Now tell me," she commanded. "Why you have stayed away from me. I have been so happy, expecting you every minute."

I wanted to, Jo," he said simply, particularly because it has been hard for me to put off telling you how sorry I am for the mistake I made when I heard, of the wonderful thing that happened to you. I should have known better, but I couldn't believe it. I would have come before tonight but you wouldn't let me, you know, and now, of course, that's why I thought, when I saw you, and the people around you, that I would just go along. There will be no room for me any more."

"You're going to run away again, Jo," Joanna complained. "When you kiss me, at first. You haven't kissed me John, for days and days, days and days it seems. And I don't want to be scolded tonight."

Perhaps he would have relished her, if he could. But there would be few indeed who could have withstood the appeal of her, almost a child in her sweetness, and the way she looked at him. John gathered her to him and held her. Her hand pressed against his breast was cold, which only sometimes had been a pantense.

Suddenly he put her away from him. Even with the arm she hastily flung over his shoulder. When she saw how white his face was she understood why he was waiting, why he couldn't kiss her, that moment.

"Now," she said, softly, "you must tell me why you were going away without saying good-by to me, John."

"Because, Jo," he answered, "you already have gone away from me. I have known it for a considerable time, that's the way it is. When I came here, tonight, I thought we would have our hours together—I don't know it was to be an affair like this! And that you had planned for me to find you in the very midst of the sort of thing you like—like you as well."

Joanna settled back, patiently and quietly. The deep brown settled in her eyes.

CHAPTER XVIII

A Kiss

"Then you don't want my happiness?" Joanna said: "You don't want me to have what my money has made possible for me?"

"I haven't said anything, by that meaning," John declared. "I want nothing else in the world but you to have happiness, but I wish you could have with it something of real joy, something of the joy of doing things, the things, out of the copper tradition that have come your way. I am afraid you will never know that sort of feeling. Perhaps it is all right that you shouldn't. Money will mean one thing to you; it would mean something else to me. As it so often does here in the bargain, it has come between us."

DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS

YOU'LL FEEL FINE

"You mean that because of this we must give up—give up each other?" she was still very quiet, and patient.

"What else can we do? How is there any room, or place for me? The little house, with a parlor and kitchen that we planned would hardly be serviceable to you now, would it?"

"But, John, we could still build that same house. That is one thing I want to do, right away." She smiled a little. "Only we can make it larger, and with room to it than just a kitchen and parlor formulas and gardens, and bakeries, and the stairways and panelled halls we used to joke about when we saw them in the movies. We can have all those things now John, that we laughed about. It will be just the house we planned, enlarged to fit my million. Will there be anything wrong about that?"

An Ancient Piano

Though its strings have long since become corroded and from its keyboard resound horrible discords, a little piano, said to be one of the first two to reach the New World, will be a feature exhibit at the Mississippi State Fair.

The instrument is the property of City Commissioner R. M. Taylor, who secured it from Miss Rosa Fisher, octogenarian of this city, in whose family it has been for generations. A dismate to the piano is said by Miss Fisher to be in Mount Vernon, home of George Washington. Visitors to Mount Vernon describe the pianos as identical.

It is of French make, about 15 inches thick, 24 inches wide and 60 inches long. There are 73 keys, connected in a vastly different manner from the pianos of today.

THE TRIALS OF MIDDLE-AGE

Much of the Suffering Women Endure Can be Avoided

Every woman approaching middle-age with considerable anxiety, because she knows that this is the time of her life when trivial ailments may be the first signs of trials and troubles to come. She fears the headaches, backaches, lassitude and other distressing weaknesses that betoken the life of so many women at this period.

Much of the misery and suffering that assail women approaching middle age can be avoided. This has been proved by thousands of happy, virile women who have relied at this time on the health-help given by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. To the middle-aged woman the one thing necessary to enjoy life through her years of trial is rich, red blood. Because of their direct action on the blood, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are the one remedy needed by women for women's needs. Among the thousands who have found benefit from this remedy is Mrs. Allan Wager, Echo Lake, Que., who says:—"I was at a critical period in the lives of all women and was sick and miserable. I became so much run down that I was unable to do my housework. The least exertion would cause my heart to murmur so violently that I would have to sit down. I had headaches and backaches, and was in a depressed condition I saw Dr. Williams' Pink Pills recommended and decided to give them a trial. It was fortunate that I did so, for under the use of this medicine I was restored to good health and strength and feel like a new woman. I never neglect an opportunity to recommend this remedy to those who are run-down for I am very grateful for what the pills did for me."

For all ailments due to weak watery blood Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will be found a specific. You can get the pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50c a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Invitation Is Unanswered

Prince Invited to Dinner by American Unknown to Him

The Prince of Wales has received a cabled invitation to join an American and his wife at dinner on their arrival in England soon. The cable, which was addressed to "Prince of Wales of England, St. James's Place, London," read:

"My wife and self will be honored if you will dine with us on our visit to London next month. Name your company and your date."

It was the first the Prince had heard of his would-be American hosts whose names have not been made public. The invitation remains unanswered.

"Be mine—I love you!" ardently whispered the aged millionaire to the pugnacious young widow.

"Enough to die for me?" she asked coyly.—Judge.

SUCH IS AN AUTUMN NIGHT

I wandered out into the falling Night,
Into the glory of the coming night,
When Mother Earth is going to her rest
Amid the splendors of the golden west
And all the world is harmony is hushed
To tell us that another day is ended.
Such is an Autumn night.

I wandered out amid the falling leaves,
That dropped to earth as silently as thieves;
And lay unconscious there upon the earth
Until the breezes stirred them into mirth.
A sea of brilliant color flowed along,
The leaves were waltzing to the zephyr's song.
Such is an Autumn night.

I wandered home again in peace serene,
Enchanted by the magic I had seen.
The sun sank low behind the golden barn,
And left me to await the coming morn.
Such is an Autumn night.

October, I shall never quite forget
The beauty of thy artist soul, and yet,
Wonder not on such a night as this,
Too far away from home and lasting bliss.
There's one thing sure, though far away you roam,
The sunset of Alberta calls you home.
This spot of glory at the rainbow's end,
Must surely be a blessing heaven send,
On such an Autumn night.

—Aurora Lennevet,
Fort Saskatchewan.

November 1, 1926

The editor and staff wish to thank those who have contributed to the paper. If your contributions are not in this edition they may appear in a later one.

We will soon be able to class the Literary News with the leading Canadian newspapers; we are now so fortunate as to possess a Vancouver correspondent. The following items are some of her experiences in the Vancouver Normal school:

Teacher—Looking up a picture of eggs) "Who can tell me where those come from?"

Pupil—"Sometimes they come from the chickens and sometimes they come from the store."

Teacher—Who can tell me when summer fallow is?

Pupil—Please, it's a young man.

Teacher (teaching a lesson on Reflection)—What does harmony mean?

Pupil—Please, did Caruso live in the time of Boadicia?

Teacher—Tell me when you use "is" and when you use "say?"

Pupil—You use "is" when you lie on something and "lay" when you lay something down.

Teacher (teaching lesson on Dora)—What made the old king's hand shake?

Pupil No. 1—Maybe he smoked tobacco.

Pupil No. 2—Maybe his conscience was hurting him.

Pupil No. 3—Maybe he ate too many sweet things.

Pupil No. 4—Maybe he'd been on a party the night before.

Essay on Henry VIII—Henry VIII was the greatest widower that ever lived. He had eight wives and a great many children. The first was beheaded and then executed. The second was disposed of. She never smiled again, and when she died, she said that they would find the word "mallens" written all over her heart.

The greatest man in Henry's life was Cardinal Wolsey. He was known as the "boy bachelor" because he never married and died at the age of 57, unmarried.

Henry's grandmother was the famous Mary, Queen of Scots, otherwise known as "The Lady of the Lake," and "the Lay of the Last Minstrel."

We are glad to report that our Vancouver correspondent came first in her group last month and fifth in a class of thirty-three. Three cheers for Mr. Marble, Hollin would make good anywhere.

Their meeting, it was sadden. Their meeting, it was sad.

LARGE ATTENDANCE AT GIRLS' HALLOWEEN DANCE

If the large crowd which attended the Girls' A.A.A. dance last Friday expected to get into contact with ghosts they were disappointed in that respect, but they surely received enough bodily contacts once they got on the dance floor. The floor was closely packed with a jolly crowd and dancing had to be done on the space of a dime; there was no room for No. 11 shoes.

The hall was appropriately decorated and the climax of the evening arrived with the novelty dance, which left an aftermath of about two inches of colored strips of paper underfoot. Skulls and Skebas alike added to their personal attractions with the gaily colored ties and hats which were distributed.

Late in making their appearance were Tipp's orchestra was good but not sufficiently good to rave about. The supper, provided free, was excellent, the coffee being exceptionally tasty. (Here is a chance for a good ad if we only knew who provided it.) The new idea of portioning so much food to each plate would eliminate a great deal of waste.

Votes And Their Value

Analysis of the vote cast in the last Dominion general election discloses the same anomalies and contradictions revealed in elections generally for many years, and which, while causing much dissatisfaction and open criticism have, as yet, failed to result in steps being taken to remedy an admittedly weak condition in our present form of democratic government and in the election of representatives in Parliament. Various schemes have been suggested as a means of overcoming this weakness but none have proved wholly acceptable to a majority of the people.

The situation complained of is that all votes have not equal value; that, as a matter of actual fact, the vote of one man, or woman, is in many instances just as effective in electing a representative as the votes of two or more men and women; that Canada today does not enjoy representation based on population; that the majority does not rule.

In support of these contentions it is pointed out that, in the recent election the Conservatives polled 1,476,747 votes and elected 91 members to the House of Commons, while Liberals and Liberal-Progressives combined polled 1,454,802, or 21,824 votes less, but elected 122 members. In other words, Liberal and Liberal-Progressive votes had greater power than Conservative votes. Why?

The reason is found in the fact that Conservative strength lies chiefly in the large manufacturing cities and centres of population like Toronto, Hamilton, London, Halifax, Vancouver, Montreal and Winnipeg. In these cities Conservatives are usually elected by huge majorities. On the other hand, in smaller urban and rural ridings the candidates of other parties have a fighting chance and are frequently elected but by much smaller majorities.

Furthermore, it has always been an accepted principle that the unit of population entitled to elect a member should be larger for cities than for rural districts. All political parties have agreed as to this. It being recognized that a City Member can keep more closely in touch with his constituents than than can a member representing a rural riding, and that residents in a city constituency have means of making their views and desires known, and of enforcing their opinions, which is not possible in a rural constituency with a scattered population. There is so much force in this that no party has ever seriously challenged the fairness of requiring a larger population in city constituencies.

The existing plan of single member constituencies with larger populations in city ridings works to the advantage of the Conservatives in the cities where Liberals and Labor are deeded the representation to which their numbers entitle them, but, on the other hand, it works to the advantage of Liberals and other groups in the rural ridings.

To right the grievances in both sets of constituencies the advocates of Proportional Representation urge the abolition of the single member constituencies and the creation of larger constituencies electing four or five members each and the use of the single transferable ballot whereby every considerable group of public opinion would be able to obtain representation in exact proportion to its voting strength.

Objection is taken to this plan on the ground that it would result in too many groups in Parliament and the consequent inability of any one party or group to form a strong government. The force of this objection is, however, weakened by the fact that the present system has in no wise prevented such groups, and the deadlock which existed in the last two Parliaments was brought about, not under Proportional Representation, but under the existing system. Even in the newly elected Parliament there are no less than seven distinct groups as follows: Liberals, 119 members; Conservatives, 91; Progressives, 6; Liberal-Progressives, 13; United Farmers of Alberta, 11; Labor, 3, and Independents 2.

Another objection, and a much stronger one, is that while Proportional Representation might be workable in centres of population, it is hardly applicable in settled rural Canada, where constituencies to elect four or five members would have to be unduly large.

Hon. Hugh Guthrie, the newly chosen temporary leader of the Conservative party, announces that while he does not favor Proportional Representation, something should be done to remove the inequalities in representation which now exist. He therefore advocates making the unit of population for all constituencies, urban and rural, the same. This would go a long way to remove the Conservative grievance in rural ridings, but would continue all the handicaps under which Liberals, Labor and others now suffer in the large city constituencies. Further, unless the membership of the House of Commons was largely increased it would mean greatly reducing the representation of all rural and the smaller urban centres while adding enormously to the large cities and manufacturing centres, thus practically giving the Conservative party a permanent position of power.

During the last century giant forward strides have been made in the extension of the franchise and in simplifying and improving methods of elections, but with it all we have rigidly adhered to an obsolete constituency method of dividing the country and which is responsible for the well founded complaints now heard. There is room for reform in this vitally important matter in order that real democracy may prevail.

Scientific Recovery Aid To Physician

Process Perfected That Makes All Blood Suitable For Transfusions

The time is not far away when blood suitable for use in transfusions can be obtained in bottles at a drug store, Dr. J. L. Yates, Milwaukee, Wis., predicted at the convention of the American Post Graduate Medical Association in Cleveland.

Often when a minute's time balances the life of a patient needing a blood transfusion a "drug store" kind of blood cannot be found, Dr. Yates pointed out. Scientists in Prague, Czechslo, Dr. Yates said, have perfect centrifugal washing process of blood serums which is so profound that it will render suitable even the blood of cows and sheep, which, if transfused in natural state, would bring almost instant death.

It was stated perchance that this process will make it possible to buy at a drug store blood bottled up without danger of transfusion.

RHEUMATIC PAIN AND THIN BLOOD

Liniments of No Avail — The Trouble Must Be Treated Through the Blood

The most a rheumatic sufferer can hope for from rubbing on the swollen, aching joints is a little relief and all the while the trouble is becoming more deep-seated. It is now known that rheumatism is rooted in the blood, and no outward application can do the blood becomes still further thin and impure. To get rid of rheumatism, therefore, you must go to the root of the trouble in the blood. That is why Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have proved so beneficial when taken for this trouble. They make new, rich blood which expels the poisonous acid and the rheumatism disappears. There are thousands of former rheumatic sufferers in Canada, now well and strong, who thank Dr. Williams' Pink Pills that they are now free from the aches and pains of this dreaded trouble. One of these is Mr. Robt. A. Smith, Mossey Lake, Sask., who says: "About two years ago I was attacked with rheumatism. My knees were so stiff that I could not walk and had to go to bed under the doctor's care. It is needless to say that I underwent a great deal of suffering, but the doctor's medicine did not seem to reach the trouble, so when I was advised to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills I got a box. After taking them for some weeks I was able to get out of bed. I continued to use the pills and was soon able to work, and I have now been troubled with rheumatism since. In other respects also I derived a great deal of benefit from the pills and I think them a wonderful remedy."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Can Create Artificial Fogs

German Chemists Are Said To Have Discovered Method

A method of causing sudden artificial fogs on a large scale has been discovered by German chemists. It is said that the introduction of this new "weapon" may have far-reaching effects on naval and land warfare, causing the enemy to be nonplussed and allow or troops to be withdrawn under cover of mist when an attack is launched. It is reported further that experiments made by the German army are equally promising, the fog created being so dense that it was impossible to see more than two yards ahead.

Discovers New Hybrid Plant Combining The Advantages Of Both Sweet Clover And Alfalfa

Scientific agriculturists throughout Canada and the United States, first startled and then intensely interested, are now following with close attention research work proceeding at the University of Saskatchewan into the production of a forage plant which apparently combines the advantages of both Arctic sweet clover and alfalfa, and eliminates the disadvantages of each.

The research work began when Prof. L. E. Kirk, in charge of forage crop work in the university's field husbandry department, discovered in a plot of Arctic sweet clover a number of strange plants, bearing evidence of being the result of a cross between Arctic and alfalfa. This was in 1924 and since that time the work has been proceeding along careful scientific lines.

It will be a long time yet before any definite announcement can be made regarding the value of the new plant, but agricultural authorities at the university find some cause for optimism in the result of their research to date.

The far-reaching importance of the discovery is explained by Dean W. J. Rutherford, head of the Saskatchewan College of Agriculture, or, as it is best officially known the agricultural college of the university.

From year to year, as the prairie soil is used again and again for wheat production, the nitrogen content of the soil, without which wheat production is a practical impossibility, is becoming more and more depleted. Dean Rutherford expresses it, part of the nitrogen of the prairie soil is annually shipped east with the wheat.

Taken this nitrogen can be replaced, the great plains area, the same given by agriculturists to the wheat producing areas of Canada and the United States, will eventually reach the stage where wheat can no longer be grown.

Legumenous plants have been entitled by the scientific agriculturists to replace the lost nitrogen. Legumes store up nitrogen, and when their roots die, this nitrogen remains in the soil for succeeding plants of any species, including wheat, to use. Sweet clover and alfalfa, the supposed parents of the new plant which is the centre of interest in the foliage crop branch of the university, are both legumes. Both can give back to the soil the precious nitrogen taken from them by wheat crops.

The vital importance of legumes in the production of wheat crops is thus apparent.

Both Arctic sweet clover and alfalfa, however, have objectionable characteristics. Conditions of Saskatchewan agriculture make Arctic sweet clover preferable to alfalfa as a rotation legume, although wherever and whenever the latter plant can be successfully used in a crop rotation, it is the better of the two, according to Dean Rutherford. Hence alfalfa and Arctic in addition to replacing nitrogen, supply excellent feed and pasture. Alfalfa used

One man's idea of reviving trade in the British Empire is to pay the workman one dollar an hour for his work. Speed the day! The editor will be the most prosperous man in town.

The preacher played by the half-crown and full crown system of the town under cover of the fictitious license they claim because of Hallowe'en vows not as bad as they might have been. But then again they were worse than they need be. After viewing the remains of the nation of Hallowe'en merrymakers (?) one's spirit of tolerance needs reinforcement and a pity fostered for the modern style of humor displayed. To anyone who has reached the age of discretion it all seems a tremendous waste of energy.

Being primarily an institution for the children Hallowe'en is being abused by grown people when minds have not developed with their bodies.

Next Thursday, November 11, is Armistice Day. The returned soldiers of the Fort Saskatchewan branch of the Canadian Legion are to parade to the Memorial site and there observe the two minutes silence from 11:00 a.m. to 11:02 a.m. If it is not possible for you to honor these soldiers in this, their small tribute to fallen comrades, may we request you to observe the two minutes silence at your business. Who-ever and whatever you may be, storekeeper, employee, farmer, farmer's wife, all children in school, in fact every one should put aside their tasks and personal affairs for a period of two minutes at this time and allow their thoughts to travel to the boys who sleep "in Flanders' Fields." It is a very small sacrifice to make in return for those who sacrificed their lives for us.

We have the pleasure this week of submitting for your consideration a plan for civic improvement which did not originate in our mind, but was told us by one of our landlady's children, when we sat call "the man with ideas." Our first exclamation on hearing the proposition was "Too ambitious!" You may say the idea is, but we would like you to ponder over the suggestions for some time before saying or doing anything else, and in addition talk it over with some of your friends.

To get to the kernel of the matter as briefly as possible the idea of "the man of ideas" is this:

There are buildings in the fair grounds which are in use for one day only in the year for the Dehod Fair; there are other buildings dangerous they are not insured and are liable to go up in smoke any day through grass fires or a careless match. Why not use the buildings. Why not use the buildings to cover in the skating rink so the people of the town and surrounding district can make use of it throughout the winter through?

To pursue the matter further, how can the buildings there, why not make it into a swimming pool for the summer use, thereby making the town the possibly most adult population of the town and district? There are many who are, on placed they cannot go to the lake for a swim, and their only other alternative is the river with its dangers and discomforts. Or, why not ask the question the provincial government could be approached to convert permission to run a steam pipe from the jail to heat the water and building.

The building could be used for the annual Dehod Fair just as well as the fair grounds are not in the proximation.

At first glance the problem may give you a shock, but we think many after a little "reading" over it will appear to you to be not too extensive, even a practical one, and we would ask us that it is well worth some serious being taken.

DIMINUTIVE SEDAN UPSET LARGE AUTO

A more or less diminutive sedan emerged victorious from an encounter with a big touring car at the intersection of 102 street and 103 avenue at 9 o'clock Thursday night.

The smaller car, driven by Clemente H. Grunert, Fort Saskatchewan, going west on the avenue, struck the rear of the touring car, going south on the street, with W. T. The only damage to the sedan was a slightly dented fender, which Grunert straightened out with his hand before proceeding on his way.

She saw the rashbornness that she always hated, settle deeper in his eyes. "No," he returned. "It can't be worked out that way, Jo. I'd never live with you in a home you'd paid for, even with money given you for a wedding present. That's not to be all right. You see, I too, have pians. You know them, even if you never cared much about listening to them I've got to make my way. The career I want is one that can't be bought. You can't buy success like you would a birthday present. Different, you see, from yours."

She looked at him from widened eyes. She wondered at her own calm. She was not beat, as she had been that night at Mrs. Adams' when John repulsed her. He was not doing that sort of think again. Now he was quiet, stubbornly taking himself out of her life, or rather thrusting her out of his.

A wild impulse to run up stairs, wrap herself in a cloak and rush out into the street with him, thrilled her for a moment and then lapsed into the deadly calm that puzzled her.

"But John," she said, "I love you. I have always loved you. Why must you make such a fuss about the money? It won't change me, nor as much as he changed you?" He interrupted her:

"That's just it! It won't change you. It has only brought you out of yourself, and confused. "The sort of thing won't get you any place in the end. It is not the background for a girl, no matter how good she be—and I believe, Jo, as I always have, that you're good. You will stay good just as long as you can. I shall always want you, but I just can't have you."

"In jail"

His last words were a pleading for his justification. It would have been better, perhaps, if he had not spoken them. They reminded Joanna that he was one who would not, could not, understand her, or, one like her. Still she wasn't hurt. She suffered, because her heart was turning over. She longed for him, wanted to yield to him as he would have had her yield to his fears for her and to his ideas that she should be some other kind of girl, but she realized that it would all be useless. She would never be content with all enchantments taken out of the world that had suddenly become so lavish with her.

"But John," she said, "I love you. I have always loved you."

"Then you won't be coming back. You won't accept things as they are and come back to me?" she asked.

"If you still want me, when I have made my own way, and have money of my own, I will be wanting you," he said, slowly. She probed his words and understood what he really meant. "You mean," she said, "that you will want me enough, even, to take me no matter what I shall have become, by then? Isn't that it? He wouldn't answer her. She continued:

"Was it because you think that I should be drab, and a kill joy, and go into a shell and hide always when some prudish chaperone is outraged that I have enough clothes outside of me and enough fresh air-ness inside of me to make it safe fo[illegible] to take me out for a walk in a church yard, that you spent more than an hour shut away in here with Yvonne? She doesn't talk about with her eyes on the ground and her mind on the purity of the life. Didn't you suffer—all alone with her?"

"We were talking of you," he replied, quietly.

"I-e-s," she retorted, her eyes narrowed a bit, "there's a man who rooms[illegible] me in the winter garden just a little while ago, and spend the whole time talking of his wife." She knew that she was being utterly foolish and childish, and irrelevant. But, still, she watched John curiously. For some reason he thought it necessary to explain.

"When I told her I was going and wanted to say goodnight, so I should she brought me in here. Before I realized it I got to telling her how much I do love you, and why I can't have you. That was, I am told, she is one of the few I can trust. She is one who would think on."

"And so am I, John," Joanna told him, quickly.

Kenilworth opened the door When he saw John was there. Still out there, he would have gone away and closed the door behind him. Joanna called him back.

"Mr Wilmore is just leaving," she explained-d, eyeing John, coolly. "And I don't want to go out and dance just yet. I want you to stay in here and talk to me."

It would have been an awkward moment if Reddy had been a man to be at a loss to meet any situation. His wisdom seldom failed. He chafed her and said good night to the younger man with an ease that cleared the atmosphere. When John went out Joanna did not get up from the settee. She held out her hand to him and when he took it she wrapped her fingers about his and held them for a moment. There was no words between them.

Reddy went over and gently closed the door, which John had left opened. When he stood over the girl her head had dropped onto her arm. She had always her knees under her. As Reddy took note of her he concluded that that then she was not thinking of herself, or of anything about herself. Instinctively he sensed the slow swaying of a scale beam, weighted at either end with two precious bits of magic. And he knew that one end of the scale was slowly dropping. He wondered which end would be the heaviest.

Without a warning rustle the limp figure on the couch straightened and rose. Reddy knew how the scale had turned. He was startled by the change in Joanna. Her poise was new, and almost regal. There was something haughty and something else defiant and dangerous in her.

"I wonder," she asked him, stirring with a look from between the tids that he had not caught before, "if you would think me very silly if I should ask you to do a very silly thing."

He answered was the obvious one. And it was obvious, also, that he should go a little closer to her. The message in her eyes made it so.

"I want you to kiss me," she said.

"I sent for a free sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment. It helped me so I purchased more and after using two cakes of Cuticura Soap, together with the Cuticura Ointment, I was completely healed." (Signed) Miss Ena H. Killam, West St., R. R. 4, Orillia, Ont.

He drew her up to him instantly. His lips had almost brushed hers when she suddenly pressed him back—again that trick with her hands. "I want to tell you something, first!" she exclaimed. "It isn't you Reddy, that I want to hiss me—anyone would do just now. There's something on my lips, something that was put there a little while ago, I want taken off—it needs a kiss to do it. Because you happen to be here I am asking you. You see I must be fair with you—this I am doing the asking."

"One explains a kiss afterwards, never before," he murmured and caught her hands and held them. She yielded her lips completely. She felt that she was being wrapped in a burst of flame. She closed her eyes so that she would not see what was in his. Then she gave herself to the moment without shame. When he released her she said

"There! You mustn't spoil it by demanding another. I want to go out to the party, now, and dance. And I am going to flirt outrageously with Teddy Burmhister. He has been begging me to discover how sentimental he can be all evening. But I still want you to remember also for me. I want you to make sure that Yvonne knows you kissed me, and that I allowed it. You don't need to say I asked you but you may say that I didn't take my lips away."

Within half an hour Joanna was whirled away, in the enfoni corner of the winter garden, with young Teddy She had promised him only fifteen minutes, but she granted him half a more, despite his pleadings that one couldn't crowd an eternity into such a short space of time. She had decided that he find Braedon and bring him to her.

"He has not been nice to me, tonight," she explained "And I want to be nice to him." She laughed at that rhetorical mix-up and sent him away.

Reddy Kenilworth, when he had turned her over to Burmhister, went back into the morning room. When he had made himself a drink, out of the bottles in the cabinet, he settled back in a chair and fell to studying the ceiling. When Yvonne looked in he explained that his brain had become twisted around a conundrum and that he couldn't take an interest in anything or anybody outside until he straightened it out.

A New Hobby For Women

Remarkable Interest in Nose Being Taken in Basketry

Most people will have noted the remarkable growth of interest in basketry of late years. At last women have a hobby offered them far more interesting to the average person than crewing, which does not affect the eyes, and develops a decided creative ability. Practically all of the Federal and provincial institutions in Canada are promoting this work, as are also numbers of the schools, with the result that many people are finding that they can combine pleasure with usefulness in filling in their spare time at a pleasant hobby and at the same time furnish all the small articles of furniture which are so necessary to the comfortable house.

Many children die from the assaults of worms, and the first care of mothers should be to see that their infants are free from these pests. A vermifuge that can be depended on is Miller's Worm Powders. They will not only expel worms from the system, but act as a health-giving medicine and a remedy for many of the ailments that beset infants, rendering them and so endangering their lives.

St. Catharines, Ont.—"During my first expectant period I was in very poor health, was very nervous, suffered from morning sickness, had backache and abdominal pains. I was so nauseated I could be. Then a friend I learned of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and after I began taking it I got along fine; it relieved me of the morning sickness, pains and distress in my back and sides and I grew well and strong. Was able to do my own work the remainder of the time. I experienced very little suffering and had a fine healthy baby! who has never had a day's sickness except slight colds. I was very glad to know of a medicine so valuable as the 'Prescription' proved to be."—Mrs. Alfred Lehmann, R. No. 2. All dealers.

Last Friday while driving to his home in the Namao district with three companions J. Henderson met with an accident at the Lamoureux end of the bridge. A gravel truck partially obstructed the road and the right front wheel of Henderson's car went off the road and he could get no back on. The car turned over and rolled a short distance down the river bank, pinning Henderson underneath. He sustained a broken rib. His passengers received no injuries.

Having Hallowe'en as an excuse many liberties were taken with other people's property on Saturday and Sunday nights. Gates, wheels and part of an old car were removed from their accustomed places and made to serve as adornments for telephone poles. Railroad cars were moved to block one road and gates and other impediments used to block others. Those involved the most dangerous of the alleged practical jokes played and there were others, while not being as hazardous to public safety, were just as senseless.

ST. GEORGE'S ANNUAL THANKSGIVING SUPPER

The annual Thanksgiving supper provided by the ladies of St. George's W.A. and friends was held at the Memorial hall on Monday. As is usually the case there was a large crowd in attendance

A dance followed the supper and the first four dances were confined to children, who thoroughly enjoyed their little fling at the pastime of their elders. The dance was extremely well patronized. Miss Grace McDonald gave a recitation during an interval.

The Fort Harmony Four gave an excellent performance throughout the evening

EXHIBITION OF PAINTINGS

(Water Colors and Oil)

It will be of great interest to the readers of the Record to learn that we have in our midst a very capable and talented artist whose own modesty has so far kept him more or less unknown. This gentleman, who came from "dear old London" several years ago to the remote little village of Redwater, where he is attending to his duties as postmaster, is devoting practically all of his spare time to painting in oil and water colors, of which he has made an extensive study in England and in Italy, particularly at Venice. A large selection of paintings and sketches comprising charming sunny pictures of the Lagoons of Venice as well as of some famous and beautiful buildings of that city, pictures of the river Thames from London and vicinity, sketches in North Wales and Bonnie Scotland and different parts of England and showing pleasing characteristics of nature in her happiest moods, have been decorating up to this day the humble little home of Mr A. H. Waller, the artist, at Redwater, as well as the dark interior of some of his trunks, thus depriving the public at large and the "connoisseur" in particular of the great pleasure of admiring such excellent and beautiful pictures.

Mrs. C. H. Grunert, of Fort Saskatchewan, has suggested to Mr. Walker to have his paintings exhibited for the public and has offered her home as the place of exhibition, to which Mr. Walker readily consented. This exhibition will take place on Wednesday, November 17, from 2 to 5 o'clock, and everybody interested in this beautiful art is cordially invited to view the paintings, without charge or obligation. Mr. Walker offers all his pictures for sale at a moderate price which will be within reach of all, a splendid and rare opportunity for everybody, indeed, to give their homes an artistic atmosphere.

RELIGIOUS COUNCIL OF ALBERTA ORGANIZES NEW UNIT

In response to an invitation issued a few days previous, the pastors and a representative group of Sunday school workers of the parishes contained in the district from Fort Saskatchewan extending eastward to Mundare, met in the Union church, Lamont, on Tuesday afternoon to effect the organization of a new unit of the Religious Council of Alberta: in other words, an institute for Sunday school workers.

After conducting the devotional exercises and outlining the work of the convention, Rev. Irving of Lamont presented Mr. G. B. Lord of Fort Saskatchewan, who started the convention off right in an inspiring and thoughtful address. Then followed an interesting round table discussion of Sunday school methods and problems under the guidance of Rev. J. Hoffman, in which a large portion of the delegates participated. A short business session and the naming of a nominating committee brought the afternoon session to a close.

World Benefactors

In one of his famous satires, Dean Swift makes the king of Brobdingnag give utterance to the opinion that whoever could make two ears of corn or two blades of grass to grow upon a spot of ground where only one grew before, would deserve better of mankind and do more essential service to his country than the whole race of politicians put together.

Certain it is that while many politicians have done an immense amount of good in this world, many others have done incalculable harm, but the support members and scientists who have carried out the dictum of Dean Swift's imaginary king have conferred nothing but good upon mankind.

In April last the death occurred of Luther Burbank, of California, popularly known as the plant wizard, at the ripe old age of 77 years. Mr. Burbank devoted his life to the breeding of plants, and the results of his remarkably able experiments in the development of flowers, fruits and plants of all kinds are too well known to require more telling. He gave added size and beauty to flowers and developed many new types; he increased the size and flavor of many fruits; he increased the productive power of many plants and trees many times over. He thus added not only to the beauty of the world, but to the fruit grower, the wealth of the world, and the health of people generally.

Canada, too, has its plant wizard in the person of Dr. Saunders, the cousin of Marquis wheat. About twenty-five years ago Dr. Saunders, after long and painstaking experiments, succeeded in crossing a kernel of wheat from the shores of the Baltic with another kernel of wheat from the foothills of the Himalayas and thereby created a new type which produced a larger yield per acre, made a whiter flour, and ripened in less time and thus avoided damage from frost. This new wheat was named Marquis, and from the one kernel of only about twenty-five years ago, there is now produced about four hundred million bushels annually. Dr. Saunders' work has meant hundreds of millions of dollars to Canada within the life of the present generation.

Western Canada can also boast of its experimenters through whose efforts several blades of grass, or wheat, have been made to grow where only one grew before. The name of Seager Wheeler is a household word in the farm homes of this country. He has shown how the finest wheat in the world, the wheat which year after year captured the world's first prize, can be grown. He has demonstrated the methods to be followed, and has proven how profitable good farming and proper cultivation and seed selection is as compared with careless and indifferent cultivation, the use of poor seed and poor farming in general. Seager Wheeler is now engaged in demonstrating that apples, pears, plums and other fruits can be successfully grown on the prairies of Western Canada.

Politicians have a work of importance to do for the country, and in the doing of it honestly, faithfully and well they are deserving of all honor and loyal support, but men like Burbank, Saunders, Wheeler, and others whose names are not so well known but who are quietly raising the standard of production, are likewise deserving of all the honor their fellow citizens can bestow upon them. They are doing a work for mankind which neither politicians, nor any other group of men can do, and their work will live after them.

The world hopes honors and riches on the successful politician, inventor, farmer, financier, and business man. Too frequently, though, the quiet man at work in his garden, field or laboratory, working out through years of study and experimentation difficult problems whose solution blesses all mankind, remains unrecognized and without reward. It is gratifying, therefore, to know that a body has been created with strong financial backing to carry on the work to which Luther Burbank devoted the best years of his life; that the Dominion Government has recognized Dr. Saunders' invaluable work, not by granting him an annuity of some thousands of dollars for life; that leaders in all walks and professions in life have united in doing honor to Seager Wheeler.

Over and above the material achievements of these really great men, and the direct benefits they have conferred on the world, there is the example of such lives and the incentive they give to others to strive mightily for more and better things. The individual farmer who is earnestly striving to make his farm a model for the community in which he lives, who wages unceasing warfare on weeds, who gives close attention to the cultivation of his soil, insists on good, clean seed, who eliminates scrubs from his herds and horses in favor of cattle in clean and sanitary buildings, or the farm wife who takes a pride in her poultry, in the quality of the milk and cream sent to the creamery, or the butter she herself may make, are likewise doing essential service to their community and are deserving of the thanks of their fellow citizens.

The 696 songs of Schubert were written—sometimes ten in a day—in the fourteen years between the time he was 17 and his tragic death at 31.

Wonder Of Modern Surgery

Blood Transfusion Possible Without Attendance of Giver

London doctors have discovered that transfusion of blood can be made without the attendance of the giver of the blood alongside the patient receiving it. A pint and a half of blood taken from a person in Paddington was raced through London to a patient at Hampstead in Surrey and successfully transfused.

This wonder of modern surgery was done with the aid of a motor car and a new medical invention enabling the blood to be kept in perfect condition and at the necessary temperature during the journey.

Fifty years ago the first consignment of wheat was shipped from Western Canada. This shipment of 857 bushels of Red Fife wheat, the entire exportable surplus of the Canadian West at that time, left Winnipeg on October 12, 1876, consigned to L. C. Hewitt, a grain merchant of Toronto. It was sold for 45 cents per bushel by Higgins & Young of Winnipeg, whose bill head announced them as the "Importers of Boots, Shoes, Cigarbury and Clearware." The wheat was sent by a Red River bark to Duluth from which point it was shipped by railroad to Toronto, as there were no railroads in Western Canada until the early eighties.

In 1906 just 50 years later—Canada is the largest wheat exporting country in the world. The crop of the Dominion this year totals nearly 400,000,000 bushels, ninety per cent of which was grown in Western Canada, and that same part of the country now boasts of 10,000 miles of railroads, plus 40 canals, barley, rye, flax and an abundance of other field crops and farm products. The wheat crop of the Canadian West is now a dominant factor in the world's wheat situation, and the Canadian Wheat Pool, with its membership of about 120,000 actual farmers in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, controlling approximately 70 per cent of the total wheat acreage in Canada, is the largest farmers' co-operative organization in the world. The pool has selling agents in 51 ports of the world.

The anniversary of this historical event was celebrated by a banquet given by the Winnipeg Board of Trade at the Royal Alexandra Hotel, Winnipeg, on the 12th inst., at which the guests included the men who handled the first shipment, were among the speakers. In 1876, the year in which this shipment took place, 14,700 acres were planted to wheat, whereas this year the total acreage in Western Canada was 21,764,782 acres.

Can Keep Money Indefinitely

Does Not Mould or Spoil Under Any Conditions

Money, like other mighty economical sugar substitutes, will keep well for a long time with proper care, as it does not readily mould, deteriorate or spoil with, however, absorb moisture, and if exposed to a moist atmosphere, may become diluted to the point where the moisture occurs. It should be kept in a dry, warm, airy place, writes A. H. W. Birch, splutzir at the Ontario Experimental Farm, Ottawa. Temperature is not so important in the storing of nutritious honey. Where large quantities are stored it is frequently necessary, owing to the enormous weight to use the cellar, which, though it may be cool, soon get be damp. The consistency of extracted honey ought always to be tightly closed to exclude moisture and incidentally odors, should they gain access to the storeroom. Well ripened honey will keep for years if stored where it will not attract moisture.

Where comb-honey is kept in quantity, there should be a free circulating of air. While in May the storeroom is frequently heated on the sunny side of the house or it is placed in the attic near the roof. Windows must be opened only by dry weather.

Sheep And Swine Show

Great Interest in Taken at Annual Show held at Saskatoon

The annual sheep and swine show held in Saskatoon opened with in the neighborhood of 700 head of stock of all sizes, about 600 of which were sheep. The majority of the classes were well filled in the major breeds of both sheep and hogs in both market and breeding lots.

John Wilson of Innisfail, Alta., who judged the sheep, expressed it as his opinion of the quality of the animals that he had never seen the equal of it in western Canada, and that most of the lots in the various classes were exceptionally fine. Placings in the sheep shire and Oxford breeds was often close. Harry Falkner of Duval, Sask., and W. S. Brown of the Falconer of Saskatchewan judged the hogs. Competition in the Yorkshire breeding classes and in the market classes was genuine and even the majority of the fair crowd of spectators who followed the placings closely.

Four prominent breeders were present at the fair—Sanderson, Sask.; Wallace Lessage, Lashburn, Sask.; Stewart Abbotsford, B.C., and J. H. Whitehead Nanaimo, B.C. The last named is a very prominent breeder and the cup which he had offered for the best Saskatchewan bred shire stallion sheep at the show on the over 50 lbs. A beautiful cup, with its deep body and lots of broad type. Other winnings by the same breeder were first and first on pens of three ram lambs, first for best ram and ram lambs, first for flock considering of ram, two ewes and two ram lambs; first for breeding ram, first for ram lamb, first for ewe, first for shearling ewe and several other awards.

Good Business For Canada

Tourists Spent Nearly $200,000,000 in Dominion Last Year

Tourists from the United States spent $190,000,000 in Canada last year, J. M. Wardle, chief engineer of the Canadian National Parks, told the Good Roads Association at Edmonton, the other day. The sum is more than five times the value of the output of all the gold mines of the country for the year, and is 75 per cent greater than the output of all our metal mines. As the tourist business is good business, since it is all clear profit to the state, and the profits are immediate and beyond question, it would be the part of wisdom for Canada to do all she can to expand it. This can be done in two ways: by inducing more tourists to come and by inducing those who do to remain longer.—Vancouver Province.

New Grain Port Opened

Elevators at Prince Rupert Are Running to Capacity

Canada added a new and important grain port to her marine facilities when at the rate of 50,000 bushels per hour the new Dominion Government elevators at Prince Rupert began loading for Adam Mara with Alberta wheat. The Adam Mara is the first ship to leave the port carrying grain for the markets of the world. She loaded 3,000 tons of bulk wheat to Europe by way of the Panama Canal.

As she proceeded to her berth at the elevator, another Japanese tramp, S.S. Yetaka Mara entered the Prince Rupert Drydock and Shipbuilding plant to be fitted for immediate loading of another grain cargo.

The Province of Alberta grain pool has the elevator under lease and has arranged for a continuous supply of consignments. The Canadian National Railways is bringing solid grain trains from the prairies each day to keep the million and a quarter bushels grain handling plant rustling to capacity.

Although the initial shipments are for Glasgow, entrances of Japanese shipping interests into the commerce of the port marks the beginning of a large interchange of traffic with the Orient, the trade tonnage through the Panama to Europe.

The Road To Success

Willingness To Work and Courage to Do Rough Things

Pioneering is not the rough job it was once. The trees do not need to be cut down indeed, we are thinking of the pioneering that must be performed and ridden to a great extent. The new settler goes to the very door of his land, and there a car or boat and is supplied with every modern convenience to get about. The toilsome trekking that was once the lot of the Hardness to work" is still the great requisite. The willingness conquers all the rest. There is no right in having an "aversion to work." Without work there would be no progress, and the profits are immediate and beyond question, it would be the part of wisdom for Canada to do all she can to expand it. This can be done in two ways: by inducing more tourists to come and by inducing those who do to remain longer.—Vancouver Province.

Highway Improvement

Nearly a Million Dollars Spent This Year on Good Roads in the Province

Nearly a million dollars was spent on highway construction in Saskatchewan during the fiscal year 1926-27, it is to be recast. Since work began, in 1919, on this system of trunk highways, nearly five million dollars have been spent, or to actual figures $4,986,-953.61. Exactly two thousand miles of roadways have been built under this plan, according to reports from the Ministry of Highways, and a third of the amount can be credited to main market roads.

Canadian Farmer Has Relatively Happy Position Compared With Those In Other Zones

Community Breeding Of The Saddle Horse

Farmers Receiving Attractive Prices For Half-Bred Foals

In organizing the Experimental Horse Breeding Station in Prescience county, Ontario, in 1912, the Live Stock Branch of the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa did a good service not only for the farmers of the district but also for those who desire to buy saddle horses. The district served by the station has produced three crops of half bred foals from the thoroughbred stallions placed within it by the Department of Agriculture in co-operation with the Ontario Racing Association. At the recent horse show at the station, held near Kingston, about forty head of young stock were exhibited. Although the mares that produced these were of general purpose type and of varied breeding, the young stock were strikingly uniform, showing pronounced thoroughbred characteristics and possessed of sufficient weight to make first rate cavalry or saddle horses. The show brought out thirteen specimens of the hundred half bred foals produced in the district the first crop, besides good classes of yearling and two-year old, and three-year old stock. The farmers of the district are already receiving attractive prices for their half bred colts and it will take but a few years in being about a recognition of the district as a source of premium saddle horses. The headquarters of the station is the fourteen hundred acre farm of Major Palmer Wright, near Shelby's Locks, who is himself a breeder of considerable extent. The past two years the stallion "American" purchased by the Dominion Government at Sir Gilbert Grenfell's sale, in England, has been in charge of the station, and the services have been available for thirty half bred colts and it will take but a few years in being about a recognition of the district as a source of premium saddle horses. Dairy Industry Flourishes

Production of dairy products in Canada for now on at the high level with exports running to $57,060,000 annually. A report issued by Dr. J. A. Ruddick, Federal Dairy Commissioner, shows that the eastern half of Canada produces 99 per cent of the cheese and 71 per cent of the butter; while the inseparable part of the industry is gradually being shaken down.

Many people have the idea that farming in the so-called north temperate zone south is characteristic of the northern United States and Canada, is extended by climatic differences and combinations of soil and moisture, whereas in the sub-tropical areas of the earth. The National Resources Intelligence Service of the Department of the Interior at Ottawa points out, however, that the Canadian farmer is in a relatively happy position. His general season is fairly well defined. His average of a type that are emblematic of and to the changes of temperature and wind and, to a less extent, moisture, as to insure him with comparatively few worries during the bulk of the growing season. Moreover, summer weather in Canada is particularly favorable to plant growth on account of the unusually long days of clear sunshine, with periodic showers.

It must not be imagined that northern climatic conditions do not offer disadvantages as to climate. In the sub-tropical belts, favored as they are in many ways as to climate, the fight against frosts in California; how to protect his crops by wells or boilers that blow steam into the knows. In Malta and in southern Italy farmers fructures artificial ice in Palestine; in parts the repairing of his fruit crops during rain by covering them, as is trial; where it is customary to cover the lemons with screens of cloth; Cyprus, so that they may not be bruised. All the summer demand is at hand in Englund and America is forced to harvest his crops during the rainy season as Egypt and Mesopotamia, to fight tropical vegetation and fevers and sometimes insufficient labor, as in the equatorial regions, and so on.

Thus it will be seen that every habitable has its own problems to fight and overcome, and Canada, with its wholesome summer sunshine, periodic showers, moderate winters, freedom from extreme disturbance, is beautifully blessed in providence and will become increasingly fortunate as the land is developed and the population grows. The increase in density of her crops, the relatively little trouble with cultivation, the increasing land values and the rate of total returns.

Explanations and Comments

1. The Division of Canaan, verses 1-5.—The land of Canaan was divided among the twelve tribes by lots, and there were the two sons of Joseph (Ephraim and Manasseh) and the other sons of Jacob, Levi excepted. The total number of tribes remained twelve throughout the history of Israel, though at time passes we see the tribe of Simeon practically becoming a part of the tribe of Judah, and the two half tribes of Manasseh, the east and the other west of the Jordan, practically running as two tribes). "This is Judah's; this is Asher's; this is Simeon's; and this is Benjamin's," they said, even while the Amorites, the Jebusites, and the Hittites were in possession of it. The division made was the announcement in faith of certain high ideals which under God published they proposed to realize by the long and patient struggle which followed.

"Also for the dull-eyed boundrom people whose aspirations never get a road in advance of their present achievements. Unless we perpetually see visions and dream dreams, we shall never have the moral vigor, the spiritual insight for winning a land of promise. It is what we see by the eye of faith and steadily wait for that kindles our hearts to undertake the heroic tasks of life. If we compromise only what can already be mastered off by the surveyor's chain or weighed upon the hay scales, making the appearance for those hidden and supernatural forces which are ceaselessly at work around us and within us, we should fall wretchedly. It was one of the evidences that there Israelites were a chosen and favored people that their plans reached out into a hope for but unrealized future, when they divided up great stretches of country still in the hands of their foes."—(Dr. C. H. Rivers.)

CONFERENCE IS LIKELY TO LAST UNTIL NOV. 24

London.—Another three weeks in all probability lies ahead of the imperial conference.

Efforts are being made to speed up the work and adjournment of the conference by November 15 is suggested. But in view of the constitutional issues raised by Premier Hertzog there are voluminous details still to be dealt with by committees and it is doubtful if the conference can complete its work before November 24.

Premier King is making arrangements to be back in Ottawa for the opening of Parliament in December. He expects to spend a few days in Paris before sailing for Canada.

The Government of the Irish Free State is issuing invitations to the Premiers of the dominions to visit Dublin before returning home. But unless the conference concludes by November 15 it is very doubtful if Premier King will be able to accept.

Premier Mackenzie King, it is understood, does not propose to outline in his statement any additional defence plans on the part of Canada. Following the example of the British ministers he proposes to carry what is being done at the present time, but considers that any additional defence proposals are matters for the Canadian Government and the Canadian Parliament to decide.

Although there has been no official statement on the question of defence as far as Canada is concerned, it is considered probable that any development by the Dominion along this line would be in the encouragement of aviation. Premier King already has given his indication of this in promising full co-operation in the development of civilian air routes.

Proceeding With Disarmament Study

Military and Naval Commission Said to Have Overcome Difficulties

Geneva.—Disarmament studies in the naval and military commissions are said to be proceeding with less difficulty after the program was changed to permit submission of the feelings of each delegation to the preparatory commission which will make final decisions on technical matters. The plan was previously called for submission to the preparatory commission of the bare vote of the committees. Discussion in committee has lately been confined to a strictly technical basis with excellent results.

Germany Paying Up

Total Reparations Up To June 30 —About $750,000,000

London.—Mr. Quinness, financial secretary to the treasury, told the House of Commons a few days ago that the total payments by Germany in cash or kind, distributed by the Reparations Commission between the Allied Powers on account of reparations, up to June 30 was approximately $750,000,000. The amount to the British Empire was $125,000,000, of which the share of the United Kingdom was approximately $118,000,000.

A Divisional Point

Moose Jaw.—Ald. Hamilton would like to see a Canadian National Railway divisional point established here. He suggested that a petition be prepared to present to Sir Henry Thornton when he comes here on November 15 in connection with the official opening of the C.N.R. bridge over the South Saskatchewan River at Elbow. The assembled aldermen concurred with the suggestion at council last night.

Chinese Kill Consul

Peking.—Chinese bandits are reported to have killed M. Robert, French consul at Langchow in Langson, 60 miles to the south.

Grain Loadings Show Remarkable Increase

Amount Marketed at October 31 Greater Than Last Year

Winnipeg.—With 110,398,005 bushels of grain marketed, and 65,816 carloaded so at October 31, the golden harvest of the West is literally pouring to the Atlantic and Pacific coasts over the lines of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company. These figures represent a major increase in market flings and carloadings over the curves pending period of last year, during which 98,189,616 bushels were marketed and 59,172 cars loaded.

An idea of the magnitude of the October grain movement may be gain ed from the fact that if the car-loaded during the month were placed end to end they would extend over a distance of approximately 250 miles, while the engines required for the handling of the cars would cover 11 miles of track if situated into one long line.

Translated into terms of bread, the wheat alone marketed in 1,911,111,111 barrels of flour and would bake into 2,099,215,200 standard two-pound loaves.

Settlers From U.S.

Publicity Work, It is Claimed, Would Bring Large Numbers Here

Winnipeg.—Settlers from the United States are among the most fertile sources for prospective settlers for Western Canada, in the opinion of Colin H. Groff, publicity director of the province of Alberta. He has just completed a tour around the southern exhibition circuit.

Nebraska, Iowa and other mid West states are the best fields for prospective farmers who were anxious to move to Canada where they were being attracted by cheap lands, low taxes and high productivity. Mr. Groff believes that a number of prospective settler would visit Alberta and other points on the prairies next spring to ascertain the possibilities of farming in Canada as compared with the United States.

According to Mr. Groff there is still a great deal of misunderstanding about Canada among the United States farmers. Before there is any extensive influx from the south, the unfavorable impressions must be removed, he said.

Nine Million Pounds Of Twine

Co-Operative Supply Department of U.F.C. Transacts Large Volume of Business

Nearly nine million pounds of binder twine were handled by United Grain Growers for the harvesting of the 1926 crop. This makes a total of over forty million pounds of twine handled by the company during the past five years, and for over eighty-five million pounds of twine since the company's inception. Five years ago the twine business was not large enough to warrant the company in handling it, but in 1914, when the company, the Grain Growers' Grain Company Saskatchewan, the distribution of binder twine it was impossible for a farmer's organization to buy twine at wholesale prices, and the company in spite of its large purchasing power, had a fixed deal of difficulty in making satisfactory deals. For a time it was necessary to import twine made in Ireland. Before that time twine was handled only through retail or fixed-retail channels, and the retail profits allowed added from two to four cents a pound to the cost of twine. Now, thanks to the work done by the farmer's company, a large part of the twine used is distributed through farmer organizations, at 1 to 4 cents, tors and by local associations. The total savings to farmers that have resulted are not easy to estimate, but probably two million dollars less has been paid by farmers for U.G.G.-twine than they would have had to pay on conditions formerly prevailing, and still prevailing to a certain extent in parts of the country where there is no competition from farmers' organizations in the handling of twine. But that is only a part of the saving. To farmers, because this competition has brought about a lower scale of prices on twine all over the country, amounting in savings of many millions.

More than two million dollars' worth of farm supplies are handled each year by United Grain Growers. Besides binder twine one of the largest items is flour and feed, of which last year, 1925 alone were sold, nearly all at elevators equipped with flour sheds. The value of this was $286,123, and during the past five years flour and feed to the value of over $1,500,000 have been distributed. The coal business of the company amounts to over half a million dollars each year, more than 75 thousand carloads being handled. While most of this goes through elevator coal sheds, a good deal is sold through local associations, which before the company entered the field were unable to buy coal at wholesale prices.

TO SUPPRESS ALL OPPOSITION TO FASCISM IN ITALY

Rome.—Fascist Sully, always stirred to delirious enthusiasm by the utterances of his leader, Benito Mussolini, is now cooking with deadly determination to suppress all opposition to Fascism.

Violent demonstrations throughout Italy against anti-Fascists have led to the death and injury of many persons. Greater bloodshed was prevented only by the heroic efforts of heavily reinforced patrols of carabineers and militiamen, not a few of whom were brained and beaten while fighting back infuriated mobs which attempted to wreck offices of opposition newspapers and the homes of known opponents of Fascism.

Blazing was checked in a measure through the personal intervention of Dr. Bonelli, vice-secretary general of the Fascist party. At Cagliari, Sardinia, fascist manifestants, after invading the offices of two newspapers, marched to the home of the anti-Fascist deputy, Lissoni, in front of which they staged a hostile demonstration, being prevented from smashing in the doors by carabineers. One of the Fascists named Porru climbed the side of the house and was straddling the balcony when Lissoni shot and killed him.

Bersanino: "Lynch him," the mob again buried itself against the soldier guards, who began to bash the enraged Fascists and arrested Lissoni.

At Naples the homes of the philosopher, Croce, the dramatist, Robert Bracco, the publicist, Labriola, and a number of other opponents were wrecked. Similar incidents occurred at Venice and elsewhere.

Cattle Shipments To Britain

Considerable Falling Off of Shipments From Canada is Reported

Montreal.—Of 14 cattle sailings from Canada to the United Kingdom during the present month, ten are scheduled to commence in Montreal. This number is slightly in excess of the monthly average for the present season, but is three below the monthly average for the same six months of last year.

Shipments of cattle from Canada this year have been nearly 100 per cent below those for last season over the same period, and none of the unusually large number of cattle now monthly totals sent overseas has been within 1,500 head of the corresponding totals for last year, and in most cases have been 2,000 head less.

THE REFINERY

The refinery, which will be fitted with the most up-to-date machinery, will be built at Wainwright, Alberta, right in the heart of the drilling belt. The policy for this is obvious. Transportation is one of the vital problems to a refinery. Reducing oil and its value, bit by pipeline, it will be delivered at a highly profitable. There is nothing speculative about this. It is a going investment. Vast sums of money are made in the U.S.A. in refining, under the 25% oil gravities to 15 as compared to Canada. The company mean to have these new processes put into use in order to take every element of profit available for the benefit of the shareholders. Gasoline is a necessity and a luxury. The profits of companies would not have without it, Canada pays today to the U.S.A. and on our own refining (the Refinery Plan will put the money for petroleum products, which is now paid to U.S. Canada in the future.

Col. Harkness, Commissioner for Oil and Gas to the Ontario Government, in his speech in Edmonton recently, said the possibility in the Wainwright field was very great, and that the field has barely been scratched at yet.

Italian Women Are Barred From Office

Not Eligible for Municipal Positions, is New Ruling

By a decision made in the Ministry of Internal Affairs, Italian women have been definitely cut off from all participation in the political life of the nation.

It now rank, in fact, that women are not eligible for the post of Podesta. The Podestas are the Italian equivalent of Mayors, except that they are appointed by the National Government instead of being elected by popular suffrage.

The women's suffrage movement has undergone strange vicissitudes under Mussolini's Government in Italy. First he granted the women the right to vote in municipal elections which was generally interpreted as the first step toward granting them suffrage in political elections. No sooner had this act been obtained than the adoption of the system, by Podestà, suppressing municipal elections, deprived the women of their newly acquired right to vote.

The recent ruling by the Ministry of Internal Affairs rob them also of the right of becoming the mistress of politics which they had won when they were granted the municipal suffrage.

Joanna gave him more directions through her speaking tube. He stopped just beyond a corner and opened the cabriolet door.

"It is the fourth house from here on this side," Joanna explained. "You will recognize it by the sign at the side of the door. It reads 'John Wilmore, architect.' There'll be an old woman with a rag tied around her head come to the door. If any of the children answer you tell them to get the old woman, she's the landlady. If she's all right, if she doesn't think you're an officer come to take her in for having a flower pot or something on the fire escape. If she does she'll slam the door in your face, so you'd better stick this bill in her hands as soon as she sees you. Then she'll tell you if Mr. Wilmore is in. If he is give her another bill and tell her to keep her mouth shut about the inquiry. If he isn't tell her that I'm coming in to talk to her."

When the hilarious guests, some of them frankly boisterous, began to reassemble into their original groupings and my theory about Joanna's gorgeous gown was crushed, her shimmering hair ruffled, and her face sparkling. The night had been like wine to her, and she was vital with the stimulus of it. Dorminster wanted to linger at his parting, but she mocked at him. When she saw that his face clouded she was prettily penitent and gave him her hand to kiss. To Kenilworth she was more serious. She looked up at him rather shyly.

"You know," he said, "I am taking a very marvelous woman with me."

"Thank you sir," was all the comfort she would give him.

Yvonne was enthusiastic weary. "I always slumber as the night of the debris after a night like this," she informed Joanna when the last guest had gone and the big way. "Shall we go up stairs to my room. We can talk in all ever, for a while. A party must be talked about before one goes to bed, you know."

They talked until the sun broke into Yvonne's boudoir. Then Joanna, in her tight fitting pajamas and transparent, rolled down boudoir socks, obeyed Yvonne's command that she run along for at least two hours of sleep. She didn't sleep, however, but sat in her easy chair, her brown curls in her hands, thinking them. Martha, her own maid, found her sitting there on the sunwashed corvette which were just as they had been turned down the night before, the warm sunlight bathing her figure and making a gay cap of her bright brown head. The pearls which had been her only jewelled ornament still glistened around her throat. A flower that had remained fresh in the warm atmosphere of the evening, was crushed on the floor. Joanna now Martha came in, but refused at her behest to go to bed, assume before she comprehended her. Then she curtly ordered her bath.

Brandon had arranged with her for the visit, that day, Eggleton at his home on the Avenue. They planned for Joanna to pick Brandon up at his own office in a downtown skyscraper, and drive him, in her new and smart cabriolet, to the Eggleton mansion. The appointment had been for one o'clock, as they were to lunch with the banker. The cabriolet, with its chauffeur in gray that matched the silken seamless within, drew up in front of Yvonne's shortly after eleven. Joanna, soft and graceful and elegant in spotless linen trimmed with lace, in which her pulled down over her eyes, and carrying a pliant swagger stick in her hand, tripped lightly down the stairs and into her car. Martha had turned her out quickly to make it possible for her to meet her car on some of the crowded streets. It was nothing of drowsiness in her face or her eyes. She was alert, vibrant, and confident of the generous perfections of her appearance.

She made her driver put his hand inside the door while she gave him instructions—orders that seemed explanations and repetition.

The car did not go down the Avenue in the swiftly moving panorama of other smart cabriolets, toward the office building where Brandon, later would be waiting for her. Instead it turned into one of the back streets, also avenues but only in name, and moved quietly between the palisades of the elevated railroad line neighborhoods most visited by delivery and freight vans. It came at last to a cross street which pierced a district of tenements of the better grade—old dwellings made into furnished rooms and cramped housekeeping flats; much the kind of homes as that which had been Joanna's at Mrs. Adams'.

The chauffeur scanned the house numbers, many of which were hidden. Joanna gave him more directions through her speaking tube. He stopped just beyond a corner and opened the cabriolet door.

"It is the fourth house from here on this side," Joanna explained. "You will recognize it by the sign at the side of the door. It reads 'John Wilmore, architect.' There'll be an old woman with a rag tied around her head come to the door. If any of the children answer you tell them to get the old woman, she's the landlady. If she's all right, if she doesn't think you're an officer come to take her in for having a flower pot or something on the fire escape. If she does she'll slam the door in your face, so you'd better stick this bill in her hands as soon as she sees you. Then she'll tell you if Mr. Wilmore is in. If he is give her another bill and tell her to keep her mouth shut about the inquiry. If he isn't tell her that I'm coming in to talk to her."

CHAPTER XIX.

A Visit to John's Quarters

From her silken cushions in the cabriolet Joanna waited impatiently until her chauffeur, after a brief parley at the door of the house to which she had sent him, returned. The man said:

"The woman came. She says Mr Wilmore is not at home."

"Then you may wait for me here."

A half score of street urchins already had gathered about the smartly shining cabriolet, its dull gray chauffeur carried from its dainty fittings to the satin sheen of its expensive hood. Such an imposing car seldom invaded that neighborhood and its placid occupancy of ghosts of the days when the streets of house and not mere sleeping quarters.

The slim, elegant figure that few patrons of a silk counter would have recognized, smiled at the urchins, pushed through them, and entered, dazzling, into the depths of the house where John had formed for himself a tiny sleeping room and another, a larger one, with the precious north light, which he could turn into his workroom.

During the days John served at his apprenticeship with the firm of architects who provided him his necessary training. His talents were recognized. A bright future was predicted for him. But, so far, John's returns had been indeed meager—as in the usual condition of the student of a difficult profession. If, at times, Florence, Van Dyke & Craig were dubious of their young John Wilmore, it was because he was inclined to be a dreamer. That is, his talents and simplicity were of the mind that was much too eager to skip such fundamentals as the proper angle on a drain pipe and commonplace monumental harmonies.

Perhaps John would have agreed with the more heads that guided him through his student possibilities. Perhaps that was why he confined his dreaming, so far as possible, to the hours of watched leaves, when he bent over his drawing board, with his blue prints and tracer—by the north light in the early mornings, and the hours of

When the hilarious guests, some of them frankly boisterous, began to reassemble into their original groupings and my theory about Joanna's gorgeous gown was crushed, her shimmering hair ruffled, and her face sparkling. The night had been like wine to her, and she was vital with the stimulus of it. Dorminster wanted to linger at his parting, but she mocked at him. When she saw that his face clouded she was prettily penitent and gave him her hand to kiss. To Kenilworth she was more serious. She looked up at him rather shyly.

Yet, as I approached it, love it cannot love Him if I love you not.

And this love He desires to perish. Wherefore, whosoever has love of the Lord has the Lord's love, and cannot help loving his neighbor.

Throat Trouble

Toronto, Ont.—"For about eight years, I was subject to laryngitis, my throat would get very sore and I would lose my voice. I would have a spell of this kind a couple of times a year, especially in the winter when the weather was cold and changeable. It would be a couple of months each time before I would fully recover from these colds and get my voice back. I received such good medicine with little added that I began taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and it has so completely relieved me of this trouble that I scarcely ever have a sore throat or cold, in any form, or any other trouble."—Mrs. A. RELIGIOUS COUNCIL OF ALBERTA ORGANIZES NEW UNIT

The ladies of Lamont furnished a bountiful supper, which was served in the dining room of the church. The feast of good things was enthusiastically attacked by the thirty-five delegates present, with good results. Upon presentation of the report of the nominating committee Mr. Bainbridge of Lamont was elected president, Rev. Hoffman of Josephburg, vice-president, and Mr. Campbell of Chipman secretary-treasurer. Members of the executive were chosen from each of the parishes represented.

The evening session was in charge of the new president, Mr. Bainbridge, who conducted the devotionals, and presented the speaker for the evening, Prof. Dr. Miller of Alberta College North, who gave a very interesting address with the aid of the steriopticon on "The Constitution of Archaeology to Old Testament Knowledge."

A few items of business were speedily disposed of, a hearty vote of thanks tendered the pastor and session and ladies of Lamont church for the use of the church and the splendid hospitality enjoyed, and the time and place of the next meeting placed in the hands of the executive. The atmosphere of friendliness and the intense interest displayed bespeak a long life of usefulness for this live organization.

I don't want you to receive the impression that Jackie was tough. She wasn't; she was only an excitement hunting girl, scarcely seventeen.

"Mother is in an awful state of mind," she murmured, already about half-way home.

She quickened her pace, and in less than two minutes had found herself in her own door, breathless and heated. It yielded at her touch, and she burst into the hall. Her heart almost stopped bombing at the sight which greeted her.

Stretched from the ceiling by a strand of golden hair was her mother's head.

C. G. I. T. MOTHER AND DAUGHTER BANQUET

The Mother and Daughter banquet given by the C.G.I.T. in the buffet room of the Memorial hall on Monday evening, November 15, was a huge success. The hall was prettily decorated with blue and white streamers which were draped from the lights to the corners of the tables. Blue, white and gold candles in brass holders shed a mellow light over the banquet tables which were laden with delectable viands, the work of the young housewives.

Some forty-two girls with their mothers sat down to the feast while others acted as attentive waitresses. Miss Helen Moore was the mistress of ceremonies and proposed the toast to the King, which was responded to in the usual manner. Miss Connie Turner in a winsome little speech gave us a clear, pleasing voice, paid a tribute to "Our Mothers" who guide us along the "Friendly Road." Mrs. C. H. Grauert followed with an address on "The Companions along the Road." She indicated the companions whose presence should be cultivated and those who should be shunned. "Be the sort of companion to others that you would have them be to you," she concluded. Miss Della Foss spoke of "The Guideposts along the Road" in a short, neat address. Mrs. Kingsley's topic was "The Milestones on the Road." She dealt particularly with that point in a girl's life when she is "Standing with reluctant feet, Where brook and river meet."

Mrs. Rogers dealt with the difficulties at "The Forks of the Road" and Mrs. Hodgins gave an inspirational address on "The Destination." Her words were full of understanding and sympathy for girls and were given in a manner both motherly and comradely.

During the evening C.G.I.T. songs led by Miss Olive Lane with Miss Muriel Shackleton at the piano enlivened the proceedings. The program closed with "Taps" and a hearty vote of appreciation to the girls and their leaders, Miss Olive Walker and Miss Irene Groves, which was proposed by Mrs. J. Carscadden.

On Friday, the 26th, the members of the Dramatic Society met to organize and elect their officers. Mr. Poole is becoming more absent-minded very day. It is reported that last week in a play he was to have the part of a fierce Assyrian King talking to his empire. This is the speech he delivered as recorded by a grade nine pupil:

"GLORIOUS DEAD" NOT FORGOTTEN IN THE FORT

A most gratifying tribute was paid to the boys of the district who fell in the great war by the large attendance at the memorial service on Armistice day. A great number of people stood around while president Harper, of the local branch of the Canadian Legion, read a most appropriate address, placed a wreath at the foot of the monument, and requested his comrades to stand in attention during the two minutes silence.

All business of the town was suspended for the short time necessary for all employers and employees to attend the service. All the school children and boy scouts were paraded to the Memorial square and reverently took their part in the tribute accorded the "glorious dead."

The local branch of the Canadian Legion held a smoker the evening of Armistice day which was only fairly well attended. Cigars, cigarettes and refreshments were served during the evening and various popular entertainers contributed songs to which no less than three accomplished pianists played accompaniments. (One at a time, of course, as it was only an ordinary sized, determinedly upright piano.)

The Harmony Four orchestra also gave valuable assistance towards the success of the occasion.

An Age of Opportunity

Occasionally young people of today are heard deploring what they are pleased to term the fact that in these times there are not the same opportunities available for amassing great wealth, or of making a big place for them selves in the world, as was the case fifty or even five or one hundred years ago. They hold the view that conditions which made it possible for a Rockefeller, a Vanderbilt, an Astor in the United States, or a Massey or Timothy Eaton in Canada to lay the foundations of great businesses and accumulate fortunes for themselves and families no longer exist, and that they must perforce remain the servants and employees of others.

These are mere excuses to cover up their own deficiences, lack of initiative and energy. Those who make such excuses are invariably of the type who are quite unwilling to endure the hardships and perform the long and arduous work which was inseparable from the early years of the men of a few scores of years ago who laid the foundation for the great prosperous of which these youthful pessimists of today are envious.

The truth is that in no previous era in the world's history were there as many and as promising opportunities for young men and women as are presented to them today. The trouble is that, too often, the youth of today wants the pleasures and luxuries of success without being willing to first under go the sacrifices and self-denials through which success can be won. They are impatient of the day of small things, of the slow but gradual building up process. They demand the impossible,—immediate success without effort and enjoyment before labor.

For the earnest, painstaking worker possessed of initiative and courage, the present is indeed an age of golden opportunities. Present day business fairly teems with examples of astounding successes achieved within the short space of a few years. Just to mention one such example. It is only twenty-five years since the now well known Gillette Safety Razor Co. was formed with the insignificant capital of thirty dollars. Today its paid-up capital stock has a market value of two hundred million dollars. The 51 razors sold in 1904 have grown to a total of 16,962,000 in 1925, while the sale of a mere 14 packets of blades in 1903 increased to 52,943,525 packets in 1925. The Company has paid cash dividends aggregating $84,007,201. What a romance in business in this present century!

The automobile within the same epoch of time has revolutionized our modes of living, has created scores of multi-millionaires and made Henry Ford the world's wealthiest individual. Within the last half dozen years the radio has come into practical use opening new fields of employment and advancement and wealth for hundreds and thousands of wide-awake enterprising men.

How can anyone think, much less declare, that the day of great opportunities is past and gone? Great as have been the discoveries and developments of the past, the present is even more prolific and astonishing. The opportunities are vastly greater. The youth of today is, let it be emphasized, living in a golden age of opportunity with possibilities open to him unsurpassed, undreamed of, a couple of generations ago.

Not only so, but the world today is not so skeptical of new ideas and inventions, and the man with an innovation gets a hearing and a chance to demonstrate his plans, where in former years he had to do battle against prejudices and an ultra-conservatism which found expression in open and bitter opposition.

Where not so long ago a young man without position or money had a long, bitter, uphill fight to obtain recognition, today he is given every chance to make good, and if he fails the fault lies largely with himself, or the impracticability of his ideas, and not in the recurring accorded him by an eager and appreciative world. He is not denied his opportunity to make good, the great difficulty is that so many do not see, or, seeing, fail to grasp the opportunity at their hand.

There are still undeveloped fields of endeavor awaiting ambitious youth just as great with promise as were the unknown spaces of the United States in the first half of the nineteenth century, or in Canada in the years when the Fathers of Confederation framed their practical dream of a Dominion stretching from the Atlantic to the Pacific and the pioneers first began the task of developing the prairies of the West.

Students Discard Robes

No longer will the students in the prominent school of Egypt all wear the traditional sheik's robes. After a heated but significant civil war, they discarded the flowing robes for the modern dress. The minister of education favored the robes and threat ened to close the schools if the students entered class rooms by wearing robes over their modern suits and shedding them while remaining in school.

THE TIRED OUT WOMAN

Needs the Help of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to Regain Strength

No mother should allow nervous weakness to fix itself upon her; if she does worry will mar her work in the home and torment her in mind and body. Nervousness in the average housewife's daily toil is responsible for endless misery, and there are other causes, as every mother knows, that tend to weaken and make her nerves run-down. A change and tonic is needed; improved health is the best of all for tired women in a course of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These pills make new blood, rich with the elements on which the body and nerves thrive.

The value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills when the blood is impoverished, watery, and the system run down is shown by the experience of Mrs. C. W. Jackson, R.R. 1, Gilford, Ont., who says:—"Before beginning the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills I was completely run-down and could hardly walk across the floor. As the mother of young children with the usual household duties to perform, my condition was one of seriousness. I had seen Dr. Williams' Pink Pills advertised and decided to try them. This was a happy decision as I had not been taking the pills very long before I began to feel better both in body and in mind. I continued the use of the pills for a couple of months and now feel like a new woman able to perform all my household duties. I would not be without the pills in the house and can highly recommend them to run-down people."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all dealers in medicine, or will be sent by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Films Depicting Canadian Scenes Are Used To Good Advantage In Advertising This Country Abroad

Not the least important feature of the Canadian Government has been to correct, both at home and abroad, the erroneous impressions gained and sometimes spread by poets, novelists, disgruntled immigrants and tourists. Manufacturers. Even today there are people who cannot dissociate Canada from the Bruce North West Mounted Police, polar bears, barren land regions, Chinese fur-traders and the rest of the innumerable pictures so frequently drawn by those who know and care nothing about the Dominion.

In 1917 the Canadian Government realized the instructive value of the cinematograph camera and decided to go into the motion picture business. There then came into being, as a branch of the Trade and Commerce Department, the official Motion Picture Bureau which since has rendered good service by depicting to the world, more clearly than in words, the wealth, opportunity and scenic beauty presented to the intending immigrant. Like the prophet of old the word of the Lord is best known and appreciated in Canada possibly than any one of a sense of countries.

On the principle that people do not appreciate fully that which is given them free of charge, the bureau has conducted its campaign abroad in direct competition with the commercial cinematograph film, and has done so with great success. Canadian films have been exposed by foreign exhibitors on their own merit; in Great Britain particularly there is a steady demand for them. Not only have they attracted immigrants, but in several instances they have attracted valuable trade.

For instance a film on road-making in Canada was being shown some years ago in South Africa when a member of the audience was so impressed by the efficiency of Canadian road-making machinery that he asked the bureau to put him in touch with the makers, and a substantial order followed.

Practically all the departments of the Dominion Government in Ottawa have at one time or another availed themselves of the bureau's services. Interestingly busy calls are being made

The tremendous value of the film as a medium of national propaganda is being realized by other nations of the world, which are following Canada's example. At the present time 16 nations, headed by Great Britain, are trying to break the dominion of the Hun-world held by the United States, and the matter is of such importance as to merit discussion at the imperial conference in London. Perhaps Imperial action will be taken on a head set by Canada nearly a decade ago.

Major Foster Says Same Live More Than Fifty Years

How long do fish live? Major F. S. Foster, in a lecture before the London Zoological Society, gave some interesting data on a special study he had conducted on this subject.

Age determinants in the London Zoo, it was reported, Brook trophys were. A European catfish in the private aquarium of the Duke of Bedford is 50 years old and shows little indication of weakness.

Other fish age figures given by the Major were: Carp, 15 years; goldfish, 18 years; herring, 4 years; salmon, 8 years; bull frog, 14 years; tree frog, 14 years; female Spanish newt, 15 years, and giant salamander, 53 years.

Alberta Has Bumper Crop

Second Largest Crop in History of the Province

Final compilations are expected to show that the average yield of wheat throughout the Province of Alberta this year will be 19 bushels per acre on 6,774,000 acres, giving a total yield of 128,725,000 bushels. This is the second largest crop of wheat in the history of the province. The largest crop was 144,000,000 bushels in 1923

The wheat yield this year in the three Prairie Provinces is now expected to reach about 360,000,000 bushels, Manitoba estimates a crop of 45,000,000 bushels as against 36,000,000 in 1925, Saskatchewan to 235,000,000 bushels. Last year the value of the Western wheat crop was $467,520,000 from 312,000,000 bushels.

The value has yet to be computed, but as wheat has risen sharply in the past few weeks by 12 cents or more, until it has recently reached around $1.45 at Winnipeg the prosperity for farmers of assuring himself of the necessary "turn over." Played The Game

Small Girl Would Not Cheat To Win Coveted Prize

An odd little story is making the rounds of Canadian papers. It tells of a wee girl in the first grade who, with great care and much hard labor, raised a few asters for the school fair. Alas! the night before the show a slipping of a day or so before the exhibit was to be made and the flowers were blighted. Disappointing the keen disappointment to the little girl her aunt suggested that a few asters from her own stock should be added to the somewhat wilt ed flowers which the child was bravely carrying away as part of her work for the fair. "But that wouldn't be playing fair," responded the child and went off with her own flowers conscious that she had lost the coveted prize before her but that she had played the game above.

This is one of those stories told to point a moral and adorn a tale, one is left to wonder how many of those who have to do with fairs, and exhibits and shows, big and little, the world over.

Canada's Demand For Goods

Advertising is Only Way to Keep People Interested

The finest goods in the world if merely placed on the merchant's shelves will stay there and gather dust. If, however, the buying public is informed that they are on the shelves then the buying public will see to it that they are removed.

The only way the buying public can be informed that these finest goods in the world are open to its demand is by advertising it to the shortest and the most direct avenue of communication between the retailer and the consumer it provides the former with a method of assuring himself of the necessary "turn over." It directs the latter in his search for that which he needs. Further, it is a means of introducing to both necessities and luxuries and through that introduction creating a demand. Utilization Of Waste Lands For Development Of Fur Farming To Meet The Demand For Pelts

Scheme Sounds Reasonable

Eastern Farmers Working Worn Out Land Might Come to Prairies

A scheme to stop the exodus of Canadian farmers to the United States and at the same time increase the farming population of the West and other more recently opened sections of the Dominion, and convert a greater number of people, than at any previous time. The world demand for furs has increased so greatly that the fur industry is confronted with new problems, among the most important of which is an assured supply of good quality raw product such as Canada is able to furnish.

The limited supply of high quality furs in comparison to the demand, has forced the industry to use pelts formerly considered of little value, many of which are imported from foreign countries. The public is deceived as to the extent of this practice by a variety of trade names applied to certain furs among which the fur of the rabbit is perhaps outstanding.

The fur farming industry has received considerable consideration from an influential body of the fur retailers and certain principles in this regard have been agreed upon. That the industry will undoubtedly not be content with the continued substitution of these low grade pelts and other means of increasing the supply of better grade furs will be eagerly welcomed.

Fur farming has already become a well established industry and the number of fur farms, principally owned by carmel hands and the acclimation of waste lands and water areas is advanced as a suggestion which may provide a solution in part of an adequate fur supply. Already a number of experiments in Canada along these lines have met with considerable success. "Fur farming" or the raising of such fur-bearers as the muskrat, in pens kept under their natural habitat, is also an important departure of intense interest which is being developed. If successful, this practice will materially add to the supply of raw pelts of high grade.

As a result of the increasing demand for information in regard to Canada's resources of fur bearing wild lee and the raising of fur bearing animals by captivity, the Natural Resources Intelligence Service has prepared a number of monographs in English and French on Canada's fur bearers and their domestication including beaver, fisher, muskrat, mink, marten, otter, chinchilla rabbit, skunk and bison etc. These reports contain data relative to descriptive, habitat, production, trapping methods, breeding, ranch practice, shipping, pelt values, breeding stock values, markets, manufacture and taxation as well as their economic and commercial importance.

It is interesting to note that inquiries relative to Canada's present and prospective fur resources and especially the raising of fur bearers in captivity have come from Canada, but from the United States and foreign countries including both Europe and Asia.

Canada's telegraph bill was $1t, 539,223 in 1925, according to the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. Messages received from the United States numbered 2,747,824 Cable grams despatched to England and continental Europe totalled 874,696, while those received in Canada amounted to 3,179,980

Trans-Atlantic Champion

W. A. Williams, of Montreal, claims to be the undisputed champion for trans-Atlantic journeys. He has to his credit 117 trips between America and Europe and is confident that few persons, with the exception perhaps of a few old sea captains, can claim an equal record. Williams is a commercial buyer and in the employ of outstanding Canadian business houses, his main job numerous journeys across the Atlantic. Considering that Mr. Williams's first trips were made years ago it would be fair to assume that an average of nine days has been spent at each crossing. In all Mr. Williams has figured that he has spent well over three solid years on board ship and has steadily journeyed nearly 500,000 ocean miles. Most of his trips have been on Canadian Pacific liners, where he is one of the best known passengers. The above photograph shows Mr. Williams against the rail of the Canadian Pacific liner "Montcalm," on which liner he completed his 117th trans-Atlantic journey recently.

Soon the dirt got into the wound and it festered, condition after a time my left ankle took a bad turn. The pain became so acute as I began to fear that the poisoned blood-poison would spread all over my system and make me seriously ill. I was getting worse and worse, when a friend told me to try Zam-Buk. The powerful healing antiseptic oil pain, congestion and inflammation. It healed perfectly."

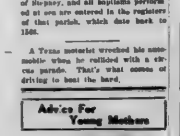
Advice For Young Mothers



The Sure Guide

Hamilton, Ont.—"Before the arrival of my little boy my health was very poor, my back hurt and my nerves were so upset I could not sleep. I grew very weak and miserable and suffered from morning sickness. Finally I saw Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription in the drug store where I trade, so I decided to try it, and it did me a world of good. It relieved me of all distress in my body, built me up in strength and my nerves did not give me any more trouble. I got about the first remedies of the time and I had a very strong healthy baby. In addition to bearing a normal baby and strong in health, her of a certain mental strain, from which most women suffer, I highly recommend."— Mrs. Joseph Cann, 149 Bay St., North. Family Life On The Amazon

Returned Explorer Gives Many Interesting Facts About Natives

Dr William McGovern, the explorer and anthropologist, who recently returned to London after spending a year on the Amazon completing for hitherto undiscovered tribes, came across one Indian who had only heard of white men. Some were civilized tribes with culture, and had a political and religious organization of their own. Others were on wild and primitive that they had no houses, could not even swim, and up roots for their nourishment, and only showed themselves higher than the animals by their use of fire. Dr. McGovern says some of the natives he visited think nothing of living 200 or 300 in one huge room. The center of the room is used as a sort of common drawing room, and the various families live on "allotments" all round the family allotment being big enough to contain a central fire and the necessary number of hammocks to sleep in. The staple food of the natives is the manioca—a sort of potatoes potato from which the poison is extracted by a complicated process of evaporation.

Useful in Camp—Explorers, surveyors, prospectors and hunters will find Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil very useful in camp. When the feet and legs are wet and cold it is well to rub them freely with the Oil and the result will be the prevention of pains in the muscles, and should a cut, or more also, or sprain be sustained, nothing could be better as a dressing or lotion.

1. Joshua Reminds the People of God's Help Throughout Their History. Joshua, 24:1-15.—Having assembled the people at Shechem, sending a special summons to everyone in authority, the elders, the heads of houses, the judges and the officers. He began his farewell admonitions by calling to mind their hearts with a recital of God's care and help from the time of Abraham to that present moment when they were in possession of land on which they had not labored, of cities which they had not built, and vineyards and olivegrards which they had not planted. He told all this in the form of a speech from Jehovah himself, thus stressing the fact that he and they were about instruments of the divine will. "I give . . . I sent . . . I plagued . . . Manitoba Tourist Trade

Winnipeg Tourist and Convention Bureau Has an Active Summer

The Winnipeg Tourist and Convention Bureau registered a number equal to 56 per cent of all the motor cars that crossed the border of the Manitoba Border from the United States, and remained for more than twenty-four hours, up to October 15, 1926. This includes Emerson, Gretna, Killarney, Cartwright, Crystal City, Melita, Snowflake, Sandercrest, Piney, Waskada, Hasbolt and all ports of entry. 105,710 people came across the border of Manitoba from the United States and 78,912 of these stayed less than a day, while 30,494 came in for a period ranging from two up to thirty days.

A days' stay would mean over $2,000,000.00 left in our country based on an expenditure of $10.75 per capita per day. A two day's stay would mean an expenditure of more than $4,000,000.00, while the total average of 2½ days, which is accepted by all members of the I.A.C.B. as being correct, would mean a gross expenditure of over $7,000,000.00 in Manitoba during the past season.

The Norse Association of Canada, serving Scandinavian and the Norwegian Singers of America, one thousand strong, already have selected Winnipeg as well as numerous others, ranging in attendance from 200 to 2,000. Winnipeg has also secured the I.A.K. Convention for 1928, attendance 25,000.

Empire Loves Members Free

Reason British Commonwealth Gets Along Without Any Friction

The paradox of the British Commonwealth is that it has really modern by being incoherent. It will hang together while its members are free. To attempt to bind it by the ties of formal bonds would dissolve the whole structure.

We live together as a system of free people, sprung from one root, speaking one language, recognizing one sovereignty, but at liberty to go our separate ways if we choose.

Within the limits of that necessity there is abundant room for common action and mutual helpfulness. We can meet and discuss, as members of one family. We can clear the channels of trade and improve the Imperial lines of communication.

Above all, we can keep the air sweet and clean, the temperature warm, the atmosphere friendly. If the spirit be right, we need not fear that anything will go wrong with the works.—From John Bull, London.

Committee Struggling With Locarno Treaty

Decision to Outlaws and Limits Pugwash Being Made

London.— The legal committee of the Imperial conference headed by Hon. Ernest Lapolate is still struggling with the Locarno treaty, trying to draft a memorandum on the subject for future guidance in such cases, but apparently has made little progress because of the delicacy of the problem and the failing among the delegates to agree upon the exact wording of the memorandum.

It can be taken for granted, however, that as a result of the delegates' deliberations, the British government will be in a better position to sign any future treaty like Locarno although they feel that the result of getting Germany into the League justifies the treaty entirely.

TO ENCOURAGE IMMIGRATION OF FARM WORKERS

London. When the new agreement between the Canadian and British governments and the Atlantic transportation companies for the completion of the 42 (£16.5s) fare for emigrants from Great Britain to Canada is finally concluded it is not likely that any radical extensions will be made in the classification of the emigrants coming under its provisions.

The existing agreement which will expire at the end of this year is intended roughly to bona fide intending farm workers and domestic servants. It is understood representations have been made that Canada should extend the scope of the agreement to include certain classes of industrial workers, but it is unlikely such a course will be followed.

The position taken by Canada's representative here is, it is understood, is that an extension of the agreement to include industrial workers would involve the whole question of such workers beyond the Dominion's power of absorption.

While the present terms of the new agreement are unlikely to vary much from the existing agreement with regard to classifications, it is hoped additional arrangements will be made under which the migration of intending farm workers will be encouraged. The British Government is also finding farms for intending farm workers' emigrants. Those farms take men of agricultural experience and families of farm work. The original course of six months has been found too long and alternative for the handling of any considerable number of men and has been reduced to four months.

It is expected by this and other modifications in the existing course that the migration of bona fide intending farm workers to Canada will be stimulated.

Canada's Death Rate Falling

People Living Longer Because Statistical Information Is Available

Ottawa.—Canada is fighting disease with figures Experts say they are achieving, that the death rate among infants and from cancer and tuberculosis is being gradually reduced. The conclusion now has a uniform system of vital statistics.

Until quite recently each province had a different system. Every Brunswick had no system at all and no vital statistics were compiled except by the cities of St. John, Moncton and Fredericton. In Quebec records were kept by the churches. Roman Catholic and Protestant. This had been the method for 200 years. In the civil authorities were loathe to meddle. Quebec has now joined the Dominion and will have the best statistics in Canada.

People are living longer because statistical information is available, which shows the precisely what they have to combat. Mr. Coates, Dominion statistician, is assisted in this department by E. S. MacPhail, superintendent of compilation, and W. R. Tracey, who recently made a trip by courtesy of the health section of the League of Nations, to Geneva, Berlin, The Hague, Paris and British cities for the purpose of studying the collecting of vital statistics in those centres.
